WANTS TO KNOW WHY HE CAN'T BE RECTOR
 must "dig out" and leave the parish house, as Triceps, president of the church council, critically, albeit a trifle vulgarly, put it in a letter.
 Strife and Turmoil
 For instance, the inner workings of the Servian house of worship haven't been moving smoothly and the suit in equity is a climax of a rather lengthy story of strife and turmoil.
 Furthermore, the Rev. Mr. Vukichievich is not alone in his battle for his rights. Half a dozen members of the council and a majority of the congregation are with him, Attorney Stucker contends. That's why at 10 o'clock Monday morning the hour fixed for the hearings some 200-odd of the faithful of St. Nicholas, Vukichievich and anti-Vukichievich, are expected to help fill up courtroom No. 1.
 Most of the congregation will be here, expect said Mr. Stucker solemnly when discussing the matter today.

Cross of More Than Usual Weight
 While practically the whole of the Rev. Mr. Vukichievich's tenure has been a cross of more than the usual kind, the final struggle, which began about February 1 when the rector refused to perform a marriage ceremony. The rector believed he was right about that. Poor, Grand and pretty Angelina Mall were the lucky pair. The age of the bride-to-be was given as sixteen, but the priest declared he didn't think she was more than a child.
 The rector's refusal to perform the rites until he had investigated. Promptly Mr. Triceps, Peter Kakevich, Stanko Vilencia, Juro Andric, Sam Jevonich and some others took exception to this. They by the way, are some of the opposing faction in the church council and defendants in the equity proceeding.
 In April the rector refused to threaten to lick the rector then and there; others cursed him; still others, the plaintiff declares, even threatened to kid him. It all part of a plot to get rid of the rector, the reverend father declares.

Oh! the Fendishness of It
 Furthermore, there have been in situations to the effect that he didn't fulfill the provisions of his contract with the church. The clause in question provided that the rector, in going round taking up the collections he shall be accompanied by the cantor, or church singer. Not that it is ordinarily supposed that the man with the highest right to sing a button once in a while or otherwise slip something over, but because it's a requirement of the church ritual. However, Vukichievich hasn't allowed the church singer to accompany him, the anti-rector contend. And there have been murmurings of some shortages on the collection plate now and then.
 Finally, the rector has refused to let Vukichievich and a lot of the members of the church council share in the collection of the money and most of the congregation to get into the house of worship. And the custom is for at least two services per day.

The Unkindest Cut of All
 But the unkindest cut of all was President Triceps' letter to the Rev. Dr. Vukichievich to get out of the parish house. Here's the letter as translated:
 "I don't dig out from the parish house to-morrow, Friday, February 13, then we will proceed according to the law of America. The best way would be that you go without any trouble, and that I don't have to put up with the parish house. It is a house for church members (and it is this covert slur that causes Vukichievich such sorrow) and not for rent. Last wishes from one that is going to get out of the house by Saturday. Dig out."
 Now President Judge Kunkel will have to settle it.

LECTURE ON STONY RIVER DAM FAILURE
 present to enter into the discussion and to express their views relative to the failure. Members of the editorial staffs of the larger engineering publications will also be present. Edward Wegman, of the Erie and York, who was consulting engineer for the dam, and who is a noted authority on such structures, announced his intention of being on hand. He will not only discuss the dam, but will also show some lantern slides of the Austin dam, the construction of the great New Croton dam, which is part of the enormous water supply system now being built for the supply of New York city.
 Mr. Seelye made the trip over Canaan Mountain to the site of the wrecked structure in a driving blizzard, through knee-deep snow, and was one of the first engineers on the ground. As he spent considerable time in thoroughly investigating the matter it is expected that the lecture will be of great interest, not only to engineers, but to the public in general.
 The failure of this large dam was attended by widespread public interest. It was constructed by the West Virginia Pulp and Paper company to supply wash water for their mill at Luke, Md., at a cost of about $200,000. It is 1,075 feet long and fifty feet high, and impounded 1,400,000 gallons in a reservoir two miles long and one-third of a mile wide. In seven times as much water as there was in the Austin reservoir, and it was due only to the fortunate location of this reservoir that a tremendous catastrophe was averted.
 Members of the Engineers' Society have been notified that they may bring their friends or others who may be interested to the lecture.

THE MONROE DISASTER INQUIRY CONTINUES
 Philadelphia, Feb. 12.—The present inquiry into the collision between the steamships Nantucket and Monroe off the Virginia coast on January 30, in which forty-one lives were lost, will no doubt lead to changes in the regulations for the navigation of coastwise vessels, and also to the adoption of rules increasing the efficiency of the wireless operators so as to assist vessel commanders to ascertain the proximity of other ships during foggy weather.
 During the examination of Captain E. E. Johnson, of the Nantucket, in the trial of Captain Osmyr Berry, commander of the Nantucket, charged with negligence, the Monroe captain said that operators do not always answer questions from other ships with relation to their position.
 Captain Johnson testified at today's hearing that he was steering a north-easterly course when he first saw the Nantucket about 300 feet away. At that moment the Nantucket, he said, was pointed to the starboard side of the Monroe forward of the stack and that the Nantucket's course was west-northwest.
 Plans of the Monroe, furnished by her builders, were admitted in evidence and Captain Johnson examined to develop whether the Monroe was of good construction.

Waddell, in Bed, Says He Will Never Pitch Another Game of Ball
 Superior, Wis., Feb. 12.—Rube Waddell, the great lefthander, who in his day was one of the best pitchers that ever worked in the major leagues, will never pitch another game. The admission comes from Rube himself, who has returned his unsigned contract to "Kid" Taylor, of Superior, who is manager of the Virginia, Minn., of the Northern League. Waddell came to Virginia last year from Minneapolis and was reserved for this season.
 "I am sending back the contract unsigned," writes Rube to Boones, Texas. "I would like to play, but never could get in shape. I might as well admit the truth about myself. I am in hopeless shape. I have lost 64 pounds since I was up North. I now weigh only 151. I am very weak and cannot walk twenty feet. I am writing this in bed."
 "I have a nurse with me all the time and a doctor comes to see me three times a week. He says I probably will be better when warmer weather comes."

"ALLOWANCES" DISCUSSED
 Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—"Allowances" made by the railroads to certain shippers, declared to aggregate annually many millions of dollars, and one of the most important phases of the Interstate Commerce Commission's hearings on the proposal of the fifty-two Eastern railroads to increase their freight rates 5 per cent., was the subject of a conference at the commission today.

MONROE DISASTER INQUIRY CONTINUES
 Johnson Says He Was Steering Northeast When He Sighted Nantucket
 Philadelphia, Feb. 12.—The present inquiry into the collision between the steamships Nantucket and Monroe off the Virginia coast on January 30, in which forty-one lives were lost, will no doubt lead to changes in the regulations for the navigation of coastwise vessels, and also to the adoption of rules increasing the efficiency of the wireless operators so as to assist vessel commanders to ascertain the proximity of other ships during foggy weather.
 During the examination of Captain E. E. Johnson, of the Nantucket, in the trial of Captain Osmyr Berry, commander of the Nantucket, charged with negligence, the Monroe captain said that operators do not always answer questions from other ships with relation to their position.
 Captain Johnson testified at today's hearing that he was steering a north-easterly course when he first saw the Nantucket about 300 feet away. At that moment the Nantucket, he said, was pointed to the starboard side of the Monroe forward of the stack and that the Nantucket's course was west-northwest.
 Plans of the Monroe, furnished by her builders, were admitted in evidence and Captain Johnson examined to develop whether the Monroe was of good construction.

 "Brewster's Millions," the now familiar story of McCutcheon, was the attraction at the Majestic last night. A house about three-quarters filled greeted the company presenting the show which has played brilliantly in several previous engagements. The show though old, still has drawing power, and as proven last night is still capable of affording good amusement.
 The company lost no opportunity to bring out all of the good humor which the playwright has woven into the production, and although at points the acting was weak; yet the whole gave a most enjoyable performance.
 Louis Nilson as Brewster, Mae Holland as Peggy, and Earl Christie as Sunshine McCloud carried their parts well, although Monty Brewster's work might have been improved had he not insisted upon trying so individually to secure "laughs." However, a great part of this may be excused upon the grounds that his part of the show makes him act as a man apparently crazy with the "hard work" of spending money; and he should, therefore, not be held accountable.
 On the whole, the production is well acted, and demonstrates the fact that Harrisburg does like the theater at popular prices.
