

"PAY THE DEBT IN CASH," ADVISES MEEK

Democratic Editor Recommends That Wilson Thus Wipe Out His Indebtedness to Palmer

P. Gray Meek, for many years secretary of the Democratic State Committee, and one of the best known newspapermen in Pennsylvania, is receiving many letters of congratulation on an editorial in his newspaper, the Democratic Watchman.

This fulmination against the leadership of A. Mitchell Palmer seems to have accentuated the factional differences in the State Democracy.

"Pay the Bill in Cash" is the headline of the editorial which is supposed to voice the feelings of the "Old Guard" against the leader of the "re-organizers."

This is what Editor Meek, who was Surveyor of the Port of Philadelphia during Cleveland's second term wrote: "Something ought to be done by the Democrats of Pennsylvania to discharge the obligations of President Wilson to A. Mitchell Palmer. The frequent references to him in the public prints is scandalous. The payment of personal debts with public patronage is abhorrent to political morals and yet whenever a vacancy occurs in the public service Mr. Palmer sets up an unsatisfied claim. For example, the other day, according to Washington dispatches, the President indicated a purpose to appoint Mr. Comptroller of the Currency, a gentleman recommended by the Secretary of the Treasury.

"It seems that Mr. Palmer had a candidate for the office as usual, and upon the announcement that the President had determined to follow the advice of the gentleman responsible for the administration of the office, Mr. Palmer's friends set up the howl that the obligations to him were being repudiated.

"This sounds bad in the public ear and looks worse in the public eye. That public office is a public trust is an unwritten law in the Democratic party. Therefore the use of public patronage to pay the personal or political debts of the President to Mr. Palmer or anyone else is an infraction of moral and political ethics. But in the case in question Republican papers in Philadelphia and elsewhere in Pennsylvania, obviously inspired, declared that an injustice had been done to Mr. Palmer.

"But for him, these newspapers declared, Mr. Wilson would not have been nominated and in that event would have had no patronage to dispose of. 'Why,' they add, substantially, 'during the balloting in the Baltimore convention, when a majority of the delegates had voted for Champ Clark, Mr. Wilson telegraphed to his manager, Mr. McCombs, asking that his name be withdrawn. But when Mr. Palmer saw the telegram he tore it up and on one of the subsequent ballots Mr. Wilson was nominated.

"The friends of Mr. Bryan boldly claim that the nomination of Mr. Wilson was the result of the Nebraska masterly management of the convention and they are justified in some measure because when Champ Clark's vote reached the proportions of a majority Mr. Bryan, though instructed for Mr. Clark, deserted him and started the tide in favor of Wilson. The friends of Mr. McCombs insist that Mr. Wilson's nomination was the fruit of his splendid management of the primary in Nebraska and Mr. Wilson has given encouragement to this claim by calling Mr. McCombs to the management of the final contest and praising his ability and fidelity at every opportunity.

"Other claims have been set up, more or less well supported and all the several claimants have received some consideration. But we don't know of anyone who is justified in his demands for recompense or as unwise in the distribution of the favors which have been bestowed upon him as Mr. Palmer.

"For the sake of argument, however, we will admit that President Wilson is under some obligation to Mr. Palmer. Pennsylvania gave him no electoral votes, it is true, and if the party in other States had slumped as it did in this State, the nomination would have been of little benefit to Mr. Wilson. But the laborer is worthy of his hire and whether Mr. Palmer appeared in the campaign as lawyer, lobbyist or simply camp-follower, he is entitled to his fee.

"But the fee should be paid in cash, only petty-foggers engage in litigation on the basis of contingencies, and Mr. Palmer doesn't want to be put in that class. For that reason he ought to be paid a round sum and the Democrats of Pennsylvania should pass around the hat and collect the amount needed to discharge the debt. This constant repetition of an unsettled claim is unfair to the President, humiliating to the party and demoralizing to the country."

John Snyder Saves Lumber From Walnut Tree For Coffin

Makes Dying Request That Wood Which Grew on Old Farm Be Used For That Purpose

Special to The Telegraph
Lebanon, Pa., Jan. 12.—Having cultivated an unusual affection for a stately walnut tree which grew on the old Krause farm in South Lebanon township, John Snyder, who tenanted the farm for nearly fifty years, made the dying request that he be buried in the embrace of lumber from its massive trunk. The tree was cut down some years ago, and Mr. Snyder saved the best portion of the tree without stating his purpose. He died on Sunday at the age of 85 years, after making his strange request of his wife. The request will be fully complied with. Mr. Snyder was widely known in this and neighboring counties, partly because of his unusual health and activity at his advanced age. He was tax collector of South Lebanon township for a number of years, and even after his eighty-second birthday, made a tour of the district, gathering taxes on foot. Besides his wife, he is survived by six children, twenty-four grandchildren and twenty-three great-grandchildren.

"THE GIRL OF THE UNDERWORLD"

Most every girl or boy that have been reared in the country has a burning desire to locate in the city and experience life in the social whirl. It was that desire, and quite naturally too, that prompted beautiful "Marion Thompson" to leave her home and those who make home so dear, and try her fortunes in New York City. An intensely interesting story has been woven around her in the play, "A Girl of the Underworld," which will be presented at the Majestic Theater, Monday, January 19, matinee and night. A most instructive drama of the life of to-day in the great cities, is this play. —Advertisement.

FATIMA, THE DANCER

The record matinee of the season and a packed house last night is the tale of the success of Fatima's first day's engagement at the Orpheum. Whether this unstinted patronage was due entirely to the Turkish dancer or not is pretty hard to say, for aside from this graceful and clever misadventure, she did all that the Orpheum management said she would do. Her four dances were all cleverly executed with as many stage settings, light effects and costume changes. Referring to the advance advertising that was done by Fatima and the local newspapers took occasion to say that if she lived up to all that was said for her, she would probably offer a pretty "risque" attraction. In defense of this, manager Hopkins said yesterday that nothing more was said for her than that she wasn't a cigarette and that he hoped she wasn't.—Advertisement.

A clever bill of vaudeville was inaugurated at the Colonial yesterday, an offering that measures up strongly with the bills presented last week, and it scored a big success with good sized audiences all day. The feature attraction is an unusual protean playlet presented by Graham and Randall, and then there's a clever musical act and also a comedy novelty that found favor. To-day will find a clever program of moving picture features at the Colonial, also.—Advertisement.
