I WANT TO BE A SOLDIER.

A PARODY.

BY J WARD CHILDS.

I want to be a soldier, And with the soldiers stand ; A knapsack on my shoulder, A musket in my hand; And with my bayonet gleaming. So glorious and so bright, And for our country fight

Though I should oft be wounded, I would not shed a tear : Though in the midst of danger I ne'er would feel a fear; But brave and patriotic, Like our brave sires I'd fight. And with ten thousand soldiers, Put rebels all to flight.

I know I'm young and tender-But, mother dry your tears, For many young as I am, Have joined the volunteers, And mother, should I perish, And for my country die, I'd think of you and sister, And meet you in the sky.

Then let me be a soldier, And with the soldiers stand A knapsack on my shoulder, A musket in my hand; And with my bayonet gleaming, So glorious and so bright, I'd join our gallant army. And for my country fight.

From the Atlantic Monthly. THE GREAT PIGWACKET-CENTRE SCHOOL REBELLION.

A TANKER SCHOOL-MASTER'S ADVENTURE.

The advent of Master Langdon to Pigwacket Centre created a much more lively sensation than had attended that of either of his predecessors. Looks go a good ways all the world over, and though there were several good looking people in the place, and Major Bush was what the natives of the town called a 'handsome man,' that is, big, between two non-conductors, in the shape deal of experience to read a simple coun- or two of them looking towards the door, as out of batred to Douglas and eagerness for What they desire is, a war policy that will of striking for the heart of a rebel loc. gant roung fellow, Hwith Ithel natural air which grows up with carefully bred young persons, was a novelty. They hold the purse strings of Europe, and are able to buy all Jernsalem whenever the owners are disposed to sell. Can it be possible that the Turk will sell out, and that men of this generation will live to see the Restoratin of Israel to the Holy Land?

DRINKING UP JORDAN .- The celebrated J. Vardman, of Kentucky, though a stiff Baptist, always manifested the utmost courtesy toward others denominations, and attended their ministry when he could. Being at the monthly meeting of the Presbyterian church on a very hot day, he sat, as was the custom, near the pulpit, and close to the table in front. Being thirsty, he several times drank from a bowl of water on the table. WE ARE TOLD to weigh our thoughts . probably supposing it was there for the purpose. But at the close of the sermon the minister called for certain infants to be brought forward for "baptism," and, de-To keep warm on a cold day, women scending to the table discovered there was sitting near, he requested it might be filled.
