THE COMMON LOT.

BY MONTGOMERY.

Once in the flight of ages past

There lived a man—and was was he?

Morial ! howe'er thy lot be cast,

That man resembled thee!

Unknown the region of his birth,
The land in which he died unknown, His name has perished from the sarth, That joy and grief, and hope and feat, Alternate triumpheil in his breast; His bliss and woe, a smile, a teat!

Oblivion hides the rest. The bounding pulse, the languid limb, The changing spirit's rise and fall.

We know that these were felt by him,

For muses are felt by all.

He suffered—but his pangs are o'er, Enjoyed—but his delights are fled, Had friends—his friends are now no more,

And foes-his foes are dead. He loved-but whom he loved, the grave Has lost in its unconscious womb;

O, she was fair! but nought could save Her beauty from the tomb.

The rolling seasons, day and night, Sun, moon and stars, the earth and main, Ere while his portion, light and life, To him exist—in vain. He saw whatever thou hast seen,
Encountered all that troubles thee,
He was—whatever thou hast been,

He is what thou shalt be ! The clouds and winbeams ofer his eye That once their shade and glory threw, Have left in yonder silent sky No vestige where they flew.

The annals of the human race. Of his afford no other trace
Than this TREER LIVED A MAN.

TRUE FREEDOM.

A Tyrant needeth not a throne,
To win the hited name;
Who ruleth not his household well, Must own the Tycant's shame. Who tramples down of slaves but one, Is e'ven a worthless thing; No matter be his title great,

Or be he one of small estate, Or master, lord, or king. The hesband foving not his wife— Parent to child unkind— Who shuns his home for brutal joys,

To suit a brutish mind,
Whoever harms a brutal thing,
Whate'er may be its name
The ass that bears its daily toil, meanest worm that crawls the soil. Must own the Tyrant's shame.

When peace prevails-in every home, When kindred love is found— And each to all shall feel the tie, Reuther to brothers bound; When none shall dare a deed to do Which others's wrong may be ; But each shall govern well his heart, And shun himself the Tyrant's part, Thou -then mankind is free.

"SLEEPING IN JESUS."-This is one of the most tender expressions that the English language affords. It was never thought of till proclaimed by the Gospel. It is a Gospel discovery. Sleep, as an endless tate of inactivity, coldness, and silence may have been known, and been terrible never tire or sicken more, belongs wholly to revelation. To the Christian, death is resting place from its labors, while the oul is with God, in Heaven. For them that are asleep in Jesus, we do not sorrow as those that have no hope; for, "If we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so also those that sleep in Jesus, will God bring with him.

[From the New York Spirit of the Times.] CHASING A DOCTOR

aln a little wilinge in Western Hlinois there resided a very worthy, very knockkneed, very timid son of Esculapius, (who shall be nameless, lest be might chance to see himself figuring as the hero of this little sketch,) whose "pretty considerable practice," as he said himself, kept him everlasingly trundling about in an old wreck of a buggy, drawn by a gaint, unhappy looking horse, with that pecular cast of countenance which a hardly used animal of his species always possesses.

The little doctor's practice was so extended, and the farmers so thinly scatered over a large tract of land, that "fair and foul" he was always on the go, and even then would not attend to every call made on heavy wood, or grove, as we call them The day was fast verging to a close, and the little man was sadly ruminating upon his dreary drive, when he was startled by a hoarse call from a by path running around the base of a rocky knoll .-The poor doctor trembling unconsciously drew up his horse, and glauced fearfully The place had a bad name, a around. pedlar had been robbed and nearly mur-dered not twenty yards from that very spot. Unable to move, the wreteeed little doctor sat gazing at the place until the sudden appearance of an ominous looking horseentting his poor tired animal with the whip, he started off at a slashing page. "Hello! hold on there!" shouted the stranger, increasing his speed.

"Go long, Ned! go long, old fellow:" cried the doctor, frantically, belaboring his poor frightened horse, who stretched man-fully through the mud, throwing the old rattle trap of a buggy from side to side, as it grouned and creaked most mournfully.

"Hillo!" vociferated his pursuer, more fiercely than before.
"Go long, Ned!" gasped the doctor, redoubling his blows, and turning his pale in a new piece, something like those pret-face, streaming with perspiration, to see ty little affecting dramas they get up now at if the wretch behind was gaining on him; he revolver at his head. REMARKS OF MR. SMYSER. In the House of Representatives, Friday April, 19th, 1850.

The 31st section of the General Appropriation Bill, appropriating $300,000 for the completion of the North Branch nal, being under consideration,

Mr. SMYSER said-Mr. Speaker: We have just had a most glowing description from the gentleman from Luzeras. (Mr. Conyngham,) of the wealth and resources of the country through which this improvement passes, coupled with the most sanguine, and I may say, without intending any disrespect, extravagant, augu-rice as to the influence it is to exart on the financial prosperity of the Common wealth; and a strong and urgent appeal has been made to us to grant the $300,000 asked in this bill, in order to promote the prosperity of that region of the country, and as a of a political meeting said, when a rowdy raised revenue measure for the State. Could be state that the persuade myself that one half of the growning anticipations of the gentleman from wheelbarrow said, when going up hill with a load of thoses. character and eminent talents, would be realized, I would almost be persuaded to vote for this appropriation. But, sir, we are admonished by experience to distrust the flattering illusions of Hope, and to re-ceive with allowance, the delusive phase toms which self-interest conjures up before the fancies of its votaries. Looking at the present financial condition of this Commonwealth, I cannot, consistently with the duty I owe to her taxridden citizens, vote to add still further to the weight of the burthen that is upon them by granting this appropriation.

A Yankee and a Southerner were play ing poker on a steamhoat. After a while terest in this improvement. We'are already groaning under a debt of forty millions of dollars, and the grinding tell you where they all are. One of them is up your shirt sleeze there, and the other there are in the top of one of my boots.

Revine to Western. The humorous the construction of which this enormous debt was constructed, are no benefit They are a positive injury, for reasons which will readily occur to every one who hears me. Whilst the value of property in the counties through which they pass, has been in many cases quadrupled, with us it has depreciated, whilst our property is taxed in almost every conceivable form to pay for improvements that tend to diexamined in geography, said he, you will have saving the gospel here?" to not that debt, we are called upon to discretely be asked of what shape is the card; "No sir, we have you the gospel here?" ed by the people, and appropriate it to new and if you should not remeliber just look they have got its willy down to Bangor." and further improvements, in a remote at me, and I will show you have got its willy down to Bangor." quarter of the State. In the name of my suffering constituents, I protest against such injustice to them ! the payment of the debt. They have been willing to make any sacrifice to maintain right? Is it politic? Is it just?

But, sir, the specific appropriation asked for in this bill is unnecessary, because the thirty-fifth section of the secol 10th April, 1849, (Pamphlet laws, page 642,) aiready gives to this improvement all the surplus monies that, after the fifteenth of August in every year, shall remain the Treasury, after meeting the intereston the State debt and other necessary appropriations. Under this act the North Branch already has had appropriated to it $150,000 for the recently gave an exhibition of this new apparatus, who subtond; cannot not the day and said that is nothing like "dimity" after all. It is even subtond of its powers to a lie had said that mirrhing what he will be entitled to what even should of rattan.

The Philadelphia Americkii May 11. ing towards this improvement, or the secis not now before us. The law is on our Statute book; and we have only to obey its requisitions. This I stand prepared and willing to do. I may to the friends of the North Branch canal "carry on your improvements until the 15th of August next with the $120,000 yet at your command. Then, if there is any balance in the Freasury, drain it empty, as under the law, you have a right to do; but when we thus proffer you all; in Heaven's name don't sak us to give it to you in advance, when there may by pot-sibility be no surplus, and we may have to create a new debt by borrowing dis money to pay you!"

Let us not be told that this bill authoriher passage.
