

Hon. Horatio Seymour.

The Democracy of New York have nominated the Hon. Horatio Seymour, by acclamation for Governor.

BLOOMSBURG, PA. SATURDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 20, 1863.

DEMOCRATIC STATE TICKET.

AUDITOR GENERAL, ISAAC SLENKER, OF UNION COUNTY. SURVEYOR GENERAL, JAMES P. BARR, OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY.

DISTRICT TICKET.

FOR CONGRESS, Hon. L. B. RUPERT, Subject to the decision of the Conferees.

FOR ASSEMBLY, Geo. D. JACKSON, of Sullivan, John C. ELLIS, of Montour.

FOR PRESIDENT JUDGE, William Ellwell, of Towanda.

COUNTY TICKET.

FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY, E. H. LITTLE, OF BLOOM. FOR COMMISSIONER, ROHR McHENRY, OF BENTON. FOR COUNTY SURVEYOR, ISAAC A. DEWITT, OF GREENWOOD. FOR AUDITOR, ANDREW J. EVANS, OF BLOOM.

The Editor in Chief, Col. TATE, has gone to the war; and if the Local had been well, the Devil must have edited the Democrat.

Dr. JOHN who prefers party to country, stays at home to edit his paper and labor for his party.

Dr. JOHN and his abolition crew have, we observe, succeeded in defeating Robert F. Clark, Esq., for Congress; and in putting on that most objectionable of all men, the Reverend GEORGE LANDON of Bradford, a Pet of Wilmot.

JOHN FARRIS, the well known Furrier, of 718 Arch Street, Philad., announces, as in his usual custom, the opening of a large and beautiful stock of Furs for Ladies' and Children's wear.

SEVERAL bushels of Wheat, Rye, Corn and Oats, wanted at this Office on subscription to the Columbia Democrat.

THE MENAGERIE AND CIRCUS.—Baley's Zoological and Hippo-Arenic Pavilion will be in Bloomsburg, on Wednesday, the 24th inst., as will be seen by their advertisement in another column.

PAY THE PRINTER.—We have spent considerable time, and a large number of stamps, in sending bills to our distant subscribers, in great hope that those addressed, would promptly remit our dues by mail.

Hon. George H. Rowland. The Democracy of Monroe and Pike, have again nominated this gentleman for the Legislature.

Hon. Joel Parker. Hon. Joel Parker, is the Democratic candidate for Governor of New Jersey.

Hon. George H. Rowland. An election was held on Tuesday morning, at Harrisburg, when the following persons were duly elected officers.

ADDRESS

Of C. R. Buckalew, to the Democracy assembled at Orangeville, 17th September, 1863, being the 75th Anniversary of the formation of the Constitution of the United States.

The Constitution of the United States was signed 17th September, 1787, and went into effect on the first Wednesday in March, 1789.

It deserves the veneration and attachment of the people of the United States, and profound respect from the whole world.

It contains the terms of a compact or bargain between the people of the several States considered as composing distinct and sovereign communities, and establishes a government of defined jurisdiction and powers.

And in the Congress of the United States, at the last session, many bills framed in utter disregard of the Constitution were introduced and urged.

In contempt of the warnings of Washington's Farewell Address to his countrymen, the Republican party was founded by Mr. Seward, Mr. Lincoln and others as a sectional party.

The particular creed of the Republican or Democratic party of 1798, as it came to be established by Mr. Jefferson, was dictated by the circumstances of the time.

The objects they sought have been obtained—power, patronage, plunder and revenge! That the country bleeds in consequence of their rapacity and passions, would seem to awaken in their breasts no feelings of contrition.

In brief, there was an ill-omened conjunction of the fanatical and plunder interests of the North—the Abolitionist and the Manufacturer—the disciples of the school of ancient Federalism and the renegades of Democracy—all bent upon power, and all inspired by hatred of that ancient party whose equal and just rule had held the country together.

To these interests were added a large following, made up of well intentioned persons—young men, naturalized citizens, and ancient Whigs—who, purposing no evil, were utterly incredulous of the catastrophe which was to follow upon success.

It may be urged that all this belongs to the past, that we cannot turn back the tide of events and stand again where we stood before the days of folly.

And in regard to the powers really vested in the government, they held that they were to be used in good faith for the equal advantage of the whole people.

This was the creed, ever memorable and glorious, introduced into the administration of public affairs under the auspices of Virginia statesmen, at the commencement of the present century.

They were opposed to a splendid, costly, repressive law, proceeding upon distrust of popular intelligence and virtue, and distributing favors to particular classes or interests to conciliate their support.

But we may derive instruction and warning for the future, by recurring to the origin, composition, and former acts of this existing and powerful party.

Believing the Republican party to be unfaithful to the Constitution and incompetent to the due management of public affairs, the Democratic party is rallied against it and threatens it with defeat.

The party of Jefferson yet survives to defend the Constitution and to oppose all forms of unwarranted or unjust rule.

A second Company was formed out of the Columbia county Volunteers, on Wednesday, with the following officers:

Captain—ROBERT F. CLARK, 1st Lieut.—DAVID LOWENBERG, 2nd Lieut.—C. S. FOWLER.

But it is now out of power both in this State and in the Union, and what is the result? We need not pause to mention the millions sunk within a few years at Harrisburg by corruption—the contempt with which Republican rapacity has there set aside the constitutional guarantees for the extinguishment of the public debt.

The authority of the Constitution of the United States is now openly defied in ten States and threatened in others, and it has been found necessary to raise large armies and expend enormous sums of money, in order to restore it.

Meantime the Federal Executive has upon many occasions resorted to measures of an unusual character, not authorized by the Constitution and laws, upon the ground that they were necessary to the public security.

And in the Congress of the United States, at the last session, many bills framed in utter disregard of the Constitution were introduced and urged.

In contempt of the warnings of Washington's Farewell Address to his countrymen, the Republican party was founded by Mr. Seward, Mr. Lincoln and others as a sectional party.

The particular creed of the Republican or Democratic party of 1798, as it came to be established by Mr. Jefferson, was dictated by the circumstances of the time.

The objects they sought have been obtained—power, patronage, plunder and revenge! That the country bleeds in consequence of their rapacity and passions, would seem to awaken in their breasts no feelings of contrition.

In brief, there was an ill-omened conjunction of the fanatical and plunder interests of the North—the Abolitionist and the Manufacturer—the disciples of the school of ancient Federalism and the renegades of Democracy—all bent upon power, and all inspired by hatred of that ancient party whose equal and just rule had held the country together.

To these interests were added a large following, made up of well intentioned persons—young men, naturalized citizens, and ancient Whigs—who, purposing no evil, were utterly incredulous of the catastrophe which was to follow upon success.

It may be urged that all this belongs to the past, that we cannot turn back the tide of events and stand again where we stood before the days of folly.

And in regard to the powers really vested in the government, they held that they were to be used in good faith for the equal advantage of the whole people.

This was the creed, ever memorable and glorious, introduced into the administration of public affairs under the auspices of Virginia statesmen, at the commencement of the present century.

They were opposed to a splendid, costly, repressive law, proceeding upon distrust of popular intelligence and virtue, and distributing favors to particular classes or interests to conciliate their support.

But we may derive instruction and warning for the future, by recurring to the origin, composition, and former acts of this existing and powerful party.

Believing the Republican party to be unfaithful to the Constitution and incompetent to the due management of public affairs, the Democratic party is rallied against it and threatens it with defeat.

The party of Jefferson yet survives to defend the Constitution and to oppose all forms of unwarranted or unjust rule.

A second Company was formed out of the Columbia county Volunteers, on Wednesday, with the following officers:

Captain—ROBERT F. CLARK, 1st Lieut.—DAVID LOWENBERG, 2nd Lieut.—C. S. FOWLER.

It has applied the public money to the purchase of negroes against the will of the nation, and proposes to extend such system of purchase hereafter—it has wasted the public treasure upon corrupt jobbers and agents—it has sought to degrade our cause by arming savages for war—and, to conclude, it has struck at the Constitution repeatedly and scoffed at those who would maintain and defend it.

The authority of the Constitution of the United States is now openly defied in ten States and threatened in others, and it has been found necessary to raise large armies and expend enormous sums of money, in order to restore it.

Meantime the Federal Executive has upon many occasions resorted to measures of an unusual character, not authorized by the Constitution and laws, upon the ground that they were necessary to the public security.

And in the Congress of the United States, at the last session, many bills framed in utter disregard of the Constitution were introduced and urged.

In contempt of the warnings of Washington's Farewell Address to his countrymen, the Republican party was founded by Mr. Seward, Mr. Lincoln and others as a sectional party.

The particular creed of the Republican or Democratic party of 1798, as it came to be established by Mr. Jefferson, was dictated by the circumstances of the time.

The objects they sought have been obtained—power, patronage, plunder and revenge! That the country bleeds in consequence of their rapacity and passions, would seem to awaken in their breasts no feelings of contrition.

In brief, there was an ill-omened conjunction of the fanatical and plunder interests of the North—the Abolitionist and the Manufacturer—the disciples of the school of ancient Federalism and the renegades of Democracy—all bent upon power, and all inspired by hatred of that ancient party whose equal and just rule had held the country together.

To these interests were added a large following, made up of well intentioned persons—young men, naturalized citizens, and ancient Whigs—who, purposing no evil, were utterly incredulous of the catastrophe which was to follow upon success.

It may be urged that all this belongs to the past, that we cannot turn back the tide of events and stand again where we stood before the days of folly.

And in regard to the powers really vested in the government, they held that they were to be used in good faith for the equal advantage of the whole people.

This was the creed, ever memorable and glorious, introduced into the administration of public affairs under the auspices of Virginia statesmen, at the commencement of the present century.

They were opposed to a splendid, costly, repressive law, proceeding upon distrust of popular intelligence and virtue, and distributing favors to particular classes or interests to conciliate their support.

But we may derive instruction and warning for the future, by recurring to the origin, composition, and former acts of this existing and powerful party.

Believing the Republican party to be unfaithful to the Constitution and incompetent to the due management of public affairs, the Democratic party is rallied against it and threatens it with defeat.

The party of Jefferson yet survives to defend the Constitution and to oppose all forms of unwarranted or unjust rule.

A second Company was formed out of the Columbia county Volunteers, on Wednesday, with the following officers:

Captain—ROBERT F. CLARK, 1st Lieut.—DAVID LOWENBERG, 2nd Lieut.—C. S. FOWLER.

On the contrary, official bodies and voluntary conventions and assemblies of the people—all and each appropriate organs of popular sentiment—have uttered one uniform voice of encouragement to the Federal Government in its struggle with the South.

The authority of the Constitution of the United States is now openly defied in ten States and threatened in others, and it has been found necessary to raise large armies and expend enormous sums of money, in order to restore it.

Meantime the Federal Executive has upon many occasions resorted to measures of an unusual character, not authorized by the Constitution and laws, upon the ground that they were necessary to the public security.

And in the Congress of the United States, at the last session, many bills framed in utter disregard of the Constitution were introduced and urged.

In contempt of the warnings of Washington's Farewell Address to his countrymen, the Republican party was founded by Mr. Seward, Mr. Lincoln and others as a sectional party.

The particular creed of the Republican or Democratic party of 1798, as it came to be established by Mr. Jefferson, was dictated by the circumstances of the time.

The objects they sought have been obtained—power, patronage, plunder and revenge! That the country bleeds in consequence of their rapacity and passions, would seem to awaken in their breasts no feelings of contrition.

In brief, there was an ill-omened conjunction of the fanatical and plunder interests of the North—the Abolitionist and the Manufacturer—the disciples of the school of ancient Federalism and the renegades of Democracy—all bent upon power, and all inspired by hatred of that ancient party whose equal and just rule had held the country together.

To these interests were added a large following, made up of well intentioned persons—young men, naturalized citizens, and ancient Whigs—who, purposing no evil, were utterly incredulous of the catastrophe which was to follow upon success.

It may be urged that all this belongs to the past, that we cannot turn back the tide of events and stand again where we stood before the days of folly.

And in regard to the powers really vested in the government, they held that they were to be used in good faith for the equal advantage of the whole people.

This was the creed, ever memorable and glorious, introduced into the administration of public affairs under the auspices of Virginia statesmen, at the commencement of the present century.

They were opposed to a splendid, costly, repressive law, proceeding upon distrust of popular intelligence and virtue, and distributing favors to particular classes or interests to conciliate their support.

But we may derive instruction and warning for the future, by recurring to the origin, composition, and former acts of this existing and powerful party.

Believing the Republican party to be unfaithful to the Constitution and incompetent to the due management of public affairs, the Democratic party is rallied against it and threatens it with defeat.

The party of Jefferson yet survives to defend the Constitution and to oppose all forms of unwarranted or unjust rule.

A second Company was formed out of the Columbia county Volunteers, on Wednesday, with the following officers:

Captain—ROBERT F. CLARK, 1st Lieut.—DAVID LOWENBERG, 2nd Lieut.—C. S. FOWLER.

MUSTER ROLL OF THE "COLUMBIA COUNTY GUARDS."

The following is a list of the officers and privates of the "Columbia County Guards," They left Bloomsburg on the 8th of August, 1862:

Table listing names and ranks of officers and privates, including Capt. Michael Whitmore, 1st Lieut. Andrew C. Monahan, etc.

The Enrollment for This County.

We are indebted to Capt. Wm. Silvers, Commissioner to superintend the drafting in this county, for the following statement, giving the number of persons enrolled, appropriation of the different townships, number of men in service and the quota yet to be furnished by each township.

Table with columns: Township, Enrollment (as males), Approximate, Number of men sent, Quota to furnish.

The quota for this county, under the different calls from the government, is 1,447. Of this number we have but 595 men in service. This makes it necessary to furnish 852 men by draft.

LEHIGH COUNTY POLITICS.—Allentown, Pa., Sept. 13.—The Lehigh County Democratic Convention to-day nominated Hon. J. D. Stiles for Congress, Samuel Camp for Assembly, and Hon. John W. Maynard for Judge.

In Upper Austria the miners and peasants, old and young, strew arbutio like salt on their bread, and eat it without injury, to preserve a youthful appearance!

REVIEW OF THE MARKET.

Table listing market prices for wheat, corn, and other commodities.