These words are found in the last message, delivered recently of Hon, Joel Parker, late Governor of New Jersey. They are ominous. These few words portray the honor the nobility, the patriotism of Mr. Parker more powerfully than could be portrayed by pages of finely rounded sentences from the pen of a eulogist. And the truthfulness of the words, is affirmed by the voices of the grateful people of that state. This record will remain a monument of honor to Gov. Parker, and will embellish he pages upon which is written the history of his ad-
