

Women and Their Interests

By DOROTHY DIX

I hope that every girl in the length and breadth of the land has been reading the sad and terrible story of Hazel Herdman, who murdered the wife of her lover and then took her own miserable life, because the wife would not get a divorce from her husband and leave him free to marry her.

The stark tragedy of such a story preaches a sermon more powerful than any printed or uttered words upon the wickedness and the folly of young women carrying on love affairs with married men.

Many girls indulge in these shady romances. Many girls are proud of their ability to attract married men, and boast of such conquests. Let them all be warned by the fate of this poor girl, for in some degree every one of them sooner or later will share in the agony she suffered, for while not every love affair with a married man ends in bloody murder, every one ends in a bleeding heart for the woman.

The girl who permits herself to be drawn into a love affair with a married man is not only a sinner, but she is a fool. She is playing a game in which the dice are loaded.

very devil of a fellow among the girls. The woman who chooses the primrose path takes enough risk, God knows, but she who elects to tread it with a married man is foredoomed to walk only upon thorns. She does not have even a sporting chance at happiness!

That a married man should be fascinated by an inexperienced and silly girl is not surprising. For one thing he represents to her forbidden fruit, and the very knowledge that he belongs to another is a certain ally to a flirtation with him. It fills her with a delicious sense of wickedness to have clandestine meetings with him and little dinners and suppers that are spiced by the thought of what would happen if his wife should suddenly walk into the restaurant.

Also, in many women, there is a streak of mischievous cruelty. It gives them pleasure to think of how they are torturing some fat and middle-aged wife with jealousy, and of how she is hurled down on the grocery bills to pay for the champagne they are wasting.

But the chief fascination of the married man is that he plays the game of love with the sure hand of a professional. The very fact that he is married has made him wise to the psychology of woman, and taught him a hundred little ways to touch a woman's imagination and emotion that the bachelor does not know. He plays with a girl's heart as a cat does with a mouse—and she has just as little chance of escaping as the mouse has, once she permits herself to get within his claws.

convince a censorious and scandal-loving world of it.

Such a man will deliberately win a girl's heart for the sop to his vanity that it is, knowing that it can bring her nothing but misery. Then when anxiety and bad desire have worn the freshness from her beauty and the gladness from her spirit he will cowardly take shelter behind his wedding ring and tell her that she has no right to reproach him, that she knew all the time that he was bound to another.

Sometimes a married man does fall honestly in love with a girl, but how selfish is the love that draws a woman into the slough of a hopeless entanglement! The man knows that he can make no return to the woman that he binds to him that will not compromise her.

He can only keep her from marrying and establishing a home of her own. He can only fill her heart so full of love that there is no place in it for another. He can only give her a love that is the most blighting curse on earth to her.

The girl who indulges in a love affair with a married man comforts herself with the hope that he will divorce his wife and marry her. This is a weak reason upon which to lean. Divorce is not to be had for the asking, nor does the man always wish for it. Often the very married man who is seducing a girl and leading her to perdition gives whatever of honor and respect he is capable of to his wife, and would not think of bestowing his name upon the frail creature with whom he assumes himself.

The Woman Gives All, and the Man Risks Nothing

All the odds are against her. She is giving all, risking all, while the man risks nothing. He does not even take the chances of a bachelor on having to marry her if he compromises her or being sued for breach of promise. He is faithless. His marriage contract protects him from the consequences of his wrongdoing and leaves the girl to bear the burden alone.

It is useless for her to claim that he is more guilty than she, because he has been a traitor to the wife that he had sworn at the altar to be true to, while she is free to give her love where she pleases. Society will draw its skirts away from the woman and sneer at her with scorn, while it dies the married Lotario in the ribs, winks at him and tells him that he's a

A Married Man's Love is a Curse to the Girl Taking It

The great majority of married men who make love to girls are dastards, without one ray of conscience or honor. To amuse themselves they dishonestly offer up a young woman on the altar of their pleasure; for they know, even if she does not, what a love affair with a married man means to a girl and the price she must pay.

It is useless for her to claim that a girl can go automobiling with a married man, or be seen at the theater with him, or out dining with him, without comment being made upon it other than as a kindly and friendly attention. But the man knows that even if she is as chaste as ice and pure as snow that you could never

The Fire of Jealousy Cannot Be Put Out With Love

And always, for the girl who falls in love with a married man, is that terrible, frantic jealousy of the wife, which bears his name, who has a right to be at his side, who is recognized by society. No belief that the man loves her the better can ever quench this jealousy in the heart of the other woman. It is a canker that eats into her very soul until it poisons her spirit with its stings every day.

No happiness endures that is built on the misery of another. You cannot win without paying the price! That is the moral that the story of Hazel Herdman teaches every girl who is following along the devious path she trod.

JOHN BULL ABROAD

The Paris Liberte has discovered the most "merry" of English tourists—albeit a self-well-known race. This man entered a well-known restaurant, accompanied by two little girls, ordered a bottle of mineral water and three plates, and began to eat sandwiches, which he had brought with him in his pockets.

The manager, overcome by this outrage, approached him and said: "I should like to inform you that this is not a—"

"Who are you?" interrupted the Englishman.

"I am the manager," was the reply.

"Oh, you are the manager are you? That is good, I was just going to send for you. Why are the band playing?"

OLD-TIME COLD CURE—DRINK TEA!

Get a small package of Hamburg bread Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brud Tea," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water over it, pour through a sieve and drink it as a tea cup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break up cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores relieving congestion. Also loosens the walls, thus breaking a cold at once. It is inexpensive, entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.—Advertisement.

LIFE IS A FUNNY PROPOSITION AFTER ALL

"I Spent the Last Six Years in Pain and Misery, Whereas They Surely Could Have Been Spent Hale and Hearty, Had I Known What I Know Now"

Words similar to above were spoken this morning at the drug store in the presence of a number of other people by Mr. Rudolph Specker, of Steelton. He further stated his case as follows: "Just about six years ago I became afflicted with what was pronounced kidney trouble. I began to have pains across my back and shoulders, which became worse from day to day. Eventually these pains spread to different parts of my body, sometimes my arms would ache and at other times the pains seemed to jump to my knees and ankles. I realized then that I suffered from a terrible case of rheumatism and I began to squander my money for a cure. I used electric and massage treatments, liniments and oils, and was always taking some kind of internal medicine or other, but no cure. I became so discouraged that I often wished I were dead. I was told to call and learn what the Quaker remedies would do for me, but I had lost all confidence and refused to visit him. A neighbor of mine, Mr. Henry Hohman, bought a full treatment of the Quaker remedies for rheumatism, and it was helping him so much that he begged me to try some of his treatment. I did so and was surprised to find that it was helping me. I then sent to the drug store for a treatment. To-day after taking the remedy just about six weeks, I can truthfully state that I am entirely cured. I have no more aches or pains. I again walk without my cane, and I must admit that Quaker Extract and Oil have cured me. I am going to Atlantic City to spend about ten days and upon my return I will gladly meet any sufferer of rheumatism and prove that Quaker cured me."

If you suffer from rheumatism, catarrh or stomach troubles, call and obtain the remedies from W. H. Kennedy's drug store, 30 South Third street.—Advertisement.

Mudge sang a solo, "Hear Ye, Israel," the moral cantata by the church organist, played special music.

The church was decorated for the ceremony with American Beauty roses and carnations.

THE NEW YOKE SKIRT WITH LONG PEPLUM

8156 Semi-Princess Gown with Tunic, 34 to 42 bust.

WITH ONE-PIECE YOKE SKIRT AND PEPLUM. LONG OR THREE-QUARTER SLEEVES.

The peplum costume is always a pretty one but, at this season of the year, it is especially valuable. On mild days, it can be worn on the street with the addition of a fur scarf or some similar wrap while it is equally good for indoor occasions. Here is a costume made with a simple straight tunic over a yoke skirt so that there is no unnecessary fullness or bulk over the hips. Below the yoke, the skirt is cut in one piece and the drapery at the back is a smart feature. Such a gown can be made from silk or crepe or it can be made from serge, wool crepe or poplin to be generally useful. It is the difference in material rather than the difference in cut which determines the use of the gown today. The sleeves make an important feature, being cut in one with the back while they are joined to the fronts in raglan style.

For the medium size, the gown will require 8 1/2 yds. of material 27 1/2 yds. 36, 3 3/8 yds. 44 in. wide, with 3/8 yd. 21 in. wide for the collar and cuffs. The width of the skirt at the lower edge is 1 yd. and 14 in.

The pattern 8156 is cut in sizes from 34 to 42 inches bust measure. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

THE UPS AND DOWNS OF A WORD

[From the Christian Herald.]

The word "love" has been a favorite one for the poets and story-tellers of all ages, but the New Testament word for love is unique. It stands for an idea, an experience, a possession that did not exist before Jesus came. In fact, the word itself, the very letters of it, was almost new when the New Testament authors were writing. It was a word that the editors of the Septuagint Version of the Bible had used when they made their translation of the Old Testament from Hebrew into Greek about two hundred years before the birth of Christ. But the word is not found in classical Greek. It seems to be a word that belongs particularly to the Bible, and, especially, to the New Testament.

What did Paul mean by this wonderful word "love"? It seems extremely unfortunate that the translators of the King James Version word has come to mean just what Paul distinctly says he did not mean. "Though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor"—that is charity, as the word is now used in English, and Paul was talking about something much higher than that.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

MABEL—A wash cloth of Turkish toweling is too rough for any skin and delicate skin will have a disastrous effect. Use a square of soft linen and pass it through boiling water daily. Silled or soap-caked wash cloths are great pimples breeders. Never lose sight of the fact that the face is more delicate than that of any other part of the body, and that, at the same time, it is exposed to every change of temperature, to dry and rough, or to inflame easily, dispense with soap entirely and cleanse the skin with a good cleansing cream or oil cream.

L. A. L. writes me that her eyebrows are both thin and pale in color and asks me to advise her as to how to dye. At any drugist you can get a cake of ink called "Mascara," either in brown or black, and a small brush with which to apply it. This is not a permanent dye, but will come off with water. I should not advise using a permanent dye on the eyebrows. At your age you can count on your eyebrows growing darker with time. Apply yellow vaseline night and morning and brush them with an eyebrow brush. If you cannot obtain this, ask your drugist for a baby's tooth brush.

In Madame Isbell's next lesson to appear in these columns will continue the course of Physical Culture, taking up different exercises to strengthen and improve the figure.
