will be built when and where needed.

"What Alaska needs now are many miles of cheap roads and not a few miles of cheap roads and not a few miles of expensive roads, that will cost f100,000 or more per mile to build. Where there are only a dozen passengers per day full trains with conductor and brakeman, engineer and fireman, trackmen, station agents and interlocking signals and switches are not needed, and where freight traffic is perhaps a few thousand tons per year 50-ton steel cars that weigh 25 tons when empty are not necessary. Three or five ton truck will on a two-foot track handle the freight, and it may be more economical that they be drawn at the start by mules or an electric motor.

"In a country like Alaska a miniature line with steep curves and heavy grades is much cheaper to build and keep in repair than a standard gauge road, crossing rivers and tunneling mountains.

Frank M. Waring Leads Singers at Ridge Avenue Revival

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 5.—Political prophets are all at sea in California. The registration figures have made them castaways.

Here in the leading Progressive State in the Union the Bull Moose are running a bad second to the old line Republicans, who, in the eyes of the law, are men without a party.

The latest registration figures from the main centers of population in California show about 40,000 Republicans on the rolls to 30,000 Progressives. The Democrate are trailing along 10,000 behind the Bull Moose.

Two years ago, when Taft ran for re-election, only the hardy ones would confess to the G. Q. P. brand. It was so feeble a corporal's guard that it could not make a fight to keep on the ballot, permitting the Supreme Court, with hardly a struggle on the Republicans' part, to rule that they not only had no right to the name of the Grand Old Party, but no space, for presidential electors. If anyone wanted to vote for Mr. Taft, he could write the President's name in, the highest court in this State said.

And now these "native son" Republicans are coming back.

Early This Morning

A very pretty wedding was solemnized this morning when Miss Ferne sto the middle of the highway only. The fact that Reservoir Park extended along the opposite side, the court held, placed the park side of the street in the nonassessable class because it abutted on city or public property.

The residents of Front street above Maclay took the same view and figured that they would be liable for the test of but half of the paving. Council after a conference with City Solicitor Seitz held differently and decided to make the assessments, and, if necessary, to take the matter into court for it a final settlement. The city's contention is that the street was opened to low water mark and that therefore the abutting property owner is liable for the full width because there is no other owner on the other side.

In Front street below Maclay a different situation exists.

Between Maclay and Kelker

With a few exceptions the abutting property owners have failed to even sing upon their property on the western side of the street for park purposes.

Now the cost of the paving assessment is to be charged against the abutting property owners "or the city of Harrisburg" pending the settling of the whole question. The city's position in this phase of the problem is that the property on the west side of the street is really still owned by the abutting property owner—that he abutting property owner—that he rever gave it to the city in fee simple, but merely for "park purposes." In effect this is like a lease. Basing its contention on that ground, the city feels it may charge for the full width paying until the properties on the western side of the street are given over to the city outright.

At any rate the abutting property owners will be on the defensive when the levy of the assessment is made, and if the accounts aren't squared, liens will be filed—and the city will proceed to take the property in issue. In only one instance can the city hardly proceed. This is Henry Schudemadge, who paid for the paving for the full width of the street.

can be done, the conference of the councilmen to decide on the appointments—reappointees and new appointees—will probably be held before Tuesday's meeting.

The new plan that was talked of today is intended only to give those city office holders who are to lose their jobs a little more time to look about for another one.

Time Will Not Be Changed

The time upon which the changed to the time upon which the changed to the time upon which the changed to the time upon which the passed until next Tuesday's meeting, February 10. The new appointments, consequently, could not be presented, under the original plan, until the following Tuesday, February 17. Should, under the rules of Council, the appointments lie over a week, Council therefore would not act finally on them until the following week, February 24.

And on March 1, just a week later, the blow would fall.

"Of course," said one city official to-day, "by that time those who are to go would know pretty nearly what was going to happen anyway. Still, they would know definitely under this new plan suggested. And the suspense would be over. However, as I under stand, this is only a suggestion, and I don't know whether it will be favorably considered or not."

In municipal circles and wherever Mayor Royal's bitter partisanship is understood his criticism of his Republican colleagues in City Council for their support of the resolution to reorganize the municipal forces without further delay is exciting nothing but ridicule. He was quoted yesterday as having made this statement:

"The resolution is directed against the Police Department, attempting to run that department over which they have no control. It is done in this way to overcome criticism for the way they have acted in regard to the police, and they have been subjected to a great deal of criticism too. It is manifestly unfair—this attempting to run that department over which I am the head."
