Resolved, That the convictions of the Democratic party of Pennsylvania remain unshaken in the wisdom and justice of ade quate protection of iron, coal, wool, and of the great staples of our country, based upon the necessities of a reasonable revenue system of the General Government; and approving of the views of President Buchanan upon the subject of specific duties, we earnestly desire our Representatives in Congress to procure such modification of the existing laws as the unwise legislation of the Republican party in 1857 renders absolutely necessary to the prosperity of the great industrial interests of the State of Pennsylvania.—Passed at the Reading Convention, March 2, 1860.

The Convention-Our Nominees.

The object and design of a political Convention must be to consult as to who are the most proper and unexceptionable persons in a party to be its candidates. Strength, fitness and consistant political character, must be the elements to make up the result, if the work of the Convention is to inspire the popular will, for the township elections first proposed, we resolved at once to give the day. He will make an honest and safe Legislator, to business. and if nominated, be triumphantly elected.

For Prothonotary MR. EVERLY was nominate again, because the general speech was that he had made a good officer, and he "might as well be elected for life;" and is no small thing to have this said of a man for over a quarter of a century. A man who wears so well in the public judgment, must have more than common traits of character, and be a safe depository of the public trust As he has never been defeated before the people the presumption gains strong ground that he never can be.

MR. LEE, the nominee for Register and Recorder, is a gentleman of correct business habits, who will make, as he has already proved himself, an attentive and obliging officer. All men for, and with whom he has done business, speak well of him, and many can bear witness to his kind favors. He is an excellent pensman, and a number one accountant. His papers and business are always found in perfect order, and by every qualification and circumstance of life, he deserves the office for which he is nominated. He is a Democrat, consistant and honest, but never noisy or violent. He is the right man for the place which he is nominated, and the people of Columbia county owe him their undivided support .-He has filled this office for several years with an eye single to the interests of his constituents, as well as kept a close watch of his official duties that they were not in any manner neglected, but faithfully and carefully attended to.

WILLIAM LAMON, who is nominated for Commissioner, is an honest Democratic farmer of Briarcreek. He has always been a faithful hard working member of the party which placed him in nomination, and never sought office. He has managed his own business well, and knows the wishes and feelings of the laboring man and the taxpayer. His neighbors all respect him, and he

This arrangement violates the Constitution in a double sense, for it leaves the electoral ticket with less electors than are required, and places those on it, who cannot be electors In the case of the election of the ticket, Douglas or Breckinridge would stand in the place of an elector, and of course would be absent when they sho'd come to meet at Harrisburg. The State law provides for filling vacancies, but in this case there would not be such an one as contemplated, and the Electoral College would be unconstitutional, because not full We would like to hear the Democratic journals of the State upon the subject, as this ferees. is the first time the question has risen.
