

Women and Their Interests

The Price of Happiness; Only the Poor Have It

By DOROTHY DIX

Who get the most real pleasure out of life, rich people or poor people? Is happiness for sale over the counter, like a pack of cigarettes or a diamond ring, and can only those purchase it who have the price?

The other day two clerks, strong, healthy young fellows, earning fairly good salaries and on the way to do better, were discussing the announcement that Mr. Vincent Astor proposed to fly down to town every morning in a hydroplane from his place on the Hudson. They were fairly shocked at the thought of a millionaire taking such risks with his precious life. It seemed almost sacrilegious to them for anybody with that much money to even take a chance at getting killed.

"Geese!" exclaimed one of the youths, "if I was as rich as he I'd be so afraid of getting hurt I would go about in a goat cart surrounded by a steel cage. You wouldn't catch me doing any death-defying leap in a hydroplane, or aeroplane, or even an automobile."

"You are right," agreed the other young man. "If I had as much to live for as he has I wouldn't even cross a street for fear of being run over by a parambulator until they had stopped traffic both ways."

Thereupon the two young men, feeling that there wasn't any particular purpose in exercising any special precaution in preserving the lives of thirty-dollar-a-week clerks, proceeded to divert themselves by riding motorcycles and engaging in other dangerous amusements in which they found the keenest enjoyment.

Poor Have the Liberty That Is Foundation of Happiness

And it never occurred to either one of them that in so doing they were depriving, in the most conclusive manner, their own theory that wealth brings happiness, and the more money people have the more fun they get out of living. For the mere fact that we are poor enough and inconspicuous enough to do as we please without making a particle of difference to the balance of the world, or calling for a headline in a newspaper, means liberty, which is the very foundation stone of happiness, and that is a luxury that the poor rich man never knows.

We are continually called upon to weep over the pathetic fate of poor children whose home is the street and whose playground the gutter. We might as well shed other tears over the sad lot of the multi-millionaire baby whose cradle is guarded by armed detectives, whose food is regulated by a high-priced doctor, whose toys are sterilized, who has only a bowing acquaintance with its parents, and who never knows what it is to have one single hour of natural, untrammelled freedom.

Poor children are happier than rich children, and they have a better chance in life, for it is the curse of wealth that it kills ambition and numbs effort. Someone said to a very rich self-made man once that he had given his son every advantage of education. "Yes," replied the wise old man sadly, "every advantage but the greatest advantage of all—poverty, which couldn't give my son the chance in life I had myself."

Certainly, however, the vast majority believe that wealth brings happiness and that a young man as rich as Vincent Astor, say, gets more real fun out of living than does the youth in moderate circumstances—the young man who, by his own efforts, is making a comfortable income.

How do they figure this out? Not in physical comfort. No matter how rich a man may be he cannot eat more than one good dinner at a time, and that has to be of plain food habitually, or else he acquires dyspepsia, which is no respecter of pocketbooks. He cannot sleep in but one bed. He cannot wear but one suit of clothes at a time.

After a certain point riches add nothing to your comfort.

He can enjoy no more heat in winter, nor breezes in summer; use no more light, nor more bath tubs, than any man of moderate means. After you reach a certain not very excited point of wealth in these days of modern conveniences the purchasing power of money is nil in bringing you physical comfort.

Work? That's not a misfortune, but a blessing. Work is excitement, thrill, never-fading game on earth, and the man who gets up every morning with the knowledge that there's a going to get to pit his skill and diplomacy and intelligence against the champions of his community, has got something to live for. Besides, no other people on earth work so hard and so cheerfully as those whose sole occupation is killing time.

Vanity? You think it must be delightful to be kowtowed to because you are rich? Perhaps, and if you have been poor and made the money have fought the fight and won out. But there's nothing to be chummy about—no thrill of gratified vanity in money that you have inherited. It takes luck, and not talent, to be born with a bank book in your mouth.

Friendship? That's the choicest pleasure in life, but it reserves exclusively for the delight of the poor. No rich man has any friends, because experience of toadies and sycophants has taught him to be suspicious of everybody that he trusts nobody and believes in the sincerity of no one.

Love Is a Paradise from Which Cupid Bars the Rich Man

Love? A paradise before which Cupid stands with a golden sword and turns the millionaire away. No rich man may ever even hope to be loved for himself alone. He is the prey of the adventures, of the avaricious, the scheming woman who is willing to sell her soul for money and position. How little domestic happiness is found in the homes of the very rich the divorce court records prove.

The truth is that money doesn't buy happiness, and the man with a moderate income can get far more pleasure out of living than the millionaire can. Which is a comforting thought for the vast majority of us who are engaged in the exciting and pleasurable sport of chasing the wolf from the door.

THIS CUFF SKIRT IS SOMETHING NEW
Turned-up Band at Bottom of Skirt and Peg Top Drapery

$6.00 Semi-Princess Dress for Misses and Small Women, 16 and 18 years.

WITH ONE-PIECE SKIRT TO BE MADE WITH OR WITHOUT CUFF, WITH LONG OR ELBOW SLEEVES.

The cuff skirt or the one that is trimmed with a turned-up portion is new and smart and has practical advantages. The doubling of the material means strength and, if the cuff becomes slightly worn, it can be removed to leave the under portion fresh. Altogether, this costume is an interesting one. The drapery over the hips gives the peg top effect so much in demand and the surplus blouse is trimmed to suggest the raglan idea. As shown here, the frock is made of silk and wool crepe with a chemisette of net and trimming of banding, but almost every reasonable material that will drape prettily can be used. Poplin is to be a favorite of the coming season, however, and will make up attractively in this way.

The new taffetas are wonderfully supple and beautiful and, for the trimming and chemisette, whatever harmonizes with the special material can be used.

For the 16 year size, the dress will require 6 yds. of material, 2 1/2 yds. 36, 4 1/2 yds. 44 in. wide, with 7 1/2 yd. 27 in. wide for the chemisette, 2 yds. of banding.

The pattern $16.00 is cut in sizes for girls of 16 and 18 years. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

MISS JESSIE WENRICH IS BRIDE OF FRANK WITMER

Special to The Telegraph
Penbrook, Pa., Feb. 21.—Miss Jessie Wenrich, of Main street, and Frank Witmer, of Twenty-first and State streets, were married at Canton, Pa., yesterday by the Rev. George Wenrich, pastor of the United Brethren Church of that town.

The couple left Harrisburg yesterday morning after Miss Wenrich had quietly left this town to avoid the old-fashioned reception which has been planned for them by their friends. She boarded a car, was joined by the groom in Harrisburg and the couple left on an early morning train. Arriving at Canton, they were met by relatives, after which they were married by the bride's uncle.

After a short wedding tour they will return to this town, where they will make their home. Mr. Witmer was formerly employed in Harrisburg. Mr. Witmer is an inspector for the Pennsylvania Railroad.

AMUSEMENTS

MAJESTIC
To-day, matinee and night, Lyman H. Howe's "Travel Festival at the Majestic Theater to-day, matinee and night. It is easy to understand what master hand was necessary to direct the efforts of the cast.

The fiery yeasers of Yellowstone Park, which act as a "safety valve" for the emotions of the audience, are the feature of Howe's new program.—Advertisement.

"TRAFFIC IN SOULS"
The last word and best work in the moving picture line is "Traffic in Souls," which will be presented at the Majestic Theater all next week, starting Monday. This is the biggest aquatic act in vaudeville; Ethel Green, the woman who is the center of the story of "Traffic in Souls" has for its central figure a salesgirl, who betrays infidelity to one of her customers.—Advertisement.

ORPHEUM
The very clever and interesting bill that proved so popular at the Orpheum this week, bows for its final engagements to-day. This means that we will miss Earl's Diving Nymphs, the biggest aquatic act in vaudeville; Ethel Green, the woman who is the center of the story of "Traffic in Souls" has for its central figure a salesgirl, who betrays infidelity to one of her customers.—Advertisement.

ORPHEUM
The very clever and interesting bill that proved so popular at the Orpheum this week, bows for its final engagements to-day. This means that we will miss Earl's Diving Nymphs, the biggest aquatic act in vaudeville; Ethel Green, the woman who is the center of the story of "Traffic in Souls" has for its central figure a salesgirl, who betrays infidelity to one of her customers.—Advertisement.

The act employs the efforts of a cast of some twenty players, most of them clever and attractive girls, and they offer their turn in beautiful stage settings and beautiful costumes. In the headline class also will be Melville and Higgins, the eccentric funsters, who made expressions like "Let it lay," and "In dems time" are plugging on me all the time," popular here. Once the couple appeared at the Orpheum, they were started and the manager said the bill will be a real George Washington vaudeville bill, although the management has announced that the matinee on Monday will be the same as usual, without the customary advance for a holiday matinee.—Advertisement.

AT THE COLONIAL
Fun and frolic are well represented in the splendid vaudeville bill that appears for the last times at the Colonial to-day, to say nothing of the delightful harmony provided by the Saxophone Five. The offering of the Saxophone Five is easily worth the price of admission in itself. "The Tourists," a musical comedy in miniature, with a cast of six girls and a cast of six boys, much like the Lasky acts, is booked to appear at the Colonial for the first half of next week.—Advertisement.

VICTORIA THEATER
A special Thursday feature heads the program to-day. The picture was made and acted by the well known favorite, including the three young stars which are in this company, "The Dancers." In two acts, will also be shown "The Girl from Rome," a Keystone comic picture which is bound to make you laugh. The Renfax Musical Motion pictures wait here on Monday, and they are the best made.—Advertisement.

POULTRY MEETING HERE ON MARCH 11

IF HENS DON'T LAY IN SPRING, WELL!

By-laws Will Likely Be Adopted and Permanent Organization Effected

The committee of the Pennsylvania State Poultry Society, appointed by President Welmer at the Harrisburg meeting January 26, to draft by-laws, has completed its work and Secretary J. D. Koons, Treichlers, Pa., has issued a call for another meeting of the society at Harrisburg, March 11, for the purpose of adopting the by-laws and effecting a permanent organization. This meeting will be held in the parlors of the Bolton House at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

At the January meeting it was suggested that membership in the State Society be limited to persons connected with a local poultry organization, but it has been found that to limit membership would be unwise. These are the objects of the society:

(1) To affiliate in a State society all poultrymen and poultry organizations within the State for the purpose of fostering the poultry industry in all its branches; (2) To aid in establishing in each county or in districts of each county, organizations devoted to the production of poultry and eggs in co-operation of its members in the production and distribution of poultry products; (3) To secure concessions whereby feed, supplies, etc., may be purchased by members at wholesale or reduced prices; (4) To encourage and assist its members in breeding poultry of standard requirements, and for heavy egg production; (5) To secure the recognition of subordinate societies to prevent the holding of shows on conflicting dates; (6) To suggest and promote legislation that will tend toward greater and more economical production of poultry and eggs in Pennsylvania, and prevent the enormous losses due to improper handling in the marketing of same.

It is understood that the purpose of the society to offer trophies for the best specimens of the different varieties exhibited by members of the society at shows held by an association accepting the poultry industry of the State, and to induce local associations to co-operate with each other especially in the matter of interchanging exhibits.

Fritchey's Hens Are Second in Contest

"Two thousand a week" is the slogan in the international egg-laying contest at Storrs, Conn. The mercury at the contest, which registered several degrees below zero, but in spite of this very low temperature the hens yielded better than last week by 397 eggs or a total of 2,066 for the fourth week. The cold weather persisted throughout the week, the winds blew, snowstorms came, and even earthquakes, but in spite of this adverse combination the hens seemed to be snug and comfortable in their little houses and in consequence shelled out eggs regardless of the elements.

The English Wyandottes easily won first place for the week with a production of forty-two eggs, but there was close competition for second place. A pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by Dr. J. A. Fritchey, of this city, finally finished second with a yield of forty eggs.

SET HENS ON GROUND

The best results in natural hatching will be obtained when the hens are set on the ground. Repeated experiments have demonstrated that where hens were set in this way stronger, bigger chicks were hatched than from those set in nests of the ground. If it is not convenient to build outdoor nesting coops, or there is no shed available with a dirt floor, and the hens have to be set in nests with wood and bottom, either get a fresh set and lay it in the bottom of the nest box just before the eggs are put in. Then put on top just sufficient straw to hold the eggs in the center of the nest. The cold weather perished through the week, the winds blew, snowstorms came, and even earthquakes, but in spite of this adverse combination the hens seemed to be snug and comfortable in their little houses and in consequence shelled out eggs regardless of the elements.

COMBATS DANDRUFF CONTAGION; STOPS FALLING HAIR

Others Imitate and Make Similar Claims But Newbro's Herpicide Was the First Scalp Preparation Ever Made in Harmony With the True Cause of Dandruff.

The discovery of the origin of dandruff as the cause of all hair trouble is not a recent event. Prof. Unpa gave the germ theory to the world in 1887; later Sabouraud, by his experiments with a rabbit proved beyond a doubt the contagious nature of dandruff.

Newbro's Herpicide was the first and "original remedy compounded in harmony with the true cause of dandruff."

It is a significant fact that since Herpicide has achieved its wonderful popularity, others have changed front and appropriated Herpicide claims, but their preparations have remained the same. Any remedy claiming to successfully combat dandruff contagion is trying to trade upon the reputation of Newbro's Herpicide.

Madame Isebell Says

New Fashions Demand Better Physical Training

LESSON XII—PART I. Exercises for Physical Culture.

The most convenient time for doing exercises is in the morning before dressing or just before retiring. This does away with the necessity of disrobing during the day, for it is obvious that the best results cannot be obtained while wearing corsets or any form of heavy clothing.

The exercises I am giving first are for all women, whether stout or undeveloped. They limber the body, bring into play unused muscles, increase breathing capacity, tone up the nerves and improve the general health of the body. They will also give grace and vigor and a corresponding change in movement, walk and attitude. Remember that it is only the woman whose body is in correct poise that can stoop gracefully and that attitudes graceful and attractive when the muscles are in perfect training, becomes stiff and awkward when the body is not responsive.

Only Ten Minutes.

These exercises can be done in ten minutes, night and morning. They will tire you at first, for if you have been neglecting physical work entirely, they will bring into play muscles that have not been used. Do them with your mind, as well as your body, and the fullest measure of good out of them, and, as you note improvement day by day, you will find them more and more enjoyable.

George Heiney had his wrist sprained when he slipped and fell under the truck.
