Nupped like a bad in spring time. By a cold blighting storm : The frail young flower was with scorf And from surth's hower torn.

Yet not as mortal blossoms Did has pass away ; For Gods own hand has planted And bid the blosson grow.

And O ! my God in Heaven ! Witt thou my frail lafe guide -And which my days are ended. Transplant me by her side

Much as 1 miss my little Ina. I would not wish her back again But rather live so holy That I may much her there. Liss idge. June 17, 1865
