VOLUME 14.

BLOOMSBURG, COLUMBIA COUNTY, PA., WEDNESDAY JUNE 11, 1862.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY BY WM. H. JACOBY.

Office on Main St., 3rd Square below Market, TERMS :- Two Dollars per annum if paid within six months from the time of subscribing: two dollars and fifty cents if not paid within the year. No subscription taken for a less period than six months; no discontinuance permitted until all arrearages are paid, unless at the option of the editor.

The terms of advertising will be us follows:
One square, twelve lines, three times, $1 00 Every subsequent insertion, One square, three months, 3 00

ADDRESS DELIVERED BY LEVIL. TATE. Before the Greenwood Literary Society. MAY 3, 1862.

MAN :-- Educated-Neglected. LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

We have chosen for this evening's disbe a ble to do it that justice its importance thy fellows-they are men. imperatively demands. May we not in duction we proceed to the discussion of the subject under consideration.

It was not the scraph form that bathes that was before the mind's eye of the Seer of Horeb, when his inspired pen recorded these memorable words :- "In the image of God created He him." It was not the dian glory of that world, whose Sun is the Eternal, of which he wrote. He thought not of the mighty intellect and the majestie person of the towering arch angel -who ment. the Throne and renders highest homage of the truth of this position, than to our to denovan. . Nor yet did he sheak of one of the swift-winged band, who take their willing flight from world to world, at the bidding of Him whom they delight to serve. No. It was of Him to whom all these are ministering spirits-it was of Man he

When the earth was made the morning stars sang together the praise sublime of Him who breathed it into being; but its creation was not alone the subject of their song. The sons of God shouted for joy as they beheld the beautiful scenery of the infant world, fresh from its Maker's band, But it was not its Eden, its wide extended plains-its majestic mountains, its lovely vallies, its flowery meads, its grassy della its toaming water-falls, its silvery lakes, its mighty oceans, that moved their raptures for their own native clime were scenes 'more passing fair. But in the Councils of Eternity they had heard God say, "Let us make Man in our own image," and it was the view of Earth, as the birth-place of Man, the intellectual and the moral, that tuned their song and gave tone to their joy.

And what is he at whose nativity the "chiming spheres were moved," and for whom this resplendent earth was called into existence? Where is he upon whose very many illustrious exceptions; yet, leafore-head the finger of God has indelibly ving out of the question the vast prepondwritten immortali v? Alas-

"We may not seek for the long lost gem. But groveling low and forgotten now, With its lustre dimin'd and its brightness gode, If seemed a thing to be trodden upon,"

Fallen! and how fallen! Is that he? That abject drivelling thing, who in- tattered garb with idiotic mein, reels from blinted, his moral powers debased, the such pleasant strains respondent to the magic touch of affection and of love-in tellectual and moral character of his counsoul, and mind and feature, the very car- try, and in his mad chase along the great icature of humanity! If that be Man. Lucifer, the Son of the morning, had not lead him, if he does not over-ride and more de ply fallen!

Is that he, who sits, cronched and shivering in his cold and cheerless chamber. over his heaps of glittering coin, with palsied and trembling hand clutching his unholy idol; starting at every sound, his ev- pluck from the way-side the imperishable ery breath a panie, lest it prove the step of one who shall despoil him of that which alone may prove the true glory of that to him is more than his life's blood, fam- crown for which he is contending. ishing and dving in the midst of plenty. for want of sustenance which his unhalwith his passing breath, cursing his hard on to the accomplishment of his purposes

some dangeon, loaded with chains, sits who sustained by his timely aid, or even brooding over his hatred and his crimes- by his forbearance-might have risen the all his demoniac passions-envy, malice, monument of his beneficence-thus reaching revenge, stamped like the curse of Cain his goal-then dies and leaves not one upon his brow, a very demon incarnate! trace behind to show that the world was

Is that he? that poor, shallow prating | ing lived in it, or performed upon its stage. who with the beasts of the field and the form of the sea, and the fishes of the sea, and every living thing from the great Levisthan, down to the veriest ephemeral that sports in the sun-beam, each perpetua ing its species from creation until now—who, with the plants of the earth, from the word of the seath, from the modest violet, and the tiny blade of the modest violet, and the tiny blade of the sea, and raise his thoughts from the modest violet, and the tiny blade of to draw his seal forth in grateful, pleasing the world to make the world to hear (un heard of the sea, and gave the world to hear (un heard of the sea, and the fishes of the sea, and the sea, then the fishes of the sea, and the sea, then the sea this that the sea this which taught Copennicus to the twain. It was this which taught Copennicus to the sea, then the was this which taught Copennicus to the constellations and gave him a name to endure while nighty's sable nantle shall retain a single gem. It was this which stirred the depths of Luthen's with everything "around, above, below," and quite delapidated), a sten of a tobacco pipe, portion of a horse-shoe, a lended ten with everything "around, above, below," and raise his thoughts from the world to hear (un heard the world to hear (un heard to the sea, and the train that the sea, the sea that the sea th ure on a single leaf-who, with the span the vast machinery of the revolving spheres nity, his rightful destiny. ever fresh in view-

"The enwearied sun that day by day, Doth his creator's power display," the moon-'That nightly to the listening earth. Repeats the story of her birth."

"The stars that round her burn, And all the planets in their turn,"

The stupendous system at the contemplation of whose glories the mind quails and ous page, but lives and dies and is foreotfaints into dizzy blindness, the ten thous- ten: and millions of radient orbs that in etercollision; is it man, we say, that with the they are mortal. proofs of a creative and over-ruling power, before him, that he cannot escape their of human history. contemplation, will so idiotically, so disthat all these, are but "the workings of a blind charce;" and that "there is no God!" eussion, a subject of universal interest, Blush! Blush!! oh humanity, and hide and our only regret is, that we shall not thy head for very shame, for all these are the earth, his burthen may be as heavy, might dwell, and the theatre be opened for any short comings on the part of your of their exalted calling, fail in the accomunworthy speaker With this brief intro- plishment of their high destiny. Many there are who stand fair with their fellows, sternly honest, contending for the rigid ful hilment of every letter in the bondin the crystal stream whose placid tide whose fair name not one breath of dishonflows from beneath the Throne of God, or may ever stain; who yet with daily, yea, hourly opportunities of achieving great and giorious things, appreciate them not-who with the harvest field of the world and their own minds ever open for their labor, cherub that poised on gossamer pinion, never put in the sickle to gather in the sports and basks continually in the mereacts done to others; or never garner for themselves a single sheaf into the storehouse of moral and intellectual entertain-> own land-a land biessed above all others in everything which may render a people happy and useful. A land pregnant with the destinies of the world and of our race-rayored with facilities for the achievement of everything great and no ble; crowned with blessings, physical, intellectual, political, moral and religious, above any other which the sun shines up on-a land of free institutions, of natural resources beyond computation, of mountains and valleys, of fertile fields and exhaustless mines, a land of rivers and of lakes, of prairies and of forests, a land extending from Ucean to Ocean; from the Aristook to the hio Grande, and to which the giver of all things has denied noth ing. Yet how is this once happy land like one vast field of strife and carnage, each man contending with his fellow, not for the mastery of the achievement of deeds of usefulness; not for the victory of raising man to his native level, and crowning him with glory and honor, - not that the prosperity of the land of his birth be enhanced and her sacred institutions perpetuated, but that set may be exalted .-Sad, sad, indeed, would be the fate of our much loved country, were there not many, erance of the vicious and degraded, how large a majority of the remainder pass selfishly down the stream of life in pursuit of their own aggrandizement, or settle down in imbecile supineness and fail to

How often does the professional and public man lose sight of the noble, maghis wine, his intellect clouded, his feelings unnimous deeds, which alone constitute true greatness! How often is he unmindharp unstrung that was wont to wake ful of the healthful influence he may bring to bear in forming and sustaining the inhigh road, whither his ambitious aspirings trample under foot those who may chance to stand in his way, he forgets the word of kindness and encouragement, which may gladden the heart and lighten the busthen of an humble traveler, and neglects to flowers of benevolence and good will which

How often the man of commerce, though priding himself on being the violator of no lowed avarice alone has denied him; and law, blinded by his desire for gain, passes fate that had not formed his soul of gold, even at the sacrifice of his own comfort, that he might forever have had his God to and rises in the scale of wealth, letting pass, unimproved, ten thousand golden Is that he, who, in his damp and loath- opportunities of dispensing good to others, one whit the better or wiser from his hav-

dunce, who with the broad resplendent page of nature spread out before him, with borer, because in the eye of pride and seem of seem of seem of the lagrange of nature spread out before him, with borer, because in the eye of pride and seem of seem of seem of the lagrange gingly, who with the varying seasons accomplishing their established rounds—

spring succeeding winter; Summer follow because he may not wield the lever of ing Spring; Autumn stepping in the foot ARCHIMEDES puts not forth the strength orints of Summer, and Winter coming of his own, and suffers his own talent to again in the wake of Autumn, in unerring lie buried and unimproved in the earth, regularity for almost unnumbered years, because peradventure, for a starting capiwho with the beasts of the field and the tal, the necessary means at first may have And revealed forth to their vision that open before his eye, he reads not its glori- laurels.

Enough of this dark vision. We turn.

motive. He is a better public man, for and win an imperishable name and fame. his ambition is to be the benefactor of his country and his kind. He better wields way of application :-

for the mere gratification of selfish pur- ory in death.

and grudgingly to his work, like the goaded galley slave, but feeling that his fellow-being has a demand upon him, and ing man is sweet." He envys not the great THESE ARE OUR JEWELS." their palaces, for with the cheerful spirit and light step of conscious integrity, he "walks 'neath nature's generous dome one of her own noblemen." No artificial excitement is needed to relieve his soul from the ennui of the slothful; for there is music for him in every breeze and beauty

It has been truly and beautifully said "The most sublime spectacle is a great and good man striving with adversity." He quails at nothing. Neither toil, nor privation, nor the laugh of scorn, of 'this dread world," can appal him. Kno wing and believing that TALENT is a gift o' the most High-of origin Divine-the noral man teaches him that he is but a trustee of the sacred charge, to improve, advance and subserve the condition of his fe lowman, and imbued with this hi h and holy principle, he blenches at no obstacle, cowers at no adversity. His march is onward, proudly onward, knowing no goal

"The man whose mind is firmly bent, Upon some great and good intent, Serene beholds the angry cloud. Nor can the tempest fierce and loud, His stubborn virtue tame."

Asking and seeking for no sordid reward-"walking erect in God's own image."the consciousnesss of fulfilling man's true

-Than brightest gold.

How gratifying is the thought, that as the world has been borne onward from the creation in the accomplishment of its destiny, under the guiding hand of the Most High, man has performed the work. All have not slept-all have not lived in vain-all have not cumbered the ground. I hough adverse winds have blown, his barque has triumphantly stem'd the gale until he may "soar untrodden heights and seem at home where angels bashful look.' All is not lost. Though shattered be the diadem of his glory, it is still imperishable. Its gems may yet be gathered, and the defilement. which for ages has obscured their brightness, wiped away; they may be re-set, in a noble crown, and with re-doubled brilliancy blaze forever.

Long is the catalogue of illustrious names which have arisen in the different ares of the world, to wipe away the blot from the escutcheon of man's honor, and in the sense of his true dignity and worth .- in the consciousness of his destiny-ha; man found the mainsprings of action, which gave those bright beacon lights to the page of history.

It was this which moved on the chaos of the human mind and brought order out of confusion. It was this which led So-CRATES and PLATO, into those nighty reasonings, which have resulted in sys tems which have since governed the philos ophical world, and have made then immortal. It was this which directed the gaze of the Shepherds of Chaldea, to the teeming heavens-

"When marshalled on the mighty plain, The glittering host bestud the sky."

without the variation of the smallest feat- | Nature up to Nature's God." How does before) those lofty strains of that celestial he, too, often-times forget his noble birth- choir, that sung on Zion's hill and by gled Heavens spread out before him, and his heaven-born inheritance—his true dig- Siloah's brook, that flows fast by the oracle He refuses to look upward, much less to spirit of the pious FENSLON, and blessed American who has so distinguised himself soar, and "walks with earth-bent eye." - the world with the savor of his good name, by his numerous and scathing speeches in Like the grovelling worm or the burrowing It was this which awakened the genius of England, upon the rebellion, is enjoying the Confederate States, proceedings against mole, which his plow share turns up to a NEWTON, and of a HARVEY, and gave consternation of John Bull about the little such property to be instituted in the name the light of day, he bides himself from the them the honor of revealing those myster- iron clad Monitor, and is putting in some of the United States in any District Courtglories revealed to him and teeks in sor lid lous principles in inanimate nature, and strong hits into the fat sides of the old pom- The bill provides solely for proceedings earth his prison-house of ignorance and of in man's being, the discovery of which

It was this which sent a Howard on his messages of philanthropy and made The lives of all such are but a blank, him an angel of mercy to his fellow nal space trace and re-trace their blazing Their existence, as far as the human eve man. It was this which rendered immorway, until the whole universe is woven can discern, is a failure. They, too, tal the deeds and achievements of ALEXinto one vast web of glory and yet have "quench the light on the inner shrine of ANDER, and NAPOLEON, and it was this talizes the Englishmen: never failed in their destiny nor come into the human soul." They too, forget that which gave the glory of true greatness to and McClellan, and strengthened their Laving proved herself a better sea boat in if not directly intended, to aggravate the that so constantly and vividly spread out | with pleasure, to review the brighter page | hearts, and moved their arms to beat back | the terrible gale on the 7th than the Warrior bostility of the Southern States. the proud host of their country's foe and did in the Bay of Biscay, could steam across On the same day the House defeated How dissimilar the life and labors of gain the triumph, not of empty ambition, the ocean and put Liverpool under tribute. (yeas 74, nays 78) the bill declaring the gustingly raise his puny voice and assert the TRUE MAN! Impelled by incentives to or the trophies of mere conquerors, but knock down your fortifications at Spithead, slaves of all persons in rebellion "free and action-having motives and emotions as the glory of mankind-this country freefar above those which direct the sorlid and of hallowing forever the spot, where earth-worm, as the heavens are high above the eternal principles of human liberty but it is not as wearisome; his toil is as wide, where—shielded by republican in-Nor are these alone they, who forgetful severe, but it brings with it its own sweet stitutions-untramelled by despotism and advance, ask your generous indulgence, of their true diguity, of their nature and reward, for he bears with him the con- untrodden by the foot of tyranny, all sciousness of being actuated by no mean might be the arbiters of their own destiny > the power of his wealth and his gains can- Ladies and gentlemen of the "Greenker not, for they are hallowed by the de. wood Literary Society." Accept my sinsire to dispense them in such a way as cere thanks for the distinguished honor shall bring greater satisfaction to his soul. you have conferred upon me, in the invithan all the hoarded possessions of a tation extended to address your flourishing Literary Society. Through your Through the work of his hand and the generous partiality, years ago, I was made nergies of his mind, the arts and sciences an Honorary Member of the "Greene are brought to perfection-for he falters scood Literary Society." These unexpecnot when perplexities and difficulties ob. ted evidences of your kindness, I shall estruct his way and labors that the world treasure as the fondest reminiscenses of may feel the influence of his life not my life and will only be lost to my mem-

A few words more, in conclusion, by housed above his felle is stands next to We need look no further for evidence poses, but to edify and benefit his felyour literary labors here in this "Bethel of D. Brownell, of the Rhode Island Volunteers Learning." Take courage. And when you send your young men and maidens forth into Ellsworth. Mrs. Brownell accompanied the wide world, let it be with minds richly her husband to Newbeen, and was in the stored with useful knowledge and adorned that he owes to the world the record of a by the lasting accompaniments of picty, count of the suddenness of the engagement. well spent life, he studiously aims to dis- virtue and intelligence. Then, like the the regiment had not brought out their colcharge the obligation. He asks no soft Roman matrons, when presenting their couch of luxury, for "the rest of the labor son you too, will be able to say, "These. torth a small American flag from his bosom

"Honor and fame from no conditions rise, We return, and very briefly, to scan the opposite character-Man-" Neglected." The page of history has also its gloomy side, its dark spots to prove that talent may exist without virtue, but these also prove that without virtue there can be no true dignity. Not only does the past furnish examples worthy of imitation, but it holds up to our view, instances of splendid genius, capable of great attainment, without being guided by a single redeeming virtue, where the possessor has been honored and even envied. Such a character can be better read in blank verse.

When I behold a genius bright, yet base, Of tow-ring talent, yot terrestrial aim, Methinks I see, as thrown from her high sphere The fragments of a soul immortal!

Struck with the awful melanchelly sight. At once compassion, soft, and envy rise But wherefore envy / Talent angel bright Illustrious, and give intamy renown.

And need we more to incite us to a proper appreciation of our true dignity -our high calling. While the names and char- to the whole yearly expenditure of Mr. acters of the illustrious great are recorded on the historic page, for our admonition and contempt, the glory of the illustrious great and good is their bright example to those who came after them. What have we to do, but to imitate their example? destiny, the self-approving hour is dearer | Should they not incite us to deeds of greatpess, that we may in turn, lighten the pathmen, remember, that the-

We may make our lives sublime And, departing, leave behind us. Foot-prints on the sands of time; Foot-prints, that perhaps another Seeing, shall take heart again,

Time admonishes me to close this Address. Would that I could here record my testimony in favor of some of the many other duties demanded of the Christain, Patriot and Philanthropist. They are all on record in the Book of Books. Study well and carefully its instructive page, by which you have a light to your way and

Why should we fear to teach men to think? Surely there is sufficent indica- country. She has since enjoyed uniform tions of design in nature, if rightly contemplated, to prove the existence of a Deity. The spire of grass; the tall and stately pine ; the rich valley ; the cragged mountain; the opening leaf and tender blossom-all, their "great original proclaim." Everything, animate and inanimate, proves the existence of a God .-Blind indeed, must be he who-with the "Light of Truth" before him-arrives at any other conclusion : Look at the Hea-

And though no real voice, nor sound, Amid the radient orbs be found. In reason's ear, they all rejoice, And utter forth a g. orious voice ; Forever singing as they shine, The hand that made us is Divine."

Dip you ever examine the contents of a taken at bedtime : One celskin, a piece of chalk, a stub of a lead pencil, seven marbles, (one a china alley,) a steel pen, an Miscellancous.

TRAIN ON THE MERRIMAC -Mr. George

fifty men, the Merrimac five hundred; the this Congress remains in session. Monitoris not twelve hundred tons burthen. the Warrior five thousand : the Monitor draws but eight feet, the Warrior twentyeight; the Monitor cost fifty thousand pounds; the Warrior five hundred thous-

A BRITE WOMAN AND DEVOTED WIFE -Among the women who have figured during the present war, and whose name will appear hereafter on the pages of history, is midst of the battle at that place. On acors. In this emergency Capt. Grant drew and gave to Mrs. Brownell who held it up

Fiftteen minutes afterward hearing that tened to his side, and assisted in carrying every day - Cincinnate Inquirer. him off the field to the hospital, where she nursed him, with all the other wounded men brought in. On one occasion she was insulted by a rebel officer, when she drew a revolver and shot him wounding him barly. The fellow succeeded, however in es. caping. Mrs. Brownell is only twenty years of age, and a very charming lady. Her hus band though badly wounded, is doing well, and will soon be able to resume his duty.

COURT FOR YOURSELF -It was stated a few days ago by a prominent Republican and member of the investigating committee, that during the first year of Mr. Lincoin's administration, the government had been plundered of a sum of money, equal Buchanan's Administration, which was about $62,000,000, taking it at this amount, which is probably small enough, every mancan calculate how much has been stolen out of his own pocket. Taking the number of inhabitants, both North and South, in the United States at 31,000,000, it would be way of those who come after us. Young just two dollars a head for every man, woman and child north and south, or ir a family of six it would be twelve dollars over and above the enormous taxes, actually robbed from the treasury. Did any one ever hear of such a way of "introducing honesty and reform into the administration of our gov-

A SMART YANKEE GIRL -We relate a true story, which is a gratifying instance of successful Yankee enterprise. A young girl. belonging to a respectable family in reduced circumstances, four years ago learned can only avoid the fearful vortex of infi- to operate sewing machines, and then went to Peru to teach the art to Spanish girls and to establish the business in that good health, and has realized between three and four thousand dollars a year beyond her expenses. About a year ago, she married a wealthy old Spaniard, who, dving, bequeathed to her a fortune of eighty thousand dollars, and thus placed her in very comfortable and independent circumstances. She now writes to urge her relatives to emigrate to Peru and share her good for-

WELL DONE -In a car on the Reading Railroad, the other day, the seats were all tull except one which was occupied by a pleasant looking Irishman, and at one of the stations a couple of evidently well bred and boy's pocker? Here is a schedule of one intelligent young ladies came in to procure seals Seeing none vacant, they were about to go into a back car, when Patrick arose odd mitten, a tongueless jewsharp, a chunk hastily and offered them his seat. "But you will have no seat for yourselt," responded one of the young ladies with a smile, hesitating with true politeness to accept it pian, "yer welcome to it. I'd ride on the instance : cowcatcher to Pottsville any time for a smile I've got a pig cat, and I've got a pig tog, from such jintlemanty ladies!" And he re- I've got a pig call, and I've got a pig hog, tired hastily on the next car, amid the I've got a pig baby, so pig and so tall, and I've got a pig baby, so pig and so tall, and I've got a pig wife dat's pigger than all. work.—Valley Spirit. cheers of his fellow passengers.

CONFISCATION .- The House of Representatives on Monday last passed by a vote of yeas 82, nays 68, a bill providing for the of God." It was this which chastened the Francis Train, the bold and outspoken confiscation of the real and personal property of all persons hereafter engaged in the civil or military service of the so-called pous beef-eater. At a late meeting in Lon- against property, and does not seem to congloom. With the book of nature ever has wreathed their memory with unfading don, Mr. Train made a speech on matters template the conviction of the person ownand things, a large portion of which is de- ing the property of treason, a necessary prevoted to the all-engrossing subject of iron- liminary to the forfeiture of his estate. All clad steamers. After elluding to the attack the Democrats and Union men including of the Merrimac, on the first day of the nine Republicans, voted against the meafight, on our wooden frigates, he thus tan- sure. It was carried in a House overwhelmingly Republican by a majority of only 14 "Some gentlemen doubt it, but the re- votes, and must take its place alongside of our own WASHINGTON, and JACKSON, cent action convinces me that the Monitor, other measures of this Congress calculated.

destroyed your fleet at Portsmouth, steam forever discharged from such servitude up the Thames, for you know how anything in the laws of the United States of opposed England is to sinking vessels in of any State to the contrary notwithstandthe river-and to place London at her mer- ing." This sweeping scheme of emancicy, pith her turret revolvers pointed at the pation was a little too strong a dose to swal-House of Parliament, while Lord Palmer- low. Some of the Republican members ston was discussing the propriety of spend- became frightened at the prospect of a neing twelve millions sterling on the fortifi- gro invasion of the Northern States. But cations of England. The Monitor had two the large vote in the affirmative admonishguns, the Merrimac ten; the Monitor had es us that there is no security so long as

How can conservative voters, who hate Union restored on a true constitutional basis the projects of the Abolitionists as any parsecession. - Cartisle Volunteer.

Louis of wounds received at Fort Donelson. Abolitionists, but the democratic party ad-He was from lowa, and his funeral was held in the Capitol of that State. His Jying injunction was, that no enemy of his country. Secessionist or Abalitionist, should be permitted to touch his body - Chicago Times.

and cheered the men as they rallied about | THE repugnance of that soldier to Abolitionism and his destination of it-is not sin gular, but shared in by three-fourths of the ar her husband had been wounded, she has my. The feeling is increasing in intensity

A COUNTRY magistrate, noted for his love of the pleasures of the table, speaking one day to a friend said, "We have just been eating a superb turkey; it was excellent, case, and of high flavor; we left only the bones." "How many of you were there?"

THAT GRAY PONY -An old gentleman in the city, who was remarkable for his prosing powers, had got into the habit of talk ing continually of his "gray pony"; say what you would, do what you would in came the gray pony. A gentleman, who prided himself on his conversational powers, one day made a wager that he would converse with the old fellow without allowing him the opportunity of "mounting his gray pony," or even introduce bim. One day he met him at a tavern, and observing him at dinner, at the head of the Nation said:-"That's a very fine piece of salmon von've got there." "Yes sir." said the octogenarian, 'it's pretty good, but whenmount my little gray pony, and--"

"Hang your little gray pony !" said the other, "he has cost me a dozen of wine Government with a bitterness that knew no and a supper of oysters for six."

young rustic, who, finding it difficult to keep up conversation, asked the girl, after an embarrassing silence had prevailed some time, if she knew of anybody that wanted to buy a shirt.

one to sell ?" "O, no" said the rustic; "I only axed to

'Mammy, where's the man going to sleep." asked a girl of fifteen of her mother, who had just promised a traveler a night's lodging in their out-of-the -way but. "I'll have to put him in with you and Jack and Kate stock of patriotism (?), that can hardly hold and Sue and Bet, I suppose, (was the reply) them from the battle field, take every occaand if it's too crowded, one of you must turn in with me and Dad and Dick and Jim and Bob and the twins."

ing to have a goose for dinner?" "So I did, and I've kept my word." "Where is it ?"

"Why, my dear, aint you here?"

py and characteristic reply, the other day. A gentleman had replied to Pat's " Want a or long be able, but seldom willing."

Choice Doetrn.

NUMBER 23

HOME AND HEAVEN.

If thou hast peace at home, What boots it through the rabble rout, Uplift their hoarse, discordant shout, Though the unquiet world should toss and cast up teculence and dress. And warring tides each other mock And vengeful surges smite the rock. And men content with angry mind, I thou in sheltered nook can'st find Sweet peace at home.

If then hast love at home. Why need's thou care through throngs of With speer of scorn thy course deride ! Assail thy fabric of our fame And ring their changes on thy name ? Thou would'st not to their taste refuse Such pungent pastime it to choose, While shielded from the unseemly blast, Thy comforts all are garnered fast, By love at home.

If there is rest in Heaven, And so the unerring world declares, Why shrink from labors, griefs or cares? The appointed agencies to try. The patience and thy constancy. For like the illusion of a dream. Like passing bubbles on a steam. Shall be their memory and their pain, When thou at last shall blissful gain The rest of Heaven.

Democratic Loyalty.

There are plenty half-crazed fanatics in the Republican party who understand this war to be an abolition war, and profess to be astonished how Democrats who are so much opposed to Abolitionism can fight in t. We are not at all surprised to find that these parrow-minded bigots cannot noder-Summer and Lovejoy, and all men of their stand the patriotism of the democratic parclass, and whose sole desire is to see the ty. They are schooled to believe that there is no loyalty beyond the contracted limits of their own party. While their sole object consent to remain any lorger with the Re- in carrying on the war is to save a sectional publican party? That organization, it can- political platform, the democratic party has not be denied, is now as fully wedded to higher and nobler aims-it is fighting to maintain the Constitution and the Union. ty can be. Justice to themselves and their these misgoided fanatics will not allow and that makes the mighty difference which country requires that they should absolve themselves to understand. The democratic themselves from all connection with 'hose party, independent of its fealty to the govfor whose political opinions they have no ernment, has a double work to perform in this war-it must watch and put down the Secessionists of the South to overthrow the Union. The people of the South are ready A Union soldier died the other day at St. to break up the Union to get clear of the monish them that that this is not the planthey must remain in the Union and put down the Abolitionists for it is with them that the whole trouble has originated. This accounts for the bitter hostility towards the Democratic party by both Abolitionists and Secessionists. They see very clearly that the Democracy bas risen in its might datermined to balk both their disunion schemes -that its fiat has gone forth that neither the one or the other shall succeed in their plots to destroy the government. This is why the Democratic party is fighting in this war, and the reason of the deadly hatred towards that party by traitors North and

Was the present war under a Democratic stuffed truffles to the neck, so tender, deli- Administration, the now so-styled Republic can party would oppose it as they have exery other war, in which our country engaged, since the establishment of the gov. said his friend. "Two!" replied the mag- ernment. It would be enough for them istrate. "Two!" 'Yes, the turkey and my- that the Democratic party was in power to instify them, according to their notions, in denouncing the war, embarrassing it in all its operations, and giving 'aid and comfort' to the enemy in every possible shape. This has been the course pursued by the Republican party in every other war and who can doubt but that it would be found in the very same attitude, at this time, was the Democratic party at the head of the Government. The Democratic party has taught them a lesson in loyalty and patriotism that they never understood or practised before That party will never be found imitating the bad example of the Republicans, in arraying uself against the government in time of war, no matter what political party may be

It is a matter of history that the material

out of which the Republican party is now composed was opposed to the war of 1812.

and arrayed itself against the administration ever I wish to enjoy salmon in perfection, I of Jackson, and denounced the Old Hero when he attempted to out down nullification in South Carolina. All through the Mexican war this same party denounced the bounds. Led on by Mr. Lincoln himself. who was cheek by jowl with Tom Coswin. they did their "dirty best" to embarrass the Government and give ' aid and comfort" to the enemy in that war. When our Government was struggling to put down the wicked rebellion in Utah where did this very loyal Republican party stand! Its papers and orators over the land were found loudmouthed in their howlings against every move of the Government to suppress the rebellion. It ill becomes a party with such a disloyal record as this to prate about traistors to the Government in time of war -They had better for the good of the country. and the peace and harmony of every compurpose. If we have any traitors among us, it is those who, to ventilate their extra sion to denounce their neighbors as "traitors" and stir up all the bad blood they possibly can in the community. We believe that the people of the North are a poit in their determination to stand by the gov-"Wife, I thought you said you were go- ernment in putting down this rebellion, and it is only giving "aid and comfort" to the rebels to make them believe that a powerful political party in the North are their friends. This is not the case, nor do Re-Smith couldn't see the point of that Joke. make use of the dastardly means to injure the Democratic party when in reality they An Irish carriage driver made a very hap | are only injuring the cause of the country. We beg these extra patriots who think they can only serve their country by leading mobs and accusing more loval men than carriage, sir ?" by saying "No I am able to themselves, as being traitors, to endeavor to walk;" when Pat rejoined. "May your hon- screw their courage up to the point necessary to enable them to meet the real traitors on the battle field, and they would thereby It is generally admitted that the Irish are serve a good cause and add to the peace the most famous for making balls but the and respectability of the community by re-"Never mind that !" said the gallant Hiber- Dutch can go ahead for making pigs. For It is a despicable business to access men with disloyalty who never entertained a feeling of the kind, and no one having a re-