Let us withhold our eyes from objects on either hand which would divert our attention and hinder or prevent us from securing our national salvationest the earliest possible moment. Let us fix our eyes upon UNION, LIBERTY, and PRACE, as our capital objects and the things to be attained to; not at the end of long wars, not by by-roads of emancipation, not by plundering hostife populations, not by an iron rule of lawless power under plea of necessity, nor by the aid nor upon the policy of fanatics and selhonestly; by the union of just men upon a Liberty also. policy at once sure, sensible and magnani-

We which the hearts of the people should yearn, and to attain them-not one but all of them -every man's arm should be lifted and every man's mouth opened.

Now what is proposed in the election of Gen. GEORGE B. McCLELLAN and in the elevation to power along with him of the organization or party with which he is identified? We desire to obtain the very objects just named, which combine everything of excellence and of blessing which the public heart at this time can desire.

In the first place, by Gen. McCLELLAN's election we seek to restore the Union which was broken in consequence of the elevation of the existing Administration to power. That Administration has failed to restore the Union; its true character and incapaci y have now become known to us, and the time to pronounce judgment of condemnation upon it has arrived Observe, no objection can now be made to those who criticise Mr. Lincoln and oppose him before the people upon the ground urged two or three wears since when we were told that power being actually lodged in his hands; he being the actual depositary of the public authority, he was fairly and reasonably entitled to the support of the people, that we lought to unite together, to some extent to supreme and unexampled impudence to Ignore party at least so far as would enable come before freemen asking to be re electthe Administration to possess the necessary ed to the others which they have dis- Patient may expire. means and influence to execute its policy graced. and to exhibit its merits before the Country. But the requirements of that argument were fully met. Consider the course of the peothe Opposition, toward Mr. Lincola's administration. Did they not give to it all the aid, all the assistance that could be required for a full trial of its policy? Were men withheld from the armies controlled by it? Was money withheld from the publie treasury, or appropriations of that money refused? Was there resistance even to taxation to raise monies for public use beyoud the enormous sums raised by the negotiation of loans ? No, Gendemen : men were not withheld from the Administration, por was money withheld. Nay, in the earfier periods of the war, men went willingly to the conflict: They took their lives in their hands and shouting to the music of the Union they advanced to support a cause which had charms for them and which they believed would be prosecuted in good faith in accordance with the policy annonneed in the outset and upon which the war was begun-a policy adopted by Congress, endorsed by the Administration, and loreign nations as the policy of this govern- An accommodat ment in the great social struggle which had broken out among us. Mr. Lincoln and his par'y have had a fair trial. They have had, if ever any Administration had, a fair, full and complete trial before the Country with reference to the merits of their policy in restoring the Union, in bringing back to us the blessings of peace, and in securing to us and to those who may come after us that senger. constitutional system which was committed to their management by the people. And now, at the end of their four years-because we have nearly reached the end of that peried-how do they stand before us? Take their case as described by men of the Republican party itself: Take the character of Mr. Lincoln's administration as drawn by the pen of John C. Farmont, the candidate of Mr. LINCOLN's party in 1856 for the Presidency. He says that Mr. Lincoln's admin tration has been a failure in both his military and civil policy, and that its usurpasions and abuses of power have gone so far that we have now to inquire not so much who shall be elected to office as whether we shall have candidates and elections at all in this country in future. Again, take Mr. Liscola's administration as depicted by Senator Wanz and Representative Davis, in a recent manifesto issued by them as members of the Federal Copgress and as members of the political party to which the President himself belongs. Do they not describe in terms of just indignation his asorpations, his abuse of public authority and his contempt of Congressional jurisdic-

you desire Liberty ! You will secure in General McClollan's election—the of on al law over this country—no ary arrests—no French Bastiles imported the Atlantic for use in free America and of these things will be at band, nay will have arrived, when George B. Mc-Clellan is inaugurated. [Applause] Yes! | you will secure liberty! not the ignis falaus of an equality of races but the liberty of your own race : your complete and uninrrupted enjoyment of that constitutional eedom which came to you as an inheritance from your fathers.

Do you desire peace also? That will be a natural result of restoring just, liberal, free principles in your government. Do you not know that one of the obstacles in the South to the return of the people to their allegiance to the Government of the United States, is the character of this Lincoln Administration; that it is the chief reason why they do not vield the contest. the chief reason why we cannot make agreement with them? There is the obstacle and you people of the North put that obstacle there. It stands half way between the North and the South, hindering us from coming together, from building up the old Ucion and being again one people as we were for seventy years. Remove that obstacle and you have Peace, fieb and brutal men; but directly, speedily, and along with it you have Union and
