HEAVEN.

- Oh! heaven is nearer than mortals think. When they look with a trembling dread At the misty future that stretches on From the silent home of the dead.
- 'l'is no lone iste in a boundless main,
 No brilliant, but distant abore,
 Where, the lovely ones who are called away
 Must go in return no more.
- No heaven is near us; the mighty veil Of murtality blinds the eye, That we see not the angel bends
- On the shores of eternity. Vet of in the hours of holy thought, To the shirsting soul is given
 That power to pierce through the mist of sense,
 To the beguteous scenes in Heaven.
- Then very near seems its pourly gates, And sweetly its happings fall;
- Till the soul is restless to sear away.
 And longs for the angel call. Figurew, when the silver cord is loosed,

When the veil is rent away,

- Not long and dark shall the passage be To the realms of endless day. The eye that shuts in a dying hour,
 Will open the next in blue;
 The welcome will sound in a heavenly world,
 Ere the farewell is aushed in this.
- We pass from the clasp of mourning friends, To the arms of the loved and lest;
 And those smilling faces will greet us then,
 Which on earth we have valued most.
