WHAT POLICE OF FUTURE MUST KNOW

Will Guide and Assist the Public as Well as Guard It From Crime

If you have ever been a police reporter on a newspaper you know how suddenly indifferent to new ideas are many members of "the force." You can call to mind typical "coppers," strong-armed, florid-faced, loving an air of mystery, ostentatiously hiding the dark processes by which criminals are caught and society saved.

Anemic Since Childhood

How Miss Holmes Regained Her Health.

If you are anemic, you need more iron in your blood, and the tell-tale symptoms are a pale face, colorless lips, astringent nose, poor circulation and short breath, and more serious diseases are easily contracted when in this condition.

What Vinol did for Miss Yvonne Holmes, of Fall River, Mass., it will do for every anemic, run-down person. She says: "I have been weak and anemic since childhood, always had 'that tired feeling.' Tonic after tonic was tried with little or no result until Vinol was recommended, and after taking three bottles my appetite and digestion have been improved. I do not suffer any more from insomnia, nor do I have distressing headaches as formerly, and I am stronger than I have been for years."

ry near her home. The husband was found dead with his head battered in. A short time after her arrest Mrs. Edwards gave birth to a negro child.

Negro Innocent The woman later confessed that the negro was innocent of the crime and she was granted a new trial and acquitted. Mrs. Edwards has five children, who are living in different parts of the country.

Last night Secretary of the Commonwealth Robert McAfee brought Governor Tener's pardon from Harrisburg and the woman's counsel took her away from the Berks jail at 4 o'clock this morning in a taxicab.

Mrs. Edwards, who had received no indication last night of her approaching liberation, was surprised when aroused at 4 a. m. and informed that she was free. She had been provided with a new outer coat, and this she put on over the dress which she wore in prison. She engaged in prayer, and of all her belongings only took her Bible with her. A waiting taxicab took her to the depot. Accompanied by her attorneys, she left for Philadelphia, where she was placed into the hands of people who have offered her a home in one of its charitable institutions.

Mrs. Edwards has not seen her children since her incarceration, almost thirteen years ago, and she does not know where they are.

"It was necessary to protect Kate Edwards from those who wished to exploit her and to assure her welfare that the time of issuance of a pardon and its transmission to Reading should be kept secret. The members of the board decided upon this course, and we do not know just where she has gone, but the members of the board have been assured that she will be well taken care of and not become a public figure," said Chief Clerk George D. Thorn, of the State Board of Pardons, today, regarding the pardoning of Kate Edwards.

"When the board met ten days ago letters and papers were presented which satisfied the members that she would be cared for and some additional information was desired. This has been secured and the pardon has been issued. That is all there is to it," said he.

Pardon Was Expected

It had been expected for two months that Kate Edwards would be pardoned. This was intimated in January at the conclusion of the argument in her behalf, and at that time her attorneys were asked to furnish the board with letters. These came from Philadelphia and Reading people who had taken an interest in the case.

Last week when the board announced that the case was held under advisement it was publicly stated that if a pardon was issued no one would be informed until after it had gone out, so that the woman would be probably taken care of by the board. The board has refused to say whether the desired letters had been received or when the pardon would go out.

Reasons For Decision

The board first gives a history of the various phases of the case before that body, beginning with the application for a commutation of the death sentence on May 10, 1902, down to its several refusals, and final refusal by the board on June 25, 1905, just previous to which the warrant of execution had been recalled, and no subsequent warrant being issued, which left the woman under sentence of death, with no time fixed for her execution, no Governor taking action. The board says:

"Having considered all the facts and circumstances appearing on an examination of the record before us, and shown on the hearing of the application, we have reached the conclusion, first, as to the form of the pardon is that the present time cognizable by this board, and that it is permissible for us to consider and act upon the same, and that it is within the power of the executive to grant the clemency asked by the application upon our recommendation to that effect; and, second, as to the merits of the application itself, that the prayer therein is supported by strong and substantial reasons. We, therefore, recommend that such prayer be granted, and that a pardon be now issued to the applicant, Kate Edwards."

Then follows a history of the case, embracing the rearing of the woman in all of its squalid surroundings, her marriage and method of living, the low standard of morals prevailing among the people she lived with, her intimacy with the negro Greason, the husband's threats to "get rid of her damned quick if she should have a black baby, her nervous fears under these conditions and the conception of the plan to kill her husband which she accomplished by killing him with a hammer.

The arrest, trial and conviction are given in detail, and the final appeal to the board for her freedom, with the reasons that have been frequently published in the past few months, that she may have been guilty of the crime of murder in the second degree had she told the truth at the time of her trial; she was a woman debased by brutal treatment and densely ignorant, not understanding the gravity of her situation; she has served over twelve years; her reformation is complete and she is a different woman in education, personal habits and morals; the usual reasons for pardon fully accomplished; the sentiment in Berks county is overwhelming for her pardon; released from prison there is every reason to believe she will lead an upright and useful life; her health has failed and further confinement will hasten her death.

"These reasons," says the board, "seem to cover the entire ground, and we are satisfied of their force. We are going into detail we venture the additional reason—that we have on file, a letter from a certain responsible lady, an earnest worker for the welfare of unfortunate persons, who promises to provide a home and suitable work for, and to exercise a kind and watch care over the applicant in case of her liberation; and we are satisfied of their force.
