with this irksome companion.

When I see a young man, just on the threshold of life, loitering away his time in unprofitable amusements and unworthy as sociations, which consume his precious seed ime, and burther him with evil influence which will probably go with him, and form a thorny pillow when he lies in the silent grave, I think that he is chaining himself to grave, I think that he is chaining himself to a ball. When a young man cuts off the restraint of early impressions, and enters the bar-room, there to spend his evenings, and perhaps his nights, in dissipation and companionship with sinners, whose god is Bacchus, and whose oblations are profane jests and godless sneers and licentious songs, I turn aside and weep, that he will madly forge and weld the links with which he is chasing himself to a ball. ing himself to a ball.

chaning himself to a ball.

When I see a young man elastic with hope, whose path points to certain success, or to undying fame, seeking relaxation cess, or to undying lame, seeking relaxation from the fatigues of business or the application of a student's life, at the gaming table, or the theatre, or on the bosom of unhallowed delights, I do verily feel assured that is chaining himself to a ball which will roll with its victim into a premature grave.

When I see a man suffering important en-gagements to slip by without fulfilment, from a habit of carelessness or want of energy, I feel assured that ere long experience will prove to him he has been chaining himsel will this to his seriow that he has been chaining himself to a ball.

When a young man forms a habit of extravagance and of living beyond his means, and thus squanders the bounties put into his hands for a virtuous and faithful stew-ardship, he will find that he is wasting the uncreated capital of a future which is not his, and is, moreover, chaining himself to a ball which will grow more rusty and bat-densome every day.

When I see a young woman, bright in all the loveliness of virgin prime, spending her time and consuming her intellect, in chasing the fictions of the novel, or the follies of the romance, oh, how gladly would I break the chain which binds her to such a ball?

When I see a young women neglecting the duties of a fireside, which should be a little paradise of bliss, and threading the mazy walks through the highway, "that she may be seen of men," I say to myself, "she is chaining herself to a ball!" When that fair maiden looks into a mirror and admires the beauty pictured there, and sets her heart on its outward adorsment, I think she is chaining herself to a ball.

When, in short, I see a young woman spending ber time in that which profiteth not, under teachings and allurements of vaniy or fashion, I cannot avoid saying to myself, "she is chaining herself to a ball."

Interest is paid at the rate of five per cent, commencing from the day of deposit, and ceasing lourteen days previous to the withdrawal of the money.

On the first day of January, in each year, the interest of each deposit is paid to the depositor, or added to the principal, as he may prefer.

The Company have now upwards of 3,500 depositors in the City of Philadelphia alone.

Any additional information will be given by addressing the Treasurer.

DIRECTORS:

The Directory will be illustrated in the best style, and printed in the best manner. The author has for six years been gathering together all the facts and tems in regard to the numerous steamboat disasters on 'he Western and Southern waters, and now intends publishing them in book form. The price of the work will be put at the low sum of One Dellar. Ten thousand copies will be issued for the beatmen; all others desirous of subscribing, will have to do so at once, as none will be printed unteas ordered in advance. This work is destined to have a circulation of over eight thousand copies, as the publishers are receiving large numbers of subscribers, per mail, from all parts of the county, daily. Some of the oldest boatmen, as well as most scientific men of the times, are contributors to the Steamboat Directory will be issued in October, and will be an ornament to the parlor as well as steamboat. By remitting One Dollar, post paid, you will receive a copy of the above work.

All communications and letters should be frontis on Third Street of said town, on the south side of said street, adjoining land of Robert B. Arthur on the east and south, and land of Daniel Shive's heirs on the west. Conditions of sale.—Ten per cent. of the purchase money to be paid on the day of sale; one half on the confirmation of the sale by court; and the balance on the first day of April next, with interest from the day of confirmation.
