it the battle unaided, and in fact emvailability in our own party throug the friends of a great statesman's name! We came to almost doubt our own principles on political economy, until a true leader took the responsibility and showed the firmnes and iotelligence of a statesman. Dallas cared as little as Douglass does now when men talked of burning bim in effigy, and he recks as little when these creatures now fawn around him and bespatter him with their praise. *.

We temember too the manle and intalli gent defence of the constitution and the Un ion which Frazer and "common men" like him took in defence of the compromise measures of 1850-in favor of republican freedom-and against the dangerous aristo-cratic heresy of colonising vassalage. Then again he was right, while the Pennsylpanian' great man was leaching that Congress should and could legalize slavery on one side of the Missouri line and prohibit it on the oth-Even in this day of darkness and trial he is antagonistic to the Democratic doctring of popular sovereignly, and we "common men" of mediocro intellect must grope or way alone in the darkness.

Nor has Frazer, been less faithful or intelligent in his party usage or discipline than in its principles. In 1845 we turned with a in the eye and a pang in the heart from violence done to the cause of the peo ple in the election of Cameron to the Uni-ted State Senate. We faund intelligent men looking in vair for the leader of the party to its confidence by a vindication of that ne and organization which are essenthat to the success of any cause. Even then the Pennagivanian's mail of despised mendiocre intellect was, frarless, and true, and Frazer taught the lesson of trut which ma-ny a hyporitical demagogue has since atolo crawl into a warm nest. inte asi

We sincerely regret Fazer's onnetarel and unfortunate forced association with Camero's an this time, and perhaps we might clim the friendly right to chide him. But it is spre-ly very late in the day for the Pennsylvanian to grow virtuous to puritanic strictness, and to reprove the wantonness in Frazer of which Buchanan was long since guilty. Que without sin might cast these first stones at the offerder against filelity to party usage and discription, but the Pennsylvanien should first look back a few years, and then not quite so rashly despise the "mantly of intelligent no rashly despise the "manife of interfant charity." Its new editor has talent and fear-besoness which we admire; and by many hard blows at the right place is doing yeumau service to his party. If in the battle of the such men are torn a-way from us by its varied fate, we are sad but not vindictive, because we know their fleart is yet in the good cause. We know how sher toil and lime ripen the fruit in the political vineyard, those who were too lazy or timil to work sneak in and steal it away, and we write what we have left and seen

distant THE TIMES

We thick it a very fair estimente to say We thick it, a yeary fuir estimete to say that within the past year enough money has been lost in the country by forgeries, fail-ures and defalcations to equal the enormons State debt of Pennsylvania. Men of the best standing in society have been tempted into extravagant speculations, luxurious liv-ing and rain. It is tamptation, more than inclination that leads men to crime, and the spirit of the times has much to answer for in the hear of financial and mode winder the heap of financial and moral wrecks that lie everywhere strewed over the land to alatm and warn. In these visitations soci ety is reaping the idevitable restibution which follows the toleration of evil in, pri vate morals or public systems. When such outrages as the Galphin and Gardner affinirs can happen in government places, we need not be surprised that the Vondersmith forgeries, Schuyler frands and Meigg's

And who is to pay ? By these expedients, property is motgaged four times experients, property is motgaged four times over, and one debt is taxed to pay another. The indi-vidual has the four debts to pay; and as pay day approaches credit contracts on the same ratio as the demands for money in-crease. Prices are unnatural, and must come down

Only the sound views of our government and the wondrous influx, of wealth from California have delayed the day of reckon-ing thus long. In New York and the Weatern States the orasis is already heard, The free banking system in those States allowed credit to serve again as the basis of credit, and this offered double facilities for gening into dobt. The sore festered faster, and, the sooner bursts open. In Pensylvania we must efforte the day of suffering a little longer, but the cure will come in due time.
