New York, Feb. 7. — The stock market all but reached a state of deadlock this week. The buoyancy and activity of the January rise in prices vanished, and the market settled down to narrow and uncertain movements, which effected no material alterations in the level of prices. Having discounted in the recent rise the improvement in financial and business conditions the market lay quiet pending the development of new factors. As the week was bare of important developments, speculators marked time.

December reports of the principal railroads were distinctly unfavorable. There was a further improvement in the steel trade, attended in some cases by higher prices. Shares of corporations of the steel trade, attended in some cases by higher prices. Shares of corporation of the steel trade, attended to some cases by higher prices, it clies assumed that this policy would tend to hasten the restoration of peace.

Rates for money held easy and such the condifferings as were made were absorbed 'promptly. Investment conditions have improved to a point which makes probable extensive applications for new capital. Various railroads are expected to bring forward large band issues in the near future.
