

One Vice District Has Already Been Cleaned Up, Declares Hutchison

Chief of Police in Hearty Accord With Campaign to Clean Up the City; Vice Must Be Suppressed, He Agrees; Court Street Houses Wiped From City's "Scarlet Hound" Map

"I am heartily in accord with the Telegraph's active efforts to rid Harrisburg of its vice dens," declared Colonel Hutchison this morning in referring to an editorial printed in the Telegraph last night. Continuing, Colonel Hutchison said: "My work has only started along this line. I am moving just as fast as I can. I am willing to get busier when I find that satisfactory results will follow."

"I want to call attention to the fact that I have already cleaned up one entire district, Court street between Market and Chestnut streets. I am not laying down and I will let my work decide whether I am on the job. The Telegraph is right," he continued. "In urging the suppression of vice in Harrisburg, it is, of course, unfair to expect everything to be accomplished in a day or even a week."

COUNT AUGUST DE MUKKADEL DE, ETC., SEYMORE IS DEAD

Man Who Startled Harrisburg With Ultra-clever Ideas, Passes Away

The Count is dead. What Count? Why the Count August Schaeffelsky de Mukkadel de Castelle Seymore, of New York, Paris, San Francisco, Harrisburg, New Rochelle, Calcutta and other places, of course. Who but he could be known as THE COUNT in this city?

The count died, according to a story printed in the New York Sun, by trying to suspend animation. The count, the sublime, the Market Square lecturer, the prince of press agents, the adventurous noble, has at last fallen a martyr to one of his own strange theories of existence. A "new culture" killed him.

Seymore was in this city several months ago. While here he talked with Petronius, captain of one of Caesar's legions, whom he met incarnated as a traveling salesman at the Senate Hotel; lectured on "mystery" in one of the vaudeville houses of the city; sold books in Market Square following addresses on Socialism and ways in which the south pole might be moved a degree or two, and submitted plans to the public at large for a "cold storage" hotel, wherein one could go to sleep for a century or

Walmouth, which left $100,000 to a maid and $400,000 to a man and wife who were friends, ignoring all heirs at law, was admitted to probate to-day by the register of wills of Philadelphia after a determined fight had been made by relatives against such action. PUBLIC WORKS BOARD ASKED TO REMAIN IN ADVISORY CAPACITY

Will Serve Until Completion of Important Improvements Now Under Way Are Carried

PARK COMMISSION MAY STAY

Believed Taylor Will Take Necessary Action to Retain Present Advisers

City Commissioner William H. Lynch, head of the Department of Highways and Public Improvements, has requested the Board of Public Works to continue to serve in an advisory capacity until the completion of the important public work which is now under way and which will be finished during the year. This is in line with the policy of City Commissioner Bowman, who has requested the Board of Health to continue in service, and who has been promised also the good offices of the Board of Water Commissioners in the active discharge of his responsible duties.

City Commissioner Taylor, who has charge of the city property and the park system, has not indicated his intentions with respect to the Park Commission, but it is believed that he will take similar action so that the high efficiency of the several departments may be maintained through the co-operation of the boards and commissions which have had control and supervision of the parks, public work and other improvements for many years.

Gorgas Not Hasty. City Commissioner Gorgas, the head of the Finance Department, is not disposed to make radical changes or be at all hasty in overturning the order of things. He believes that haste should be made slowly and that the best way to get good results is to be certain that a change would mean improvement or an increase of efficiency.

Commissioner Taylor is understood to contemplate some beneficial changes for the Fire Department which will be in line with modern ideas respecting public safety. He has been giving study to certain matters and things affecting the department, and the city property represented by the firehouse and expensive fire-fighting equipment and apparatus requires so much of his attention that he has not yet outlined

Radium "Cures" For Cancer Called Gigantic Swindle

Special to The Telegraph. Berlin, Jan. 3.—A "gigantic swindle" is the description applied by Professor Ernest Schweninger, of Munich, to the theory prevalent throughout the world that radium and mesothorium are the long-sought cure for cancer.

Schweninger, who is famous as the private physician of Bismarck, gives an account in the January issue of the Neueste Nachrichten of his own experience with the use of radium and mesothorium for cancer treatment. He declares that the hue and cry which serious-minded members of the profession have set up in regard to the marvelous value of radium and mesothorium for cancer treatment are "highly unworthy of genuine medical ethics."

Seneca Captain Files His Report on Meeting

By Associated Press. Washington, Jan. 3.—The story of the mutiny on board the British vessel Baron Dalmeny which steamed out of Philadelphia yesterday for England, and which turned back when the lights of Cape Henlopen were still in sight, came out to-day at the Treasury Department in a report from Captain Johnston of the revenue cutter Seneca, which went to the rescue of the Dalmeny officers and put a quietus to the revolt.

Captain Johnston reported that the trouble started among East Indians in the crew. They began fighting among themselves about the time the steamer passed out of the mouth of the Delaware and it took the combined efforts of the master, Eben Gordon, and the flourish of revolvers to bring order.

The Seneca came to the rescue off Lewes, Del., and, after an investigation by the British vice-consul from Philadelphia, turned over to him two of the crew who probably will be sent to England for trial. The Dalmeny turned out again and started on her voyage to Avonmouth.

Police and Detectives Search For Bandits Who Robbed Men in Taxicab

By Associated Press. Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 3.—The motorcycle squad and half a hundred policemen and detectives on foot were searching the city to-day for the daring bandits, who, after stealing a taxicab by a ruse last night, bound and robbed two well-known men of the city. Working with unusual audacity, the bandits seized their victims near their homes and threw them into the captured taxicab where they were held prisoners with the chauffeur. All were bound and blindfolded. About $150 in money and jewelry was the result of the night's work.

Charles E. Succop, treasurer of the Independent Brewing Company; James C. Weldon, of the Weldon & Kelly Company, wholesale plumbers supplies and J. C. Scott, a chauffeur, were the men held captive in the taxicab. After carrying their victims about the streets for nearly two hours, the bandits forced them into the machine and left them, after giving each of them ten cents. TRANSFER OF POTTER LICENSE REFUSED BY DAUPHIN CO. COURT

Judge McCarrell Hands Down Decision Just Before Noon Today

WAS WIDESPREAD OPPOSITION

Eighth Ward Hotel Owner Procured Options Through Realty Company

After careful consideration of all the evidence, permission to transfer the license to the location within described is hereby refused.

In that brief language and without further comment Additional Law Judge S. J. McCarrell shortly before noon to-day refused the application of B. Leslie Potter for a transfer of the hotel license he now holds at 524 State street to Nos. 25 and 27 South Third street.

Potter, who is one of the Eighth Ward hotelmen who must vacate his premises by March 1 because his property has been bought by the State for the extension of Capitol Park, has made two previous attempts to obtain a new location within the last year or so.

Third and Muench streets was the first site Potter chose, but withdrew that application because of the weight of public sentiment against this; a little later he tried to get the contract to Cameron and Herr streets, but withdrew this also for the same reason.

A few months ago Potter, through a realty agency, got an option on the properties of Mrs. Sarah McCulloch and Mrs. Louise Aughinbaugh in South Third street, which he hoped to combine and remodel for hotel purposes. There was widespread opposition to this, church people and other citizens protesting vigorously against the establishing of a hotel there.

On the witness stand it was developed that Mrs. Aughinbaugh had known to whom or for what purpose she agreed to sell her property; she admitted this in a letter to the court; and furthermore declared that she would not fulfill the terms of the option if a saloon or hotel was to be placed there.

Attorneys thought an action would be brought by Potter to compel the owner to comply with the terms, but it was believed that in view of the fact that the question of transfer was really in abeyance, no action of this kind would be attempted.

10,000 MEXICANS FLEE BIG WAGON TOPPLES ACROSS U. S. BORDER TO SEEK PROTECTION

OVER IN MARKET ST. INJURING DRIVER

Savage Fighting Between Rebels and Federals Continued Throughout Night

Heavy Draft Horses Saved From Death by an Unknown Hero

Two big horses were saved from death this morning by an unknown negro when a heavy freight wagon belonging to the Pennsylvania Transfer Company toppled over on the pavement in front of the United States Hotel at Market street and the Pennsylvania railroad, injuring the driver, Lawrence Robinson, of 1752 Cameron street.

When the heavy wagon was turning on the bridge over the subway the front wheels skidded, turning at right angles to the wagon, upsetting it and throwing the wagon tongue up with the heavy horses struggling in the air. The driver had presence of mind, though thrown under the wagon, to hold on to the reins, preventing the tongue from going higher. A man said to have been a negro, saw the suspended horse and tongue and whipped out a knife and cut the harness from their backs. He slipped away before the police could get his name.

When the wagon turned over on the pavement two pedestrians were knocked to the sidewalk, but as they were not injured their names were not procured.

Robinson, when taken to the Harrisburg Hospital, was found to have an injured left arm and was suffering from shock. He was admitted to a ward for treatment.
