New York, Feb. 18.—From two sources to-day word came to New York that the big five-masted schooner Kineo, of Bath, Maine, was in distress, leaning badly and in danger of sinking north northeast of the Diamond Shoals, off Cape Hatteras. The revenue cutter service was notified that the cutter Onondaga had been dispatched to the schooner's aid from Fort Monroe and a wireless message concerning the schooner's plight was received here from the Savannah Line steamer City of Atlanta bound from Savannah to Boston. The City of Atlanta said that the schooner was making twelve inches of water an hour.

AUTO LICENSES TO BE HELD UP A WHILE

Fiscal Officials Not Yet Ready to Make Any Payment to Highway Department

whether the act of 1913 providing for the income under the new scale conflicts with the specific appropriation act of 1909 or else the Legislature will settle it. In any event, use of any of the money for improvement of roads this year appears to be doubtful for a while at least.

Highway Commissioner Bigelow yesterday made a test requisition, which it is the plan to renew in a new form later in the day, and then if payment is refused by the Auditor General and State Treasurer a mandamus proceeding will be started.

The fiscal officers will probably ask for time to consult their counsel when the requisition is finally made. The Distribution Act.—Deputy Attorney General Morris Wolf has given an opinion in which he holds that the distribution of documents under the act of 1913 provides that the division of documents shall have charge of the State publications and issue them and that the State departments will have nothing to do with it.

Public Service Busy.—The Public Service Commission to-day took up the hearing of the objections to the proposed telephone rate schedule by the Bell Telephone Company. The testimony on physical valuation was resumed. The morning was devoted to hearing objections to the proposed bridge over railroads planned by the borough of Butler and the complaint of the Coudersport Water Company that the borough had started construction of a water plant without State permission. A number of contracts were approved, including the Conewago Gas Company and the borough of Spring Grove.

Five For Conscience.—The State Treasury to-day received $5 for the conscience fund from Bloomsburg. The letter was sent to Philadelphia for mailing.

Expect Transfer.—State officials expect the transfer of the sixteen insane persons from the Dauphin almshouse to the State hospital to be arranged. An order will be submitted to Judge Kunkel.

Secure Convictions.—Convictions of a number of persons who ran automobiles without tags have been secured in Philadelphia, Scranton and Pittsburgh. A number of suits are pending.

Governor to Return.—Governor Tener, who spoke last night at East Stroudsburg, is expected to return here to-morrow for a meeting of the Board of Public Grounds and Buildings.

Becht to Speak.—Dr. J. George Becht, secretary of the State Board of Education, will speak at a big meeting of people interested in education and kindred affairs at Williamsport. Dr. Becht lived for a time in Lycoming county.

Army Board.—The State Army Board will meet to-morrow to open new bids for the improvement of the Fourteenth regiment army building. New Committee.—On May 1 the practice of chiropody is to be brought under the State regulation, and to this end the State Bureau of Medical Education and Licensure has appointed five expert chiropodists as an advisory committee to assist the bureau in determining the qualifications of candidates for licenses to practice chiropody. The committee consists of the following: Chairman, James R. Beanie, Philadelphia; secretary, W. Ashton Kennedy; Frank F. King, Erie; Albert C. Smallwood, Pittsburgh; Miss Josephine Watrous, Wilkes-Barre.

HEARD ON THE "HILL" Senator S. W. Salus, of Philadelphia, was at the Capitol to-day. W. W. McElree, of West Chester, who was one of counsel in the Capitol cases, was here to-day. Superintendent Schaeffer will speak at Sunbury to-night. M. T. Stokes, Coudersport editor, spent the day at the Capitol. Chairman Ewing, who has been seriously ill, is reported as improving.

TRACY IS NO LONGER ON PUBLIC WORKS BOARD

been deeply concerned in the working out of the important plans for the various enterprises under the supervision of the Board of Public Works and rail wishes this work only because his personal business interests require his time and attention.

Mr. Tracy has been foremost in everything that makes for the rebuilding of the city and his colleagues and those who are familiar with his public spirit and devotion to the welfare of Harrisburg sincerely regret his decision to retire.

Mr. Tracy has been contemplating this step for sometime and finally concluded that now was a better time to drop out of the board than during the busy season. He said to-day:

"I am sorry that I could not continue the work and regret that I am compelled to sever my very pleasant relations with the other members of the board. Superintendent Lynch has given us very earnest and cordial cooperation and I have reason to believe that he will see to it that the original plans are carried out in harmony with the views of the consulting engineer. Only the pressure of my own business has forced me to retire from the board."

Jericho, Long Island, Feb. 18.—The country home of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., valued with its furnishings and art treasures at nearly $1,000,000, was destroyed to-day by fire.
