IRON IN THE BLOOD. It is well known to the medical profession that Iron is the vival Principle or Lile Element of the blood. This is derived chiefly from the food we eat ; but if the focd is not properly digested or if, from any cause whatever, the necessary quantity of iron is not taken into the circulation or becomes reduced the whole system sullers. The bad blood will irritate the heart, will clog up the lungs, will stapely the brain, will obstruct the liver, and will send its disease producing elements to all parts of the system, and every one will suffer in whatever organ may be predisposed to dieease. The great value of IRON AS A MEDICINE Is well known and acknowledged by all medical men. The difficulty has been to obtain such a preparation of it as will enter the circulation and assimilate at once with the blood.
