

WOMEN AND THEIR INTERESTS IMAGINARY OBJECTIONS

BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX Start out a boy alone on an errand, and when he reaches his destination three blocks away he is accompanied by seven boys and a dog. This interruption to his purpose and time results in numberless objections from his mother and sisters, who scream at him when he leaves quickly, and don't stop to pick up every boy you see on the way. But do they, in the greater wisdom of their years, conduct their affairs with any greater economy of time? With no desire to excuse the boy, I claim they do not. On the contrary, they are more wasteful. They give a whistle and his boy friend comes out ready for the expedition. He never has to wait while his friend changes his clothes or makes a final dab with a powder rag, and though every boy is prodigal of time, none of this waste can be charged to the curling iron.

Many Engagements Mary can go, and it is 3 when she is ready. "Let me go to the park," Mary may suggest. "I can't," returns the first girl, "for the reason that I promised Alice I would let her know the next time I want, so she could go. If I go without her she will be offended." Obligation after obligation, promise after promise, to relatives, friends, mere acquaintances; all made in a spirit of graciousness, but so many and so conflicting that every girl is literally tied up in them. She promised Susan they would go for a certain walk sometime; Mary, that she would call for her when she went to town; Alice, that she would "stop by" on another outing, and another friend, that she would never take a certain trolley ride into the country again unless that friend went with her. All this annoyance, fretting, waste of time and offending because of sheer inability to keep every obligation, has its origin in excessive dependence on one's friends. We make our friends an obligation instead of a joy. We are like the boy who never goes and returns quickly because of the dependence he puts on the companionship of seven other boys and a dog.

Her Confidant A girl pours into another girl's ears her love for Tom, refusing to learn that the confession will humiliate her when she is in love with Dick for that purpose, we do not grieve alone, but hunt up a friend with a soft, sympathetic shoulder. The girl with one friend has much time to improve her brain and be useful. In proportion to the number of friends she has, this time for self-improvement decreases. I would not have her be a friendless, I could have her keep her friends, and make more of her but so conduct her intercourse with them that they cause no interference with what is best for her own development and improvement in life. This may be done in only one way: by refusing to regard every friend as an imaginary obligation; a being to whom promises are made that tie up, and confuse, and conflict with every duty one owes to one's self.

Their Married Life

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

Helen Realizes That Few Women Think of Their Husbands' Fixed Expenses. "See here!" Warren scowled at the bill he had just opened. "Six dollars for electric light! Isn't that pretty stiff?" "That does seem high," admitted Helen, "but the days are so short."

But she says some of the meetings are very good. I believe Mrs. Smith Rankins is going to speak next week on the Mexican situation. Warren threw up his head and roared. "The Mexican situation, eh? I can just see you Mrs. Smith Rankins, one of your big females, getting up here—here Warren pitched his voice to a shrill mimicry—"Now, ladies, this afternoon I shall give you a little talk on the Mexican situation." Then grimly, "Now if you go to any of those fool clubs and come home spouting 'current events'—there's where I get out."

Fixed expenses! Helen kept turning the phrase over in her mind. She had never even thought of her office expenses, and like so many women she never thought of her household bills—the rent, maid, telephone, groceries—as matter-of-course necessities, and not in the light of expenditures. This is the viewpoint of most women who have been provided for all their lives. They take the necessities of the home for granted. It is only the extras, the needless extravagances and luxuries that they consider as real expenditures. In a vague way Helen now realized this. She thought of the time when Warren had spoken of receiving an especially good fee, always she had mentally appropriated that money to the buying of extras. Somehow she had never thought of it as paying the rent.

Warren's steady grind. The four comprises three young women and a man. Three of them are virtuosos of the piano, violin and cello while the other possesses a voice way above the average. They unite their efforts in one of the very best musical societies ever exhibited at the Colonial. A trio of funsters and vocalists and a singing comedienne round out the vaudeville roster. A light feature, film in two parts, called "The Masquerader," will be a special attraction to-day.—Advertisement.

But now the firm of Ellison & Briggs has announced the loss of three hundred dollars. This is a concrete example of the "hard times" affecting them that Helen could understand. Had he suffered other losses, which she knew nothing of? For Warren rarely talked shop at home. He had taken some papers from his pocket and was now going over them broodingly, his face showing unmistakable lines of worry. "D-ar, has it been a very bad year for you?" "Well, it's not been a particularly good one."

The Majestic Theater to-night will be the scene of interest for our Yiddish theater-goers, when Mme. Thomashesky returns again and will present a new play, "The Country Girl." So far as the art side of this company is concerned there need be no hesitation on the part of theater-goers of other nationalities, as the interpretation by Mme. Thomashesky and her company is on a plane which does not require thorough understanding of the words for a full knowledge of the play.—Advertisement.

VICTORIA THEATER

"Victory or Death" is a great five-act picture showing the life of a man big and diplomatic circles who has a charming daughter who is much sought after by many foreign people. One man, because he could not marry the girl, stole some very important papers and the girl undertakes to recover them. How she does it is interestingly told in this picture. "Divorce" is a two-act drama worth seeing. "Mabel's Bare Escape" is a very funny Keystone picture.—Advertisement.

Mother Stanislaus Tells of Recovery

Throat Troubles. Like continued coughs and colds, often seriously affect the lungs. If you have not found any improvement from the treatment you have tried, investigate the many reports showing benefits, and in numerous cases, complete recoveries brought about by the use of Eckman's Alternative. This is a medicine for Throat and Lung Troubles, favorably known for more than fifteen years. Read this case: Convent of St. Anne, Sanford, Fla. "Gentlemen: In February, 1911, four doctors examined my throat and pronounced the necessity of an operation. Having heard at Peekskill, N. Y., Motherhouse of the Sisters of St. Francis, where I was visiting, of Eckman's Alternative, I determined as a last resort to try it. After taking four or five bottles large pieces of diseased tissue came away, continued the Alternative, to my grateful and daily relief. In ten months I was restored to perfect health. I would be glad to write or talk to any person who may have a doubt about it. I would like them to see and hear from my own lips, if they so desire, all the (Signed) MOTHER M. STANISLAUS (Above abbreviated; more on request.) Eckman's Alternative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious for severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Contains no narcotics, poison or habit-forming drugs. Sold by leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratories, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.—Advertisement.

Madame Isbell's Beauty Lesson

LESSON XI—PART I. PHYSICAL CULTURE. To keep young and attractive looking in the desire of every woman as she approaches middle age. How to be beautiful is the query of every girl nearing womanhood. This passionate desire for beauty is given by nature in most cases work is necessary to acquire and retain them. I believe everyone after childhood needs some form of physical culture. Children in their play exercise every muscle of their body, but after playtime is passed only certain sets of muscles are used. This is the time when it is necessary to supplement with daily, systematic exercise. Contrary to general opinion, hard work does not always make a strong, well-developed body. Manual labor may make certain muscles strong, but it doesn't encourage general strength, grace or poise. If it were so we should find in farming communities the highest types of physical perfection, for it is certainly the men and women from the country who accomplish the greatest amount of physical labor. But the truth is that farm work does not tend to grace or perfect development. Work on the Farm. A man that mows or shovels rarely stands straight; every inch that the spade goes into the ground pulls him the further over, and this is true of weeding, hoeing and most of the small tasks connected with farm work. Neither does such work make one quick and lithe in movement, one of the first requisites for a good physique. Prize fighters and athletes who must overcome heaviness find rope jumping excellent. They also practice dance steps, the fighter to make him light on his feet and the actress to preserve the lithe walk that we associate with youth. Lesson XI to be continued.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP MEETING WITH OPPOSITION

Boston, Feb. 9.—Opposition to immediate ownership of telephone and telegraph systems by the government is expressed in a statement given out by the New England Council of Electric Workers' Union. The statement says: "The are now in operation many government owned systems which are operated at a loss. The history of public ownership shows that when government ownership steps in, labor unions must step out."

TO LECTURE ON "LINCOLN"

Fineley J. Thomas, patriotic instructor of Post No. 68, Grand Army of the Republic, has completed all arrangements for a lecture to be delivered by the Rev. M. L. Ganoe, D. D., of Chambersburg, department chaplain of the Grand Army of the Republic of Pennsylvania. The lecture will be held Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the Post rooms of No. 58, North Third street. The subject will be "Lincoln." All other local posts and Civil War veterans are invited to attend.

Sore Throat or Mouth.

You must keep the throat and mouth clean and healthy. Any disease that attacks the canal through which must pass the food we eat, the beverages we drink and the very air we breathe is a serious matter. Why neglect Sore Throat or Sore Mouth when TONSILINE makes it so easy for you to get relief? TONSILINE is the remedy specially prepared for that purpose. TONSILINE does its full duty—you can depend upon it. Keep a bottle in the house—where you can get it quick when needed. 25c and 50c. Hospital Size $1.00. All Druggists.

How to Make Better Cough Syrup than You Can Buy

A full pint of cough syrup—as much as you could buy for $2.50—can easily be made at home. You will find nothing that takes hold of the ordinary cough more quickly, usually conquering it in 24 hours. Excellent, too, for spasmodic cough, whooping cough, bronchial asthma and bronchitis. Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. This is just laxative enough to help relieve a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, which is usually upset by a cough. The taste is pleasant. The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in gauliac and other natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this combination. This Pinex and Sugar Syrup remedy has often been imitated, but the old successful mixture has never been equaled. It is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy. A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.
