

From the Danville Democrat. EXECUTION OF MRS. TWIGGS. At Danville, on Friday, October 22d, 1858.

This wretched being was executed between 10 and 11 o'clock this morning, in the jail yard, at this place, without making any confession of her crime, and protesting her innocence up to the last moment.

Early in the morning, our streets began to present quite a lively appearance, indicating that something unusual was about to take place. Many people were seen wending their way to the jail, and numbers of both sexes were admitted to see the gallows, which was the same that had been used for the execution of Clark, four weeks ago.

For two nights, several kind-hearted and sympathizing ladies remained with the unfortunate woman in her lonely cell, comforting her bodily and spiritually in the last hours of her earthly trials. Mrs. Ware, Mrs. Unger and Mrs. Ephlin spent the last night with her, and from them we learn, that she slept from between 11 and 12 o'clock, up to 3 this morning, apparently calmly and without showing any signs of restlessness.

In the early part of the evening, she rose from her bed and voluntarily knelt down to engage in silent prayer, with apparent fervor and true sincerity—calling audibly at times upon Jesus to save her immortal soul; and when Mrs. Ware engaged in loud prayer, she joined with earnestness in her petitions to the throne of God.

Her two children—one a little boy, about 7 years old, the other a girl of about 10 years, were resting in her arms during the whole night. The sight was affecting in the extreme, as she pressed her little ones to her palpitating heart, kissing them lovingly and carrying them tenderly. Copious tears flowed from her eyes, and her feelings can be more easily imagined than described.

Her daughter particularly seemed much affected, yet, when her mother, at times, sobbed and cried aloud, the little girl braced herself up and begged, in tender accents, to be composed and not to cry so much. On arising in the morning, Mrs. Twigg dressed the children carefully and fondled them with great emotion. And when shortly afterwards, Mrs. Young, the Sheriff's lady, entered her cell, with a new and neat black dress, that had been made expressly for the occasion, she patiently suffered herself to be dressed with apparent composure.

During the night, Mrs. Ephlin questioned her at one time pointedly as to her innocence or guilt of the crime for which she was soon to suffer upon the scaffold, when she answered, in rather a stern and sharp tone of voice, that she was innocent, quoting, at the same time, the words of the gospel, "Judge not; lest ye be judged."

she would be rewarded for it hereafter, and, in a short prayer, commended her soul to God.

The Sheriff then told her brother to leave the room, as he was about to perform his last duty, but the unfortunate man cried aloud, "save my sister," clinging to her, and refusing to go. He had finally to be taken away from her by force.

At 10 minutes past 10 o'clock the prisoner was taken from her cell, and linking arms with the Rev. Mr. Harden, accompanied by the Sheriff and her spiritual advisers, they all proceeded in procession to the scaffold. She ascended the steps slowly yet steadily crying aloud, and on reaching the platform was seated on a chair. The Rev. Mr. Stover then read the 15th chapter of Luke, Mrs. Twigg still greatly affected and crying.

The Sheriff told her, to speak now if she had something to say, when she answered loudly and firmly, "This is a hard death, and the Saviour has died for me, and I fear not death. I never see or know anything about the poisoning of Catharine Ann Clark or my husband. I fear not death, I have nothing to regret, only the leaving of my orphan children—"The Lord gave, and the Lord has taken away." Mr. Harden then made a solemn and fervent prayer in her behalf, whereupon the ministers bade her farewell. She thanked them for their kindness, and burst out again into tears, when they shook hands at parting.

The Sheriff, having pulled the cap over her face, pinioned her arms and adjusted the rope around her neck. During this operation she cried aloud, and repeated several times: "I die innocent, I am not guilty."

The Sheriff then left the platform, and standing upon the steps, with the lever, which removed the slides, in his hand, asked her, "Mary Twigg, are you still alive?" She answered, "yes, sir, I am," and at the same moment the drop fell, and her soul was ushered into the presence of her God. This was at precisely half past 10 o'clock, and after hanging for 38 minutes, she was pronounced dead by the physicians and the jury, and lowered into a neat coffin.

The doors of the jail yard were then thrown open, and the large and promiscuous crowd, who had been standing outside all morning, eagerly pressed in to get a glimpse of her body.

The curiosity of the multitude having been gratified, the coffin was closed, placed upon a wagon, and taken, at the instance of her brother, to a farm near Little Roaring Creek, where he resides, there to be buried by him.

STAR OF THE NORTH. WM. H. JACOBY, EDITOR. BLOOMSBURG, WEDNESDAY, October 27, 1858.

Horrible Accident. We are pained to announce the death of Allison Shutt, son of Elisha Shutt, which took place on last Saturday evening, the 23d inst. He met his death under the most fearful and heartrending circumstances that it has ever been our lot to record.

The circumstances attending the result of this young and interesting boy's death, as far as we have been able to learn, is as follows:—It seems that the young boy had gone to the house of Mr. Gordon R. Goff, who resides in this place, for the purpose of staying awhile there in the evening, as Mr. Goff and wife was paying a visit to some of their friends in Briarcreek, and while occupied in reading, one of the sons of Mr. Goff went up stairs for the purpose of getting some apples, and after opening the stair door, young Shutt observed a gun standing in the corner, and asked if it was loaded, whereupon Mr. Goff's son replied that it was not, when, it seems, that Shutt asked to have the gun handed to him, by the son of Mr. Goff endeavored to do, but it was loaded, and by some cause or other, while passing it over to him was accidentally discharged, and the whole load taking effect in the head of young Shutt, blowing his brains out, they flying clear across the room.

He was sitting down at the time immediately in front of Mr. Goff's daughter, and dropped his head into her lap. The explosion had put out the lights that were burning in the room at the time, and she supposed that he was not shot, but soon the awful truth came over her, for it was only but a few seconds until she felt the warm blood trickling over her hands, and she immediately went to the house of Mr. Shutt and informed his mother of the sad accident—but, alas it was too late, he never spoke after the discharge of the gun, and scarcely five minutes had elapsed before his soul was in eternity.

He was in many instances different from other boys of his age, studious, of an unexceptionable character, and above all he was obedient to his parents. He was liked by all who knew him;—honest and upright; a great lover of the different works, that tend to things of a future world, for at the time of his departure from this earthly sanctuary, or immediately before, he was reading the Life of Christ. Thus has another just in the bloom of life been called away from us so unexpectedly, and too one has been called who could have looked for eminence in days to come. Alas how true that man knoweth not when the Son of man cometh.

His remains were interred in the Methodist burying ground on Sunday last, and it was followed to its final resting place by a large concourse of people, and scarcely a dry eye was to be seen. The funeral sermon was delivered in the evening by the Rev. Mr. Gayer, in the M. E. Church in this place, and was largely attended.

Esquire Morris held an inquest over the body, and the verdict of the jury was rendered in accordance with the facts above mentioned—accidental death.

THE ELECTION IN BALTIMORE.—As usual the election in Baltimore has ended in bloodshed. How long the conservative and law abiding citizens of that city are going to suffer such evils to continue, we are unable to say. Even men were taken from their boats, at the wharves, and forced, by the aid of the revolver and bowie knife, to go to the polls and deposit fraudulent votes.

Howard & Hope's Express Companies. These companies are doing an extensive business all throughout the United States, with much credibility to themselves, and affording accommodation beyond limit.

Their Express cars are attached to the daily passenger trains, by which arrangement they are enabled to carry goods from all ports and stations with safety and dispatch. And in order that these Companies may have their business properly attended to at each city, town or trading and shipping port they appoint some responsible man as an acting Agent, to forward and receive moneys and goods. At this place, our townsman and fellow citizen, ASHURB C. MENSCH, Merchant has received the agency, for this burg and neighborhood, and is acting in the capacity of his appointment with integrity and ability. He is agent for Howard & Co., and also for Hope's Express Co., as you will understand; and can be found at his store ever ready to attend to the functions of his office. All business entrusted in his care will be properly and honestly attended to. These express transportations are of great convenience to the business people, and have the full confidence of the public whenever you find the interests of these enterprise entrusted in the care and supervision of such men as A. C. Mensch.

Autumn. We are now fairly in that season when all earth seems to be wearing its mantle of yellow. The farmer is now busy gathering into his "crib" his golden ears of corn, and the much needed fodder for the benefit of the brute creation. The leaves of the forest are fast dropping to the ground, and all nature is now presenting its most beautiful garment. Everything seems to be inspiring man to hurry on through the busy season to prepare for the days of pleasure that is to come.

Summer has departed, with all its pleasures and enjoyments, its green fields and fragrant roses. The merry song of the robin is heard no more. It has departed to a warmer clime, to return again at the opening of joyous spring. Alas, all those pleasures have departed, but will they ever return to us. Echo, only answers—perhaps.

Dogs. If somebody would "dock" the dogs of this town, by cutting their tails off close behind their ears he would confer an inestimable favor. This curtailment of the fair proportions of some of the canines would allow persons to pass along without danger of losing their limbs, or being partially "chawed up." None can entertain more kindly feelings than we do for the noble specimens of the race canine, yet we do protest against the maintenance of such countless numbers of ill-fell, ill-looking and miserable curs as are to be seen each day in this town. The poorer that a family is the more dogs it seems to own, and it is doubtful if there is many in town who have not a life interest in this species of stock. Among the most wretched residents children may be famishing, yet they nearly all manage to keep dogs. We don't know that there is any remedy for this evil save that every citizen who appreciates its extent should, vi et armis, abate it if possible, by dispatching the delinquent quadruped.

New Millinery Establishment.—We feel gratified to learn that Mrs. A. JENKINS has recently opened a new millinery establishment, in the building formerly occupied by Mrs. Rupert, directly opposite Mrs. Leacock's Confectionery store, where she will be glad to see all those who are in want of anything in her line. She has constantly on hand a good supply of Bonnets and Ribbons, and she is also prepared to execute all kinds of mantua-making. She is pleasing and obliging, therefore, we bespeak for her, a full share of patronage. Give her a call before going elsewhere, and our word for it, you (ladies in particular) will not go away dissatisfied.

The Baltimore Election. The Baltimore Exchange in an article on the recent election in Baltimore, says:—"The fact that Mr. Swann has been re-elected to the Mayoralty by violence and fraud is less creditable to our city, than the supposition that he has been retained in office by the voluntary suffrages of its people. The truth is, that there was no election on Wednesday, not even the form or pretence of one. From the opening of the polls in morning until their closing in the evening, in nineteen wards in the city, they were occupied and held in the hands of armed bodies, who, with comparatively few exceptions as the returns will show, permitted nobody to vote who did not openly show and as openly vote the "American ticket. That ticket, moreover, was so marked upon the back with a blue chequered or diamond shaped pattern, resembling that upon the back of an ordinary playing card, that, however folded, it could be recognized without difficulty in the hand of the voter. By this means, the secrecy of the ballot was effectually destroyed, and the ruffians who guard every avenue to the polls were enabled to tell at a glance whose votes might be admitted, and whose votes were to be excluded. Not content, however, with excluding legal voters opposed to the election of Mr. Swann, an immense quantity, probably not less than from two thirds to three fourths of the whole number polled—of purely illegal votes, were cast in his favor—not only men but boys, frequently voting—not twice or thrice, but ten or twelve times, not only in different wards but in the same ward—not at different hours of the day merely, but at a half a dozen times in succession, with scarcely an attempt at concealment or disguise. Other votes were polled which were purely fictitious—tickets being handed to the judges, which were falsely represented to have been tendered by persons in omnibuses and carriages, who were unable to get out and walk to the window. In short, every trick and stratagem which fraud could invent, and every extremity to which violence could resort, were successfully employed for the purpose of electing Mr. Swann."

We are authorized to announce that a meeting will be held in the Academy next Tuesday evening for the purpose of forming a Literary Society. Both old and young will participate.

*THE PRINTER for September, a beautiful Monthly devoted to the Art, is on our table. It is a work beautifully executed, and filled with choice reading.

The Printer is of immense value to printers. Its variety of new and beautiful specimens of borders can not be excelled. While the Printer is particularly adapted to the wants of printers, it is worthy the attention of the general reader. Published Monthly at $1.00 per annum, by Henry & Huntington, No. 1 Spruce St., N. Y.

THEN AND NOW.—Previous to the late election, the organs of the Opposition party harped continually upon the idea that the iron manufacturers had been ruined by Democratic policy; and that President Buchanan's Administration had produced nothing but ruin and distress. Now, when the election is over, and the end desired by those who published these charges is accomplished, the tune is changed, and whole columns of their papers are filled with glowing accounts of the prosperity of business—of large iron establishments going into operation, and of the good time dawning upon us generally.

What has produced the sudden change? Certainly not the policy of the Republicans, for they are not yet in power. But the fact is that the hue and cry about distress, and the prostration of business, was raised merely to deceive the people into the support of Republicanism, and that object being secured, the facts need no longer be perverted.—How long will the people be deceived by these dishonest tricks of scheming politicians? It is officially announced that Hon. J. Glancy Jones, of Pennsylvania, has accepted the appointment of Minister to Austria. He will, of course, resign his seat in Congress, thus rendering a special election necessary.
