HENRY SMITH.

Times are hard and barbers poor, Pray, good friend, dont pass his door.

Just walk in : he is always willing

And if your hair should need a trimming.

I'would make one bow at Casar's feet

He'll brush your coats, hats, old and new; To please your taste he'll endeavor To show you all his neatest quiver.

To close the scoue, he'll open the door: The gent walks out, and the scene is o'er.

Not only so; if that wont do,

From long experience he flatters himself that he can go through all the ramifications of the tonsorical departments, with such an infinite degree of skill as will meet the entire satisfaction of all who submit themchins to the keen ordeal of his razor. He hopes, therefore, that by attention to business and a desire to please, he will merit at the following low prices:
