☞ The following extract from the Louisville Democrat, a Douglas paper in the late election, and which has manfully grappled with Secession from the beginning, will give our readers an idea of the effect produced by the abolition emancipation organs of the North:—

"We think it high time the New York Tribune was prohibited all circulation in the mails. It is a disunion sheet and contributes more to keep up the rebellion than half a dozen armies. The editor insists that slavery must die if this war continues. Now everybody knows that slavery can't be suppressed until ad reged for the Federal Constitution perishes; and the doctrine is, that if the war continues, the Constitution and all its guarantees must be prostrated. Then what are the people of the North fighting for? If slavery can be abolished by this war, any other right of the States reserved can be alike sacrificed, and we have no law but the arbitrary will of a military despot to depend on. It is strange that a letter from Louisville to the New York Times, written by some Abolitionist, has started the editor of the Tribune afresh. This writer ought to be sent to Fort Lafayette. Such outgivings would disband the Union armies if it was believed for a moment that the Administration did not spurn such suggestions."

Col. W. W. Ricketts.—This gallant commander of the Sixth Pennsylvania Reserve Regiment spent the yesterday in our city, on his return to his regiment, now on the other side of the Potomac. He has been down with a complication of disorder for nearly two month, at home in Orangeville, Columbia county, and although now sadly crippled with the rheumatism, still weak from typhoid fever, and with weak lungs, the prospect of a brush with the enemy hastens him on to join his regiment.

No regiment in the service has been so peculiarly unfortunate as the Sixth. At Washington, on its arrival, it was regarded as one of finest regiments sent from Pennsylvania, and had the highest encomiums passed upon it by Gens. McClellan and McCall. Shortly after they encamped, the Colonel, Lieutenant Colonel and Major, as well as a majority of the company officers, and upwards of a hundred privates were taken sick. The deaths were not very numerous, but the progress of the regiment in attaining efficiency was sadly interfered with, at a time, too, when it had the most brilliant prospect ahead. It is this that disheartens Col. Ricketts; but, should he recover, he will soon bring his regiment from the background, and if engaged with the enemy, our words for it, it will be heard from.—Patriot & Union.

☞ The Rev. William Bacon Stevens, D. D., rector of St. Andrew's Church, Philadelphia, was on Thursday of week before last, elected Assistant Bishop of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, by the Protestant Episcopal Convention, in special session at Philadelphia. The choice was not made until thirteen ballots had been taken by the Clergy. On the thirteenth ballot, 149 votes were cast, of which Dr. Stevens received 85, Dr. Leeds 50, Dr. Butler 8, Dr. Morton 1, Dr. Goodwin 1, Dr. Tyng 1; and there were 3 blank votes. The vote of the lay delegates, on ratifying the election by the Clergy, stood 84 for to 87 against. The principal candidates in opposition to Dr. Stevens, on the several ballots, were Dr. May, late of the Alexandria Theological Seminary, Drs. Morton, Howe, and Leeds, of Philadelphia, and Dr. A. Cleveland Coxe, of Baltimore.—The Bishop elect ranks as a moderate Churchman. He is a learned theologian, and an eloquent pulpit orator. His consecration to the Episcopal office will probably not take place for some weeks.

Dr. Stevens is about fifty years of age. He was born in Massachusetts, and was educated a physician. When quite young he went to the East Indies and China, and practised medicine in the latter country, for a time being associated with the well-known Dr. Gutzlaff. He visited the Sandwich Islands and other strange countries, and returning to the United States, settled in Athens, Georgia, intending to practice medicine. But he soon turned his attention to theology, and after the requisite preparation, became a Minister in the Episcopal Church. He was chosen Professor of Belles Letters in the University of Georgia, and was appointed by the Legislature to write a History of the State. The second volume of this work which is well written and extremely valuable, only appeared within the last two years. While in Georgia, Dr. Stevens married Miss Coppee, of that State, a sister of Professor Coppee, of the University of Pennsylvania. About the year 1845, he received and accepted a call from St. Andrew's Church, succeeding the Rev. T. M. Clark, now Bishop of Rhode Island.—He has continued there ever since. A few years ago he travelled in Europe and the Holy Land, and on his return wrote an interesting work, and also delivered lectures on the scenes he visited that were memorable in Scripture history. He has written several works of a religious character, among which is one entitled "The Bow in the Cloud," which is probably the most generally known. Some time since he had a call to a church in Savanna, which he declined. More recently he was selected to be Professor of Elocution in a new theological Seminary, organized in Philadelphia, to take the place of the one near Alexandria which has been closed by the war. He is a polished writer, a good speaker, and will fill the office of Bishop with ability and dignity.

Camp Jackson, near Williamsport, Md., October 27th, 1861.

My Dear Sir:—

Since my last letter many important changes have been made in the position of the forces stationed on the Upper Potomac. Our position is about the same, as with our present forces it would be dangerous to advance into the neck of land opposite us. If our troops occupy Leesburg we will be likely to advance, and take a clean sweep down to the front of our army. Unless the enemy send a large force here, they can't maintain their ground as there is danger of their being surrounded.

The cold frosty nights reminds us "dealers in tents" that winter is coming on apace. When I left home the earth was covered with the verdure of spring; now it has the somber hue of autumn. Many who then left their homes in expectation of having a nice time for a few months, now realize the hardships of war. Many, too, have gone to their last homes, and many more are going daily.

The cold weather reminded us that wood was necessary, and we were told that wood could be had cheap in Virginia. Acting on this information some 200 cavalry, 500 infantry and one piece of artillery were detailed to go and get it. None of the commanding officers said anything about it, until about one o'clock Thursday morning, the "long roll" was beat, putting every man in camp in action. In short order all were at the ford. A ferry boat carried one company of infantry over at a time. A Parrott rifled gun was put in a commanding position so as to cover the retreat of the men, if necessary. The cavalry used the ford. In order to become acquainted with the ford, I crossed the river four times. One poor fellow got below it, when his horse stumbled pitching him head first into the stream. He cried out lustily for help but no one seemed disposed to rescue him, until he reached a place where he could stand when a lariat rope was thrown to him, and he was towed into shore. One of the officers desired me to pilot him across which I did. When near the Virginia side and in four feet water, his horse treated him to a wet bath. His large military boots were filled with water, and on reaching the shore he pulled them off to empty them. While standing there his horse started and run after the cavalry leaving his owner sweating and swearing at tight boots.

All had crossed over by 3 o'clock, and then the wagons commenced crossing.—The cavalry took the lead. They proceeded about six miles into the interior, when the command "Halt" was given by some unknown person ahead, and the challenge "Who comes there." The column halted and formed six abreast when the "charge" was sounded. The rebel pickets, for such they proved to be, turned and ran in the direction of Martinsburg pursued by our cavalry. The race was an exciting one though nothing was heard but the rapid click-a-click of the horses hoofs upon the hard pike. Soon, however, the forms of several men became visible and then the officers in front commenced firing random shots from their revolvers at the retreating forms. One lagged behind. Captain —— rode up and shot him, the ball taking effect in the thigh making but a flesh wound. Instead of continuing the pursuit as they should have done, the cavalry were halted to introduce Mr. Secesh to his new acquaintances. They could not gain the ground there lost, before reaching Martinsburg. When near that place they halted on hearing the approach of cavalry from an opposite direction. But one man was seen in the darkness, and he was riding along leisurely. One of our officers said he would meet him alone and rode forward with his six shooting carbine. On coming within two rods of the stranger he saw himself covered with a pistol. He halted and aimed his carbine. An awkward silence of several moments was observed, when finally the stranger challenged "Who is there?" "A friend" was the answer. "To what Regiment do you belong?"—"First Virginia" was the answer; such, in fact, being the case. "Are you in the service of the United or Confederate States?" was next asked. "United States" responded young ——; "where do you belong?" "I am secesh" answered the stranger. For a moment the U. S officer was non-plussed, but finally asked his opponent "What shall we do; shall we have a shot?" "Don't care if we do" answered the imperturable secesh. Another moment's silence. At last the proposition was made and agreed to, that each should return, and join his corps. The gray light of morning showed a number of rebel cavalry on an opposite hill, but we dared not attack them as we had no infantry to assist us, while theirs had the advantages of woods and stone fences. Besides the occupation of Martinsburg would be of no importance to us at present.

About 40 cords of wood were obtained. Cap. Matthews also found one of the shell I fired at a grain stack a few weeks ago. It had passed directly through it, and the cap had exploded; but the powder was too damp to ignite. By Friday noon all were in camp again, eager for a fray in which some fighting could be done.

Yours truly,
ARTILLERIST.

MILITARY UNIFORMS.—There is, perhaps, no department of military business in which there has been a more marked improvement than in the clothing of soldiers. Not many years since officers and privates were clad in garments which were almost a Misfit; they wore leather stocks, which were worthy of the name, for they kept the wearer in tribulation; while their padded breasts and tight sleeves made volition a matter of great difficulty. During the present war, each of our volunteers is as proud of their uniforms at the Brown Stone Clothing Hall of Rockhill & Wilson, Nos. 603 and 605 Chestnut street, above Sixth Philadelphia, obtain clothing that is perfectly easy, substantial and becoming. The firm named have gone largely into the business of making Military Clothing, and their facilities enable them to fill the largest order in the shortest possible time.

THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

NEW VOLUME.

On the seventh of September, 1861, THE NEW-YORK WEEKLY TRIBUNE commenced the twenty first year of its existence; THE DAILY TRIBUNE being some months older and THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE somewhat younger. For more than twenty years, this journal has labored in what its conductors have felt to be the cause of Humanity, Justice and Freedom, endeavoring to meliorate the condition of the oppressed and unfortunate, to honor and encourage useful exertion in whatever sphere, and, to promote by all means the moral, intellectual and material advancement of our country. It has aimed to be right rather than popular, and to espouse and commend to say the truth that others may not be willing to accept and to denounce, in pursuing this course, mistakes have doubtless been made and faults committed; but having in all things incited our readers to think and judge for themselves rather than adopt blindly our own or others' conclusions, we believe we may fairly claim for this journal the credit of having guided its readers to the best and reject even its own errors. To develop the mines of the young by the most general, thorough and practical Education, and to encourage and stimulate Productive Industry, through free grants of Public Lands to actual settlers and cultivators, as we incidentally the protection of immature or partially exposed branches from to pass of foreign competition, among the aims to which this journal has labored through good and evil report, and which it still strives to attain. An honest patriotism explicit with any.

[illegible] War now devastating our country, we [illegible] than any yet known in [illegible] and [illegible] of the Government at Washington, and [illegible] to [illegible] against all many a [illegible] to [illegible] higher than the wall of caste and [illegible] the [illegible] people, having done all we could without a sacrifice of vital principle to avert the War, and witnessed the forbearance, meekness, and long-suffering which the General Government sought to avert its horrors, we hold it our clear duty, with that of every other citizen, to stand by the nation and its fairly chosen rulers, and to give our best and all our energies their efforts to uphold the Union, the Constitution, and the supremacy of the Laws. And, though the Rebellion has become, through usurpation, deception, terrorism, and [illegible]tation, fearfully strong, we believe the American Republic far stronger, and that the unanimous, earnest efforts of loyal hearts and hands will insure its triumph. But on all questions affecting the objects, the scope, and duration of this most extraordinary contest, we defer to those whom the American people have clothed with authority, holding unity of purpose and of action indispensable to success and emergency.

In a crisis like the present, our columns must be largely engrossed with the current history of the War for the Union, and with elucidations of its most striking incidents. We shall not however, grant that attention to Literature, to Foreign Affairs, to Agricultural Progress, to Crops Markets, &c., which has earned for the paper won for THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE an honorable position among its contemporaries. Our main object is and shall be to produce a comprehensive newspaper from which a careful reader may glean a vivid and faithful history of the times, not merely in the domain of Action but in that of Opinion also. As our facilities for acquiring information increase with years, perceptible, and that, in the variety and fullness of intelligence afforded, we may still hope to make each say a critic on the last. In this hope, we solicit a continuance of the generous measure of patronage hitherto accorded to our journal.
