Mr. Enos D Ferris, of Benton, Lake Co., Ill., alluding to our mention of these sheep in the Practical Sheperd, says he "would be pleased if we would give a history of them, and state their size, complexion, and the character of the wool."

We do not recoilect that any European or American author gives a separate and detailed description of the Montarcos. By whatever character it may present.

Withiam Jarvis, and by other letters of his continued from the reduced (complete) care of floring, this is unconstitutingly by perfect care, and is done with this is unconstitutingly by perfect care, and is done with under our eye, it appears that among the in Spenish Junto in 1809, was that of the Conducted States, then numbering about 20,000. Most of it was bought by a Spaniard and a Portugest, but about 2,700 were shipped to the United States. Mr. Jarvis shipped about 200 of these. The flock he is partially sured. Br. Up De Graff visits Wilkes-Barre with a view of the Eye, bar and General Surgery. The experience of more than a quarter of a century in Hospital and general spaces, the copies, will be a sufficient guarantic to eventually reserved for himself was com posed half of Paulars, a fourth of Aqueirres, and the other fourth of Escurials, Negrettis and Montarcos. He bred these separately from 1811 to 1816, and thenceforth mixed them together and bred indiscriminately. Mr. Jarvis, in a letter to L. D. Gregory, says "the Montarco bore a considerable resemblance to the Escurials," and that like the Escurials and the Gaudaloupes they "were not in general so heavy horned' as the Paulars, Negrettis and Aqueirres. This is substantially all we know about them, as we have never seen a flock of them; and we have no information that any flock of them has been preserved distinct in the United States .-They were considered among the prime Leonesa-i. e. the best Merinos of Spain -but if Mr Jarvis' statement is correct that they resemble the Escurials, they were less valuable, according to American ideas, that the Paulars, Infantados and some other families, because, although finer, they were lighter fleeced and more free from yolk.

We are of opinion, however, that more importance has been attached to these family distinction as a test of value in our Cures Nervous Affections, Female Complaints, and all discusses of the Kidneys and Bladder. country, than was ever attached to them in Spain. American Meninos now do not depend so much for their valuable qualities " on the Spanish Cabanas from which they are decended, as on the skill and judgement with which they have been bred. SETTING POSTS.

G. Starr, of Harlan, writes us he has been experimenting thirty years, and his advice is, 'set your posts top down; those so set will be sound 15 years hence, while those set base down will be rotted in 10 years.' He says in clearing, limbs of years." He says in clearing, limbs of falling trees have been forced into the ground, which have been found to be

OBSTRUCTIONS IN DRAINS.

A correspondent of the N. E. Farmer, 1864. states that he has found a difficulty, thus far insuperable, in his drains becoming obstructed with a deposit from the water .-The tiles were laid in a swamp, the water of which was strongly impregnated with exide of iron. In a year or two this compictely filled the tiles with a slimy incrus-tation which stopped the flow of water, and rendered the drain worthless. A partial pletely filled the tiles with a slimy incrusremedy was found, for the main drain, as follows: A cast iron box with a movable cover was substituted for a tile, at intervals of about 100 feat long the whole length of thed rain. He then took 12 "Brazier's rods" (4 inch iron, 10 feet long,) linked them together by eyes on the end of each, first drawing the end of the rod a little smaller, so as to bend the point around the rod, to prevent it comming apart in in the drain. Two lamp chimney brushes were bound together, to make a brush of proper size, and fastened with a copper wire on one end , on the other end was a swab of ball shape. Then the brush end RACE STREET, ABOVE THILD was put into the outlet, and pushed along by means of the rod up to the first cast iron box, from that to the second, and so on the whole length of the drain, and then run back in the same manner.
