

AGRICULTURAL.

FRUIT AND FOREST TREES.

The first leisure of the young farmer—especially when he has erected a new residence—should be employed in laying out a neat garden, and in planting his fruit and shade trees with appropriate care and taste. That being done, the trees and shrubs will be coming on with an annual increase of beauty and produce, to enhance the comfort of his rural home, and solace the languid hours of age and infirmity. This is a duty which has been sadly neglected hitherto in Pennsylvania. It is really distressing to the eye to witness the number of farm-houses in our ancient Commonwealth, which stand exposed, as it were, in the open field, without a shrub or a grass plot, to cheer the inmates, or even so much as a friendly tree to protect them from the glare of the summer's sun. No resident of our naked villages, who has enjoyed a promenade beneath the arching elms which adorn the avenues of New Haven and other Eastern towns, can fail to be humbled by the contrast, and lament the tardiness, cruel negligence, the melancholy want of foresight which has prevailed among our own people. This repulsive feature of barbarism should be no longer tolerated. Every farm should be made a beautiful country seat. Such ornamental seats, instead of interfering with the essential duties of agriculture, tend rather to animate and cheer the labors of every farmer who has a soul susceptible of true enjoyment. The beautiful shade trees which surround the dwelling, as they grow old, becoming associated with pleasant reminiscences in the family, and exert a delightful influence. The children who have grown up and departed beneath their spreading boughs become fondly attached to them, and strongly disposed to guard and preserve them. The touching story of our countryman, Morris, owes its popularity no less to a deep-seated principle in our nature, than to the engaging simplicity and pathos of its numbers. Every one who has spent the summer days of youth under the lovely shade around the parental dome, will be as ready as the poet to exclaim—

“Woodman! spare that tree!”
Every descendant of the patriarch who planted it, will interpose to save the venerable tree which sheltered the home of his childhood, and will retrace with the Vandal who may threaten it, in the earnest moving accents of the bard:

“Save my father's hand
That placed it near his cot;
There, woodman! let it stand—
Thy axe shall harm it not.
When he's an idle boy,
I sought its grateful shade;
In all his gaudy joy,
Here, too, my sisters played;
My mother kissed me there;
My father press'd my hand.
Forgive this foolish tear—
But let that old tree stand!

Such reminiscences of our prurient days deserves to be fondly cherished, and should never be obliterated by the sterner pursuits of after life. The tasteful arrangement of trees and shrubbery on a farm not only conduces to real comfort, but is the surest indication of a genteel, cultivated and truly civilized people. It demonstrates that boorish rudeness has been superseded by refined feeling, and a just appreciation of the beauties of nature. How delightful to the toil-worn farmer, in the evening of life, to repose in the shade of the trees which he has planted with his own hands! How grateful to the heir of the parental mansion to enjoy the umbrageous shelter provided by the care and taste of his reverend progenitor! The shade tree, thus planted, becomes, as it were, a cherished member of the affectionate family. Its longevity renders it an abiding friend of succeeding generations—a silent but most interesting witness of the advent and departure of children, and of children's children, while its aged trunk remains an emblem and precious memorial of a long line of venerable ancestry.—Dr. William Darlington.

WHEAT CROP INCREASED BY AMMONIACAL MANURE.

On a space of ground cultivated in 1843, by Mr. J. B. Lawes, of Rothamsted, England, which had not been manured, the yield per acre was 16 3/4 bushels of wheat, and 1,115 lbs. of straw. This may be considered as the natural produce of the soil, subject only to the atmospheric influence of that particular season. The same space of ground was cultivated and manured for three consecutive years, with the following results:—
In 1844, the application of 560 lbs. of burnt bones and 220 lbs. of sulfate of potash produced 120 bushels of wheat and 1,112 lbs. of straw.
In 1845, 1 1/2 cwt. each, of sulfate and muriate of ammonia, produced 31 3/4 bushels of wheat and 3,244 lbs. of straw.
In 1846, 3 cwt. of sulfate of ammonia yielded 97 1/2 bushels of wheat and 2,244 lbs. of straw.

In another experiment, a quantity of manure was weighed into two portions, at the rate of 14 tons each per acre, one being burnt to ashes, and the other ploughed into the soil; the product of the manured dung was 32 bushels of wheat and 1,499 lbs. of straw; and that of the ash, 16 bushels of wheat and 1,104 lbs. of straw.
