THE NAVAL EXPEDITION.

Full Confirmation of its Success through the Southern Press-Union Forces in Possession of Beaufort-Honey Rebel Loss - New Orleans threatened -an im. mense Fleet off Ship Island.

WASAINGTON, Nov. 11, 1861.

The news of the success of the fleet at Beaufort, S. C., causes much excitement and joy here. Still, at the Navy Department, it is not considered altogether certain that so much has been nobleved as is reported. A dispatch steamer is hourly expected at Annapolis, with authentic news from the officers in command of the expedition. A portion of Beaufort is believed to have been destroyed by the attack up-

No credit is attached to an outside rumor that Charleston has been shelled. It may be that an army some 7000 or 8000 strong was moving in that direction.

But whatever may be the next movement. the immediate results of this successful landing in South Carolina are most important. A Southern port is opened, a good harbor is secured, a rallying point for Union men and negroes is obtained, a new base of operations is gained, and alarm is spread throughout the rebel ranks. The report of the withdrawal of many of their troops from the Potomac is probably correct. Who knows but that the blow struck in South Carolina may open the way for General McClellan to march to Richmond?

CAIRO, ILL., Nov. 11, 1861. The Memphis papers received here today contain a dispatch from Savannah fully confirming the landing of the naval expedition at Beaufort, and the capture of the three rebel forts at Port Royal, Hilton

The U. S. transport steamer Union has been wrecked near Bogue's inlet, N. C., and her captain and 50 men taken prisoners to Fort Macon and Raleigh. When the steamer struck she was badly store four feet of water in her hold, and being run square on shore she broke in two .-She was loaded with horses, and provisions. Of the 67 horses all but 14 were killed before going ashore, and the cargo was strewn along the skore. The steamer Winfield Scott is reported to have found.

The French war steamer Cantilabria had been wrecked in the gale off Beaufort. All hands got ashore, and after the weather had calmed a little blew her up. No reason was given for the proceeeding.
