

EDITED BY LEVI L. TATE, PROPRIETOR. BLOOMSBURG, PENN'A: Saturday Morning, Feb. 6, 1864.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1864, GEORGE B. MC'CLELLAN

The Conscription Act.

Chief Justice WOODWARD, of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, in giving his opinion in regard to the reversal by a majority of the Court of its decision last November that the Conscription law is unconstitutional, held that the decree of November is a just decision of the Court, to be respected by all citizens, including the judges of this Court.

State Interest Paid in Gold or its Equivalent.

While Governor Curtin and the Abolition majority in the Legislature have been using every effort to dishonor the State by arranging to pay the State interest in paper, our worthy Democratic State Treasurer has stepped in between them and fraud, and paid the creditors in good faith.

Who are for the Union?

Blatant as they are on the subject of "loyalty," there is not a Lincolnite in the United States who dares to proclaim himself an unconditional Union man under the Constitution. Their "loyalty" is the allegiance of the subject to his king, the serf to his master.

Typhus or Spotted Fever.

The epidemic now raging in certain portions of our State, seems to be, from the information gleaned from the papers to be nothing more than an aggravated form of the Typhus fever.

Democratic Victory in Lancaster.

Hon. GEORGE SANDERSON, was on Tuesday last, re-elected, for the fifth time, Mayor of Lancaster City. Mr. S. is the able Editor of the Lancaster Intelligencer, a very sound Democrat, and has proven himself a most efficient municipal Chief Magistrate.

Democracy in the National Congress.

The Administration has illegally arrested thousands of Democrats, and plunged them into bastilles, but we are not aware that they have proved a single charge against one of them. It is, however, proved that the friends of Lincoln have not only been robbing the Treasury all the time, but also engaged blockade runners, and doing all manner of things contraband of war.

Gov. MEDARY'S Ohio Crisis, again graces our Table.

It commences the fourth volume, in a beautiful new dress, and with renewed energy in the cause of Democracy. We would that all men would read and patronize "The Crisis."

Gen. McClellan's Report—Sharp Letter to Stanton.

We are not surprised at the anxiety of the Administration to keep Gen. McClellan's report of the Peninsula campaign from the public gaze. As soon as it was ascertained that he was not willing to convert a war for the restoration of the Union into one for negro emancipation, the Radicals determined upon his removal from his command of the army.

On our first page to-day we publish McClellan's letter to Stanton, written after the bloody battle of "Gaines' Hill," a battle which he fought against his own judgment but in pursuance of imperatve instructions from Washington. The letter in question will give the reader an idea of the criminal neglect of the Administration in failing to adopt his timely suggestion. Had he, instead of measuring the forces of the enemy, and making timely suggestions to the Administration, demonstrating how to successfully confront them, confined himself to issuing emancipating proclamations, he would now be high in the councils of his most malignant traducers.

The One-tenth Scheme.

The Administration policy enunciated in the last Presidential message, which looks to the establishment of bogus governments in the Southern States, through which the Administration hopes to control the Northern States, and thus perpetuate its power, is being attempted in Louisiana. A correspondent of the Chicago Times writes:

The game has already begun in Louisiana. Already a convention () has been held there, composed, not of citizens of Louisiana, but of abolition adventurers from the North, runaway slaves, free negroes, and white men who, by the laws of that State, are debarred from the elective franchise. There might have been a few legal voters in the convention, but the above constituted by far the largest number of persons present.

The State Interest.

We are glad to learn that the dishonor proposed for our State is, thanks to a Democratic State Treasurer, postponed for the present. We are informed that Mr. McGrath will be prepared to pay the interest on the State debt which comes due the 1st of February, in coin or its equivalent.

Put them in the front.

The abolition preachers and the Quakers, says the Allentown Democrat, did more than any other bodies of men and women in the land to produce this civil war. For that reason, if for no other, they should be made to do a fair share of the fighting.

Yet common sense suggests that men whose consciences allowed them to do so much towards provoking this bloody domestic strife, should not for any moral or religious reasons, be relieved from the militia service which every citizen owes to the Government in time of war. In truth if all that class of persons in every community who are war men in time of peace and peace men in time of war, were justly dealt with by the civil authorities, they would be first called upon to shoulder arms and made to take position in the very front rank of the army in every battle.

The Lady's Friend.

The February number leads off with a beautiful steel plate, engraved in the highest style of art, called "THE SYLVAN RETREAT." Then follows a splendid DOUBLE richly colored Fashion Plate.

TERMS OF SENATORS.—Of the present Senatorial representation in Congress, the terms of eight expire in February, to wit:—Messrs. Clay, of Alabama; Johnston, of Georgia; Baker, of Florida; Simms, of Kentucky; Phelan, of Mississippi; Clark, of Missouri; Johnson, of Georgia, and Baker, of Florida, have been re-elected.

GOLEY.—Goley's Magazine for February cannot fail to please its thousands of admirers. Its fashionplates are magnificent, clear and beautiful; not a blur can be found in the whole book.

BALLOU.—The February number of Ballo's Dollar Monthly Magazine is out. Its literary articles are unexceptionable, and each number is profusely illustrated.

Degrading Volunteer Soldiers.

Dear Sir:—I noticed recently posted against Dr. John's establishment, Bloomsburg, the names of some two thousand deserters from the different regiments of the Pennsylvania Volunteers: among the names is the name of FRANKLIN W. CREVELING, who according to the bills should have deserted on the sixth day of July last, from Co. F. Sixteenth Pa. Cavalry of which he is a member.

For some explanation of the matter I deem it necessary to say, that F. W. CREVELING, was captured on the same day above mentioned; while pursuing the rebels on their retreat from Gettysburg, he was riding in the rear with the surgeon of the Brigade with whom he was attached, and being under the necessity of stopping a few moments, was surprised and ordered to surrender by two rebel dismounted cavalrymen belonging to Jenkins brigade. He was stripped of his uniform and marched until ten o'clock that night, when they came to a halt for rest, the rebels without unseating the horse tied him to a tree, when the company concluded to retire upon the soldiers couch for sleep. Frank fearing that Libby Prison or Castle Thunder might be his doom, felt anxious to make his escape; so he feigned a deep sleep, and soon his captors were snoring away in the land of nod, he then cautiously mounted his horse and bounded away, the noise of which roused the sleepers who cried halt and fired their guns but to no effect save to increase the velocity of the steed. He made his way to Chambersburg, expecting to find some troops there with which he could join his regiment, but there being none at the place, he was advised by the citizens to report to Harrisburg, which he accordingly did to Captain Man of Philadelphia, acting Provost Marshal who sent him to Camp Curtin for the purpose of resting a short time, during that time he came home and remained ten days, and then started for his regiment where he arrived in safety, and is in good standing, braving the storms and privations of this inhuman carnage like a brave soldier and true Patriot. It appears that instead of being credited with what he deserves for his courage he is placed upon the list of deserters with thirty dollars reward for the support of Loyal League Jayhawkers, abolition swindlers and stay at home fighters. I would respectfully inform the above class and all others who feed on bounties that you will find T. W. Creveling in company E. Sixteen Pa. Cavalry encamped near Warren Junction south in Dixies land. But as that country is strange to most of you it will be necessary while passing through to keep up good courage for you will no doubt be frightened by Ghosts and dead mens bones.
