To PREVENT THE ATTACK OF THE TURNIP FLY .- By steeping the seed in salt water, the attacks of the turnip fly are partially or whol y prevented. Those who experimented last season mention it as a skin a beautiful, clear, health is and give the skin a beautiful, clear, healthy and blooming appearspecific. In steeping the seed it is necessary to guard against injuring its vitality. Salt water made to a strength in which an egg will float is the prescription-the seed to be afterwards dried previous to sowing. Farmers, by experimenting with various steeps and dressings of the seed, may discover something practically useful. A solution of nitrate of soda, dissolved bone and Peruvian guano, is very suitable for using for the steeping of seed. A vigorous growth of the plants in the first stage will follow such steeps. Care, however, must be take not to impair or destroy the vitality of the seed .- [North Brit sh Agriculturist.

It is generally agreed that Farmers have no manure to spare. Then why urge them to make use of a double quantity for each acre?

Roots of all kind may yield better for deep ploughing. They often suffer for want of moisture. But corn requires heat and seldom suffers for want of rain when the soil is properly stirred.

Corn roots run near the surface, and hot summers are always best for this plant.

Should you turn the soil to a foot in depth and make the whole as rich as we usually do to half that depth, the roots would incline to go down as deep as the manure.

Of course the corn stalks would hold their greeness to a later period than when the soil and the manure are but six inches deep, while that one more shallow and warm furrows would escape.

Mer of these have been frauds upon the sick, in they not only contain little, if any, Sarsega-rilla, but often no curative properties whatev-er. Hence, bitter and painful disappointment has followed the use of the various extracts of Sarsaparilla which flood the market, until the name itself is justly despised, and has become synonymous with imposition and cheat. So we call this compound Sarsaparilla, and into to supply such a remedy as shall rescue it name from the lond of obloquy which re-upon it. And we think we have ground it believing it has virtues which are irresistill by the ordinary run of the diseases it is into ed to cure. In order to secure their comp eradication from the system, the remedy sho be judiciously taken according to directions
