

capable of great endurance, if a case of necessity should arise to test his power .-Unless occupied with some thought or care that is all-engrossing, we never pass a horse without giving him a critical notice, howwithout giving him a critical notice, however brief that notice may be—and we sincerely believe that nine out of ten of them—both in the city and country—are only remarkable for some physical defect, or some dangerous habit alike perilous to both man and beast. They are mean beyond, description, compared with what they might be under a proper course of breeding and treatment, they are knock-kneed, have corns, splint, albugo, bots, broken wind, canker, in the foot, colic, horse distemper, farcy, diabetes, curb, contraction of the foot, fistula, poll-evil, glanders, founders, heaves, mange, rheumanism, ringbone, sandcrack, roaring, get bone, bog and blood spavin, blind staggers, strangmary and lockjaw, thrush, wind-galls and warts, and forty other diseases, that oppress and torment the poor animals a thousand times more than all the labor they ought to perform !- What a frightful catalogue of diseases, to be visited upon one alogue of diseases, to be visited upon one of the noblest animals—both in structure and disposition—which God has placed in our care, to subserve our wants or gratify our pleasures. Poor brute! Never was another so beset with evil, or treated with so much inhumanity.

There are two principal causes for all this, viz: 1. Breeding from old and diseased ani-

2. The injudicious and harsh treatment which they receive. It has long been a practice, and is a wide-spread one, to breed from aged and imperfect mares-mares that have been imperfect mares—mares that have been excellent animals, but are full of age and imperfections, that a large proportion of all horses acquire before arriving at the early of the horses acquired by age of twenty years. One, for instance, . has had crooked knees for ten years, an- The Inquirer was the first northern paper to give the other the spring halt, another a cappedhock or the heaves. She is past servicable labor in the field or in the road, and as the kind master is still desirous of making the kind master is still desirous of making her profitable to him, he turns her over in her old age to the pains of parturition, and just work enough in the plow or cart to pay for her hay and grain. This is done by thousands, who never think that these defects may be entailed upon the progency of these mares and thus a race of illformed. of these mares, and thus a race of illformed, ill manuered and comparatively worthless horses is perpetuated. For the pupese of breeding, the young or middlenged of both sexes should be selected-and these should be of the best form, and possessing as many of the best qualities as can be found in a single animal. When these precautions are observed, we shall have a cruel treatment, which they receive. Colts are put to work too young ; pressed to the utmost of their power, both in speed and draft, too frequently; and when fatigued or heated are left in the storm or cold, or a draft, where agues and cramps are contracted that continue with them through life. They are often urged to turn suddealy and rapidly, which strains or bracks in gold.

THE TROUBLE .- Since we have raised corn we have never seen suckers grow so rapidly or in such quantities. Perhaps it is because the ground is kept so clear of weeds that it throws its strength into the corn and causes the suckers to start because the corn cant grow fast enough to to take up the strength of the soil. Keep the weeds down.

A Good IDEA .- That is a good idea of Clark's: "The frost is God's plough, which he drives through every inch of ground in the world, opening each clod and pulverizing the whole."
