Mr. Headley is one of themest promising writers of this country, and we have here one of his best books—one on which he can safely rest his fame. It possesses the unfatiguing charms of perfect simplicity and truth. There is graceful frankiness pervading the composition, which engages the interest of the reader in the author as well as in the subject. His rambles shout Rome, Paris and London exhibit a thousand traits of an ingenuous nature, upon which a man of taste
