COUNTY FINANCES.

I observe that the man who was never out of mischief squirms and whines because he did not get his share of county printing. Well, suppose he did not in 1850, who of the tax-payers cares, so that the work was only done right and not overcharged? He does not tell how much he drew in previous years for printing, nor how much he got even in 1850 from other officers than the Commissioners. The Treasurer, who lives in Montour county and through whom our county is yet in litigation for the monny our tax-payers have paid, gave his jobs of printing to Tate, and who cares or complains?

Tate evidently feels that the less said about contingent expenses the better for him, so he turns to the complaint that the printing of assessment books was put by the clerk under the head of books and book binding. Certainly that was the proper place for them to be accounted in. They were posted there when Mr. Mendenhall was Clerk, and when the books cost $66 a set. They were posted there when Mr. Webb printed them, and again when Tate himself printed a set. Was this then a "perversion" of the record? The only attention I can learn that he ever gave this account, was to try to get the printing of this set of books in 1850, and when he failed to get them, to beat down the price. An act so contemptible is of course beneath denunciation.

But complaint for printing comes with an ill grace from a man like him who on one occasion was compelled by the county commissioners to refund money which he had unfairly overcharged on a job. The tax-payers have some interest in knowing that fact. Felty Best used it as a thing over which to make a great noise about county-robbers and treasury leeches in Bloomsburg. Such things have and still do bring a heavy odium upon the honest people of our county, and used to create a deep-seated prejudice against the town.

We can hear of such general and sweeping charges of corruption from every corner of the county, and if the men who thus bring disgrace upon our county affairs are encouraged we shall hear more of it. The people of Luzerne understood this thing better and gave such a man not a cent's worth of county printing. They saw at Berwick he had been continually at war with every person in his way, and spit out his billingsgate slang upon every person who did not feed him with 'black mail" to his liking. He then commenced abusing the Luzerne commissioners and, after distracting the party there, abused himself out of that county.

As soon as he came here the Democratic party became distracted and divided, and disaster and defeat has been its recurring fate ever since. I have desired to see the people of the party and the county united and harmonious, and not the prey of unprincipled and selfish harpies.

I mentioned before, in brief, what swelled the contigent expenses of the county for the few last years. I should only have added to the other items a large sum of interest paid on money which the county was compelled to borrow No body ever pretended that the sums as published were incorrect, nor is there anything wrong in the items which make up the account. JUNIUS.

BARN BURNED.—We learn that on Saturday evening last the barn of Mr. John Watson, of Watsontown, North'd County, was struck by lightning, and with its conteats of Grain, Hay, &c., was consumed.

WHERE the Proprietor is enabled, by increased facilities, to supply the growing demand for HOVER'S INK, which its wide-spread reputation has created.

This Ink is now so well established in the good opinion and confidence of the American Public, that it is scarcely necessary to say anything in its favor, and the manufacturer takes this opportunity to say that the confidence thus secured shall not be abused.

In addition to the various kinds of Writing Ink, he also manufactures Adamantine Cement for mending Glass and China, as well as a superior Hair Dye; a trial only is necessary to insure its future use, and a Sealing Wax, well adapted for Druggists and Bottlers, at a very low price, in large or small quantities.

Sacred Scenes and Characters—By the Rev. J. T. Headley. This work may be very properly considered a companion to the "Sacred Mountains," by the same author. Its object is to illustrate and "render more life-like" the sacred writings. It is not the author's design to supersede the Bible. But his wish is excite a solicitude to obtain, and to become intimately acquainted and perfectly familiar with its history, doctrines and laws; to know its truth to imbibe its spirit, feel its power, and partake of its salvation; in a word, to prize in some measure as it deserves, this treasure which is indeed beyond price. We predict for it a circulation far beyond any of the author's former works.

[The News, Jan. 7th.

Rambles and Sketches—By Rev. J. T. Headley. We have not for a long time sat down to a book with more pleasing anticipations, or found those anticipations more fully realized, than in the perusal of the work before us, and we know it will be hailed with gratification by the many admirers of the talented author. His "Napoleon and his Marshals" was, perhaps, as popular and found at least as many enthusiastic readers as any book that can be mentioned. We think the Rambles and Sketches are destined to be as popular at least as any of his previously published works. There is not a dull chapter in the work, filled as it is with "an infinite variety." The author has ample room and verge enough for the employment of his fine talents to great advantage, and most successfully has he accomplished the task. The biographical sketch of the author is interesting and "well considered," and adds much to the value of the book, which is got up in a very neat and attractive style by the publisher.—See Portland Transcript, Dec. 13th.

Mr. Headley is one of themost promising writers of this country, and we have here one of his best books—one on which he can safely rest his fame: It possesses the unfatiguing charms of perfect simplicity and truth. There is graceful frankness pervading the composition, which engages the interest of the reader in the author as well as in the subject. His rambles about Rome, Paris and London exhibit a thousand traits of an ingenuous nature, upon which a man of taste will delight to linger. We predict for this a sale equal to that of any of the author's works.

[New York News.

The collection is one of which no author need be ashamed. It consists, indeed, of some of Mr. Headley's most brilliant and highly finished compositions of those specimens of his abilities by which he may be judged with the greatest safety to his fame as a word-painter and thinker.
