That such a measure, if reported, will receive the sanction of the Senste, where the Stave power has a controlling influence, we have no doubt. It fate in the House, where the representatives of free territory are in a decided enjority, is more doubtful. Doubtful it should not be—but so it is. Northern "Dough-faces" have ever been found in our National Legislature, whenever any great issue be Freedom and Slavery has been sprung, who were willing to sell their votes for Southern favor, and the motives and objects which prompt and by Randelfen. That a different state of things exists now, we might hope, but have not sufficient faith to believe. A few weeks, however, will defer the fact of the south of the
