SICK ANIMALS. It is of vastly more importance to keep animals in health than to cure them when sick.

1. Animals should always be fed with regularity, both in respect to time and quantity. Overfeeding is often the cause of disease.

2. They should always have water as often as required, and that which is pure. Horses will not drink of hard, lime or clayed, can have access to pure water.

3. Do not overwork horses and oxen. Regular and moderate labor will accomplish more in the year, and keep them in better condition, than overworking at one time and resting and overfeeding at another.

4. A sufficient variety should be fed to stock in winter, and not confine them to dry hay or straw and grain. A mess of carrots, turnips or potatoes cut and mixed with ground oats or shorts is excellent to promote health, and should be given as often as a twice a week.

5. Never feed musty and mouldy fodder—but it must be used, cut it, moisten and sprinkle over with meal, and feed to horned cattle. It never should be given to horses.

6. Always shelter stock in cold storms in all seasons of the year, and never leave a horse, after being driven, to stand in the cold wind without being covered with a good thick blanket or buffalo.

7. Avoid all sudden changes of food in grain, or from hay to grass.

8. Due care should be taken that animals always have a plenty of pure, fresh air, and for this purpose stables should be well ventilated, as stock often become sick from breathing foul air.

9. Strict cleanliness should be observed. All animals are found to maintain a better condition and fatten faster when carried, and kept clean.

When an animal becomes sick, one of the best measures to be adopted is good nursing. This is a method beginning to be advocated by the best practitioners of the medical art, as being applicable to the human family, and is unquestionably as advantageous when applied to farm stock.
