Farmer's Column.

LET FARMERS READ THIS.

The high price of farming productions is a kind of ignis fatures which lures the farmes to support the war policy of the Administration, while the soil under his feet is sliding imperceptably away, and carrying him to irretrievable ruin. It may startle a farmer to tell him that half of his farm now belongs to the Government, but it is nevertheless true. Even admitting that the Southern States will be compelled to return to their allegionce, still the half of every farm in the Union, at the each value, according to the census of 1860, if sold, and the money paid over, would not pay the present National debt.

The cash value of all the farms in the United States, is sixty hundred millions of dollars. Thirty goes into sixty twice. If every farm in the thirty-four States, was sold and the money received, it would take one-half of it to pay the National debt.

But suppose the war goes on a year or two more, then it will take the full price of every farm to pay the debt-that is the country put up at auction would pay the debt, provided the land brought its cash

Suppose, again, that the war will immediately close with the recognition of the Southern Confederacy, then the North would have to pay the debt; and it would tike every farm at cash value to pay the debt incurred during the last three years.

But it is argued that the immense recources of the North are sufficient for the debt. Well, where are the resources? All the money arising from duties, income half of the interest on this debt and defray the civil expenses of the General Government, while the other part of the interest will annually go to increase the design of the design of the design of the interest will annually go to increase the design of will annually go to increase the debt.—

How then will it he paid?

A. D. WEBB.

Bloomsburg, Nev. 14, 1863. How then will it be paid?

Why, the Abolitionists say, "let posnot do it, as the resources of the entire Government are inadequate to pay half the interest. Besides, posterity may have wars and expenser of its own, so that if left entirely unencumbered, it would require all the enonomy possible to keep out of debt.

now we owe thirty hundred millions, besides unliquidated damages for losses of steamboats, railroads, bridges, ships, goods and chattels; and three years might encumber posterity as much as three years has encumbered us. Then posterity cannot pay it. Well, how will it be paid?

Another plan is to repudiate; but re
Another plan is to repudiate; but re-

pudiate is brukruptey. So take it as you will the inevitable "negro" has upset the title of all our lands and involved us all in eternal bankruptcy and disgrace. Here are the statistics :

No of acres in the 34 States, 407,000,000 Cush value of the land, 86, 600,000,000 Present National debt, 3,300,000,000 Interest on the National debt, 198,000,000 Assessment of interest per cavita-six Bloomsburg, June 6, 1863, dollars per head for man, moman and child, black and white, every year. If put sn the land it is a fraction of fifty-cents per acre, there being two hundred millions BRANDIES, WINES, WHISKEYS. of interest and four hundred millions of

Now, as our Government has never done more than barely sustain itself in the most prosperpous periods, it is fair to argue that it will always take its ordinary revenues to pay its ordinary expenses. If this position be correct, the Nation must debt can never pay, and with the other CHESTNET STRUCT BETWEEN FIFTH & SIXTH. enormous rates of tax, the burden becomes too great to bear .- Easton Argus.

Ix a speech, recently made to some soldiers in Philadelphia, by Gen. MEADE the following passage occurs :

"I have just left the army, where I must soon return. There all your old comrades are re-calisting, auxious to remain in the army until they bring this unnaturel and unholy war to a termination; a termination which shall be worthy of the old fing, and an honor to the Government. And this must be the re establishment of the old Union in its former glory, and the ackdowledgment of the Constitution from one end of this continent to the
