Arrival of Steamer Humboldt.

FOUR DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

The Turkish fleet Reduced to Ashes by the Russians.

The Turkish fleet Reduced to Ashes by the Russians.

The Turkish fleet Reduced to Ashes by the Russians.

NEW YORK, June 21st.—The steamer Humboldt, with Southampton dates of the 8th inst., and 75 passengers, reached her wharf about 2½ o'clock, P. M.

ENGLAND.—A split had occurred in the English Cabinet between Lord John Russel and the Irish members, and the latter had sealed their resignations. Mitchell, Keogh, and Sadlier had withdrawn.

The subject of the imprisonment of British colored subjects in South Carolina will soon be brought before Parliament.

TURKEY.—The news from this quarter is decidedly warlike. The Turkish fleet in the Mediterranean had been ordered to the Dardanelles, and the fleet in the Channel had been despatched to the Mediterranean. The French fleet had also arrived in Besra Bay. The Russian forces were pressing towards Moldavia and the Wallachia, the frontier province of Turkey, and the Russian troops in Wassaw had received orders to proceed to the Danube marshes in Bessarabia. The military preparations of the Turks were of the most gigantic character.

The Egyptian fleet with an army of 20,000 men were proceeding to the aid of the Sultan, and the Turkish troops were busily engaged in raising an army of 100,000 men for the assistance of the Porte. Similar efforts were also being made in every province of the Empire. The mediation of Austria and Prussia were spoken of as even the threatened war with Russia. Neesselrode, with important despatches, had arrived in London. A late despatch to the London Times says that the Czar's support of Russ had sent a courier to Constantinople with the ultimatum of the Northern Courts, which if rejected should be complied with within eight days.

Just received.

One Foreign Ministers.

Secretary Marcy has issued instructions to the Ministers of the United States, in Foreign Countries, to appear at Court in plain citizens' apparel. Within the last few years the American ambassadors generally have made equal to that of the proudest representative of Monarchy, and appeared on high occasions, in the presence of Royalty, with gay trappings, bespangled with silver and armorial devices. The air of a foreign court rendered them ashamed of the Republican simplicity which they left behind them at home. Dr. Franklin appeared before European potentates in the plain dress of a Republican citizen, with no display or ridiculous ceremony; and his example is urged by Secretary Marcy upon our present Ministers as worthy of imitation. They are further instructed to employ none but American citizens as their Secretaries. Heretofore foreigners were frequently employed, and the consequence was that our private correspondence, or the important business of the government, was in the keeping of persons who probably never saw our country, and had no feeling in common with our people.—A more rigid economy is also enjoined. To employ American citizens as Secretaries. These instructions will meet with the approbation of the American people, and their trust will have the effect to reform the abuses which have been for years a subject of just complaint. By the adoption of our home made aristocrats, to go to Europe annually and spend their money in making fools of themselves, we shall no longer be considered by them as "Barbarians," but that approach to hang upon our foreign representatives.

Good Lecture in Quaint Style.

On Monday, lately lecturing at the Bowdoin Institute, in the course of his remarks, which pertained to the above subject, he made an extensive and profound indigression and digression:

A gentleman sits down to his dinner, and partakes of a multitude of dishes, each seemingly prepared for the purpose of pleasing the palate, and to gratify the taste in a high degree. Being completely loaded, he will work to agitate the heap and put it in motion by the process of digestion. The appetizers starts from home and sees some attractive looking apples on a stand, which he thinks he should like to eat. He purchases a few and commences to gulp them down. "Hallos!" says the stomach, looking up in his lonely, dark abode, "what up there? I have more work than I can attend to already." However, remonstrances, in that direction, are of no use with the stomach since to work as before. The gentleman next moment meets with a friend, a glass of wine, shrub, cider, toddy, or some other liquid compound, is gulped down, aided by some tobacco juice. Supplies are lowered into the stomach in shapes of cotton into the hold of a Mississippi steamer, and the engineer, who is the superintendent, gives up in disgust, and leaves the mass to indigestion and dyspepsia, and its train of accompanying evils, thus the harmony of the system is destroyed, which might have been prevented by a little prudence and self-denial.

Another New Territory.

The Washington Union contains a communication from Henry R. Scoolcraft, Esq., in which he describes a section of country lying by the name of Minnesota. He says it is attractive, well timbered, and a fertile area of country, lying immediately west of the Rocky Mountains, in a temperate latitude, to which, for the purpose of distant allusion, he applies the appropriate term. The area is about fifty miles broad, and lies parallel to the Rocky Mountains for a distance of about one thousand miles. It gives rise to both of the main and numerous subsidiaries of the Columbia river. It is a high prairie land, or tal, through by those affluents, of a most fertile character, bearing trees, and in some places high grass and, while the soil is of great apparent water-power for machinery and grain mills and machinery, they are few, or, rarely found in that condition of their power. This district probably comprises twenty-five thousand square miles, and if its capacity for sustaining human life be correctly estimated, would sustain a population greater than some of the European and Asiatic States.

Kansas, Nebraska.—While a party of Virginia lawyers are battling for Kansas, (K.-n.) the other day, the tariff was up, and the wags containing all their fun, the Hon. Mr. Campbell, of Ohio, had the misfortune to be knocked down and trampled upon by a Kansas Nebraska Democrat. This illustrates what our country is coming to. Members of Congress are