

Hats for the Season about Orchards and Fruit Gardens.

GHERRY TREES .- Plant early if the soil is open, and attend to any grafting the last of this month or early in next month. The sections should be rieshly CUTTINGS from ourrents and shrubs started thus must be made before the buds start. Plant out those made last autumn as early as a place can be prepared.

GIRDLED TREES. - These may often be saved by the use of a plaster of cow-dung Put on a plenty to retain moisture.

GRAFTING .- Root grafting should be and preparations made for grafting trees in the ground. Cut scions.

INSECTS .- If any of the twigs appear as if they had a swollen place upon them, an these are found, remove at any cost of time Chronic Ulcerated Sore. and trouble.

MANURE.—Surface manuring is now practised by our best orchardists. The MANURE.-Surface manuring is now manure may be carted out and applied while the ground is frozen.

ORCHARDS .- Wash the trees, if the weather is suitable, as recommended last month. If pruning must be done before summer do it now. The weight of authority is decidedly in favor of summer prun-

PLANTING .- The trees should have been ordered by this time, but if postponed until now do it at once. In ordering apple trees it is well to recollect the value of sweet varieties as food for stock. Draining will always pay in the orchard and the drains should be made before planting. The land may be staked out and the holes made at any time when the sea son is mild enough.

SEEDS .- Order tree seeds for planting this spring. Those kept over winter in boxes of earth should not be sown until the soil is warm.

Frocks .- Those budded last year may be cut back to within three inches of the bud, where the bud remains bright and appears to have united or "taken."

Transplanting of all hardy shrubs and trees may be done as soon as the soil is in Working order.

Planting may be commenced as soon as the frost is well out. The soil of the fruit garden should be drained, enriched and deeply ploughed or spaded.

BLACKBERRIES -- Set the improved kinds six feet spart each way, cutting back the caues to six inches.

CURBANTS .- Prune, and make cuttings of last year's wood. Transplant already rooted plants.

DWARF TREES .- The remarks upon cutting back at the time of planting ap ply with even more force to dwarfs. Now is a good time to commence to form dwart pyramids. GOOSEBERRIES .- Treat as currents .-The Houghton and American seedling are the only reliable serts.

GRAPES .- If the vines were left un pruned last autumn attend to them early. Those which at the fall pruning had extra to the bud intended to grow. Plant new produces an wines. There is scarcely a yard or garden that has not room for from one to a dozen vines which will fill up spaces not occup ed. . Recollect that a vine may be grown to a single stake, or may be made to spread over a large space.

Plant new vines, especially the Black Caps. derived. which are prolific and hardy, and good for home use or market.

STRAWSERRIES .- Prepare ground for new beds in time for planting. Use old Dr. E. W. Wells' manure ; spade freely.
