The an India-rubber hunting coat ; her nether limbs were encased in a snug tight fitting corduroy pants and a pair of Indian moccassing upon her feet. She had a good looking rifle upon her shoulder, and brace of double barrel pistols in the side pockets of her coat, while a formidable hunting knife hung suspended by her side. Wishing to witness her skill with hunting instruments, I commenced bantering her with regard to shooting. She smiled and said she was as good a shot as was in the woods, and to convince me she took out her hunting knife and cut a ring four inches in diamater in a tree with a small spot in the centre. Then stepping back hirty yards, and drawing up one of her pistols, put the ball inside of the ring .--She then, at thirty-five rode from the tree. out a ball from her rifle in the very centre. We shortly came to her tather's house, and I gladly accepted an invitation to stop there over night. The maiden hunter, instead of sitting down to rest as the saw mill and brought a slab on her shoulder that I shouldn't like to earry, and
