Hungarian Grass.

Last year we expressed the opinion that Hungarian grass had become a standard crop in the West. We see no reason for a change in that opinion. It is now sown we believe, more extensively than the common millet, though it has been introduced here but a few years. Many of the extravagant ideas in regard to its yield and HE ADACHE. one who has tried it upon good ground, can certify that it is a most profitable crop. During the winter, we heard scarcely a complaint, that it was injurious to horses or other stock, as was formerly contended by many. Perhaps farmers have learned to feed it more judiciously. For sheep, we have much evidence that it is a most excellent feed. We shall be pleased to hear further reports upon its merits or subscribers. The time for sowing it is now approaching and any new light upon the subject will be of value. No soil can be | HIS has received its name from a conbetter adapted to its growth than ours of the west. It is a rank grower, and by many considered exhaustive, but we have no evidence that it is more so than any of forage.

wheat, oats and barley, by thoroughly harroll. It will be ready to harvest in about any time from now until the middle of June, in this latitude. When sown for feeling in the head, which gradually merges into a se hay, we would not put on less than three fourths bushel per acre, but if for seed half the amount will do.

Diarrhœa in Calves.

Diarrrhoa is a very prevalent disease among calves. The suckling calf ii liable to be the subject of this affection, whenever the general health of the parent is impaired. In such cases the mother is to be treated instead of the calf; she, probably, is the subject of a deranged condition of the digestive organs, which can easily be remedied by the administration of a few doses of the following :-

porated with the food, or it can be given sequence of weaning the calf (in view of busbanding the cow's milk,) and feeding the juvenile on improper food. This kind of diarrhos must be treated as follows: let the calf have two ounces of porphate of lime, two drachms of carbonate of soda, of rost besides Podophiaia, or concentrated Mandrake and a quart of scalded milk; mix the same administer by means of a drenching horn, all of which tend to relax the accretions of the liver or bottle. It may be divided into "broken" doses, or may be given at once, as a and act mero prompt than blue pills or mercury, and

If the above remidies fail in arresting the without leaving any dangerous effects. In a billious diarrhoa, I should give three drachms of tincture of matico, every four hours, until the patient showed some signs of improvement .- Mr. Dadd ..

Use of Ice.

To drink ice-cold liquid at meals retards digestion, chills the body, and has been known to induce the most dangerous internal congestions. On the other hand, ice itself may be taken as freely as possible, not only without injury, but with the most striking advantage in dangerous forms of disease. If broke in sizes of a pea or bean, and swallowed as freely as practicable, without much chewing or crushing between, it will often be efficient in checking various kinds of diarrhosa, and has cured violent cases of Asiatic cholers. A kind of cushion of powdered ice kept to the entire scalp, has allayed inflammation of the brain, and arrested fearful convulsions, induced by too much blood there. Water as cold as ice can make it, applied freely to the throat, neck and chest, with a sponge or cloth, very often affords mirsculous relief, and if this be followed by drinking copiously of the same element the wetted parts wiped dry, and the child be wrapped up well in bed-clothes, it falls are worth a dollar to a sick man for every cent the into a delightful and life-giving slumber.
