STAR OF THE NORTH.

American Agriculture.

It is a melancholy truth and one that reflects much on the skill and foresight of American farmers, that while the wheat crop of England has increased at least fifty per cent. in the last century, that of the United States has fallen off in nearly the same proportion. A century ago, New England, Delaware and Virginia raised wheat as an ordinary crop; now a wheat field is a rarity in these States, and they may be considered no longer wheat pro-may be considered no longer wheat producing regions. Portions of New York, that formerly produced thirty bushels to the acre, now seldom average over eight bushels; and Ohio, new as she is, with her virgin soil, does not average over thirteen bushels to the acre.

If we go on as we have for the past century, from bad to worse in our tillage, the lands in Ohio, in a half a century from this time, will not produce wheat enough to supply our own wants. It is less than that time since Vermont was a large wheat exporting State; now she does not export a ters can act as agents, on the same terms.

boast that we can feel al! over Europe from at he old occupation.

Our surplus wheat, we have not to improve All persent extending the circulation our surplus wheat, we have got to improve our farming, or swallow the unpalatable import our breadstuffs from

We talk much of the worn out lands o Maryland, Virginia and Carolina; but New York, that has destroyed the productive quality of her soil, so that she can get but eight bushels where she formerly got thirty, and Ohio, so she gets but thirteen bushels where she formely got thirty five, have the same prospects before them. The great question regards the future; the passed can not be recalled, nor remedied.

One great source of deterioration in exhausting our soils, has been in the manufacture of potash, and the export of it to for eign countries, or to our manufactories.— In this way our soil has been robbed of an ingredient without which no plant can mature, and no cereal grain form. As our forests have disappeared, this source of deterioration must be cut off, but a serious injury has been inflicted, which nothing can cure but the re-furnishing of the potash to the soil. How it can be done is the great inquiry for our farmers.

The export of our floor has been another source of exhaustion to the soil, in taking away from it the phosphate of lime that is away nomit the phosphate of fime that is necessary to give plumpness to the kernel. This exhaustion can be more estily remedied by the application of bone dust. For many years the English farmers have cara large traffic in old bones, paying five dollars a ton for them. This has stimulated many to gather them up, and ever to rob the battlefields of Europe of the bones of their brave defenders to enrich the wheat fields of England. By this course, the fields of England have been made more productive, while the countries from which the bones are taken have been permanently injured by their loss.

The English, too, have sent to every is land of South America, to procure nitre in the form of guano, to fertilize their fields. while the Americans not only import little or none, but negligently wastes that which nature forces on them — Ohio Furmer.

The theory and practice of wood engra ving are in principle the reverse of engrav ing on copper; in the latter the lines to be printied are sunk or cut in the plate—these being filled with ink, are, by means of a rolling press, transferred, in effect, to the paper. In wood engraving, on the contrary, the parts that are to appear must be raised, or rather left untouched, and hence it is frequently termed relief engraving. In printing, the surface is only charged with ink, and the impression taken as from types. The copper engraver rarely uses more than three tools of the kind called gravers. The artist on wood requires, according to circumstances, from ten to fifteen or eight een, called engravers-tools for tinting and sculp ture, the latter being used for cutting out the broadest parts which are to be left white On account of the superior texture and compactness of "box" wood, it is about the only kind now used for any work of impor

The surface of the wood to be engraved is carfully planed, scraped, &c., so as to render it as mooth as possible, in order to receive the drawing which must be put on the block itself, previously to commend ing the engraving. The artist, in its execution, has to arrange the stength and direction of the lines required for the various parts and distances, so that the printed impression, though composed of different series of interlineations, may present the same character in effect as the original drawing. Much care is requisite, on the part of the engraver, to prevent a delicate sign from being rubbed during the process of cutting; it is usually, therefore, covered with paper, which is removed by degrees as required.

It is apparent, at once, how much de-pends upon the skill of the engraver, when it is considered, that with every line cut by the tool, a portion of the effect of his original is removed, and his recollective powers and taste must be in constant exercise, to preserve the points of the design—and the block must be wholly engraved before any impression can be taken. The copper en progressive proofs of his works, and has his original drawings unipaired, constantly before him. The latter has also another important advantage, in what is termed tinting, inasmuch as all his skies and flat backgrounds can be not on the plate itself by grounds can be cut on the plate itself by mechanical means, and his various tints are thereby produced with every required deli-supply our own wants. It is less than that time since Vermont was a large wheat exporting State; now she does not export a bushel; but imports at least two thirds of all the flour consumed in that State. Instead of increasing the productiveness of our wheat land, as in England, our wheat region its diminished more than one half, and the productive quality of what is still used has diminished in equal proportion.

This is a practical, matter-of-fact view of the case, and one that addresses itself seriously to the common sense of the farmer and national economist. Instead of the vain boast that we can feel all over Europe from the control of the case, and clear for herself $2 to $4, while she would have made only 75 cents at the jold occupation.
