was featured by pertinent addresses on off dertilizers and the consenses of with close attention by the farmers.

Two heads of State departments talked — Superintendent of Public Printing and Binding A. Nevin Pomeroy and State Librarian Thomas Lynch Montgomery. Reports were also received and an address was made by Professor M. S. McDowell, of State College.

Superintendent Pomeroy confessed that it was a bit difficult to interest farmers directly in printing, but he dwelt upon the big educational work of the State in sending out bulletins and advised all of them to study the bulletins of the Department of Agriculture and its branches. Touching upon delays in issuing documents which are not unknown, Mr. Pomeroy said that he is an earnest advocate of a State-owned printery, but informed his hearers that such a plan is impossible without an amendment to the constitution.

Librarian Montgomery devoted most of his address to the traveling library system of the State institution, citing some of the work it has done and urging the traveling libraries in every corner of the State. He also referred to the excellent free circulating collection of lantern sildes which the State museum has under him and urged the use of this educational material. R. P. Biles, who is in charge of the traveling libraries, invited the agriculturists to visit the library and see how the system is worked.

Professor McDowell spoke of the educational work of State College not particularly among the students at the college, but more especially among the educational work of State College not particularly among the students at the college, but more especially among the college but more especially among the fact the protected and unprotected birds of the seducational material. State Economic Zoologist H. A. Surface, reporting as theornithologist of the board, gave an outline of the protected and unprotected birds of the State and of the work they do and in conclusion he showed lantern slides of San Jose Scale parasites which are cleaning up the orchards of the State. Professor Franklin Menges, of York, presented his report as entomologist of the board; John H. Schultz, of Norristown, as chairman of the fertilizers committee, and sylvester Shaffer, of New Castle, as chairman of the wool and textile fibers committee.

James Foust, dairy and food commissioner, was scheduled to speak late yesterday afternoon, but was busy in court and Dr. Joseph Kalbfus, chief game protector, who was to speak tomorrow morning, made his address then. Dr. Kalbfus made an earnest plea for the preservation of bird life, saying very little about the aesthetic side. He devoted himself principally to economics, quoting figures of loss and possible loss from insects which ran from billions to sextillions and had his audience gasping.

Work Starts in Spring

Not until the work on the proposed South Harrisburg freight station improvements has been started will the Pennsylvania Railroad Company be required to pay over $25,000 bonus to the city in accordance with the provisions of the ordinance giving the Harrisburg.

This was the opinion expressed by Mayor Royal this morning when asked whether any money had been paid to detent the city. The railroad officials do not anticipate any activity on these improvements until Spring.

Charges Made Against

Prison Management

Philadelphia, Jan. 29.—Accusations of inhumanity and brutality were preferred against the management of Moyamensing prison yesterday.
