TO THE PATRONS OF THE

January 1st, 1866.

Come let's be gay

Usurp the rein,

But for an hour,

In sorrow deep

The people weep,

And wield the power

For four long years,

With sighs and tears,

And ask, will gladness ne'er return ?

Half slave, half free.

The John Brown raid

And now, says he,

The church and State

And yowed the Darkie should go thro'

And Beecher, who,

And doubts of hell,

Have both, of late,

Together sate

In grave debate,

If tales be true,

Is intidel.

The Darkie free,

Of purer blood,

Was the first fruit of that lalse speech ;

We cannot be ;

So Seward said-

Nearer and nearer he came, and as length Fom could hear him puffing close upon his heels.

At the same moment a fearful sight broke upon his view-a long black fin cleaving the smooth surface of the water like a knife.

His blood ran cold in his veins. The fin was that of a shark 1

Before he could utter a word, however, he felt a pair of hands grasp his apkles beneath the surface, and the next moment ascended to his throat. They grasped it -they pressed upon it like a vice. He struggled vainly to release himself. The terrible pressure caused his mouth to open. The salt water rushed into it, and he left that he was strangling-that he could live no longer. A horrible pain was in his head, a leaden weight seemed to have been
