From the Pennsylvanjan The State Senate

ent'election in our Commonweal nore than ordinary ability—men who will and to the reputation of that branch of the bate Legislature, and in-pire the party with hope and confidence in the future course of Pennsylvania legislation opon all important questions. For some years the majority in that party has been against the Democration continuent of the State, and although the Democracy were honesily and ably 'septe-sented by such mer as Forsyth and Bucka lew and Browne and Wright, still they could not stamp their principles those enactments which were to govern the people and influence the future destiny of the Old Key-

Now, however, the case is different. The Senate to meet in January next will be a faithful teflex of the popular will, while at the same time it will rank among its members men who are widely known for their intelligence and devotion to Democratic prm-ciples. In the front rank of these will stand Hon. Chatles R. Buckslew, the member elect from the XIIIth Senatorial Disirict, composed of Snyder, Northumberland, Montour and Columbia counties. Mr. Buckalew is unquestionably the ablest man of his received the encouragement of an intellireceived ine encouragement of a logislator, he gent and liberal people. Honorable industry in its varied departments has been rewardprogressive without being tinctered with graningism—cautious and conservative yet not fogish nor wedded to old forms which have long since lost their force and vitality. As a logical and convincing debater, Mr. Buckalew enjoys a high and deserved repufor past blessings, or weakens our trust for the future, in the Providences of Him who tation. Bold and learless in his denuncia tion of wrong, clear and lucid in arranging and presenting the truth, no subject can base through his mind without receiving from that dureth forever." A plenteous harvest has and presenting the truth, no subject can pass process either additional reasons why it crowned the labor of the husbandmanshould command the respect and support of others, or becoming so analyzed and dissected as to exhibit its defects in all their made such a man to meet it, and hence we hail with more than ordinary satisfaction the elses deformity. The present crisis demands just with more than ordinary satisfaction the elec-tion of Mr. Buckalew to the State Senate. The election of Hon. Wm. P. Schell from Bedford, Huntingdon and Somerset counties, composing XIXth District, is also a matter Under composing X1Xth District, is also a matter of just pixed to the Democracy. Mr. Schell's nomination was unsought by him. Nothing but the most ardent solicitatious from his on-merous friends would induce him to accept the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do After consenting to be a candidate, he went into the contest with his usual characteristic enthusiaem and ability, and has won a vic-tory almost unprecedented in our State. Mr. tory almost unprecedented in our State. Mr. Schell has served two sessions in the house all worldly pursuits they assemble on that of Representatives, the last of which he was chosen Speaker, and presided over that body with marked ability. He is still a young his past goodness and mercies; and while man, with the brightest future before him, and will hold a commanding position in the Senate, slibough composed of some of our most talented men.

The Ild District will be represented by Hon. Thomas S. Bell. This gentleman was for many years an Associate-Jacice of the Supreme Court of Penneylvania, and will make a highly intelligent and useful member of the Senate.

As Pennsylvanians we feel a just pride in thus alluding to the mental and intellectual stature of the prominent newly elected mem-bers of the State Senate. They will make their mark upon the coming Legislature of the State, and at a time when most important questions will be presented for consider ation. It is alike fortunate for themselves and the Commonwealth, that the right men have been elevated to power at the right
