

Women and Their Interests

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

A stranger sends me a little booklet, artistically printed, to the memory of Robert Pyne, of Hartford, Conn., a veteran in the Civil War and a man beloved by all his friends. A Socialist and an editor.

He passed on in May, 1912, after living in this body since March, 1844. M. J. Conely wrote some verses about the passing of Robert Pyne, and one verse ended with this line:

"NOW THINE THE SLEEP THAT KNOWS NO END."

The correspondent who sends the memorial booklet asks for comment on this line.

He does not believe in "the sleep that knows no end."

He believes so good a man as Mr. Pyne will waken and live again in the realms of consciousness.

Another friend of Mr. Pyne said of him:

"What more can I say of our friend, Robert Pyne, than that his highest philosophy taught, as it were, his virtues, kindness and thoughtfulness."

"And the man who embodies and lives in his every day life such philosophy is sorely missed and mourned."

"This was the QUALITY of life that Robert Pyne lived."

"We have known him to exemplify a thousand ways. While he hated injustice and knew well how to denounce it, yet he had pity for the doer of injustice. This because of the law of his nature and the true vision he had of the causes at work in society making and transforming men into normal and immortal things."

His Life Signified the Possibilities That Lie Undeveloped.

"And with their chief end, it would seem, was a tireless competition one with the other for a mere chance to live."

"There is a lesson in the heart of our sorrow."

"For myself, his life signified the possibilities that lie undeveloped, but

Woman's Danger Signals
Hot flashes—dizziness, fainting spells, headache, bearing-down feeling and ills of a kindred nature—are nature's danger signals. The female disturbance or irregularity back of these calls for help, should have immediate care and attention. Otherwise the delicate female constitution soon breaks down.

reside and where he will associate with great spirits like unto himself, and where he will be given beautiful, helpful work to do until such time as he will be called upon to reincarnate and come back to earth.

It is quite possible that, passing suddenly from his body, as he did, Mr. Pyne was some little time in finding out where he would be, as a non-mortal. He had made for himself, undoubtedly, a high spiritual atmosphere. And he would find himself in a similar one when out of the body.

But to such a spirit as his beautiful guides would soon come and conduct him to the place he had prepared for himself by his thoughts and words and deeds while on earth, and he would be given rest, and peace, and joy, until his active, unselfish spirit called for work.

It is more than probable that he would ask to be given work here on earth; to come back from time to time and cheer and spur and inspire those who were dear to him, and to help in the great work for humanity so close to his heart.

Very unselfish souls are given this employment sometimes, but it is not meant that they should know the details of the methods employed by the spirit friends, for invariably such knowledge would bring a lack of personal endeavor on our part.

If the scholar knows the older pupil or teacher in the spirit world, he is not inclined to work it out through hard hours of study.

Our Life Has No Beginning, and Neither Has It Any Ending

All the older pupil or scholar or teacher is expected to do is to spur him on to new endeavors. And if he will not do this, he will be discouraged or confused, sometimes a suggestion of the right answer to the problem he is not inclined to work it out through hard hours of study.

So our Spirit Guides, who come back at times to help us, whisper to us, but not too audibly, lest we ask for more information and that would be well for us to receive.

Quite possibly to the poet himself who wrote the lines in this column, the spirit of Robert Pyne whispers now and then:

"NO, there is no sleep that knows no end."

Life had no beginning, and it has no end.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR KILLED WITHOUT ELECTRICITY

BY A SPECIALIST

"I have the greatest trouble with correspondents who insist on using common, worthless depilatories or the torturing barbarous electrolysis needle applied for killing their superfluous hair," says Mrs. Chambrade in Milady's Boudoir. "More and more physical suffering is caused by these abominable methods than you can imagine. I have carefully investigated and tried a new and simple method that never fails to remove all signs of hair completely and painlessly without injury to the skin or complexion. In a surprisingly large number of cases it has destroyed all traces of hair so that it has never returned. In fact I must caution my readers that it must not be applied to hair that they do not wish totally destroyed. It is called 'Mrs. Osgood's Wonder,' being named for a well known woman who arranged for it to be put on the market after it had succeeded in entirely eradicating all traces of her own very distressing growth of hair on chin, lip and arms, which everything else failed to touch."

Mrs. Osgood's Wonder is quite inexpensive; you can obtain it from Kennedy's Medicine Store, or any up-to-date druggist or department store, on the guarantee of your money back, if it fails. Ask for it by name, "Mrs. Osgood's Wonder"; a signed guarantee comes with every package.—Advertisement.

ANOTHER STYLE OF SKIRT DRAPERIES

Made in Trained or Walking Length Is Equally Stylish

8165 Draped Skirt, 22 to 30 waist. WITH HIGH OR NATURAL WAIST LINE WITH TRAIN OR IN WALKING LENGTH.

This skirt draped right at the front is one of the latest to have appeared and is of the best liked. The model is just as smart and just as effective in the walking length as with the train, so that it serves two purposes. It is adapted to such suiting materials as broadcloth, silk duvetyne and the like and also to the thinner crepes of indoor wear. There are only three pieces and the front edges are finished and lapped. A tuck forms the drapery, there being a little underpiece or lining to which this tuck is attached to hold it in place.

For the medium size, the skirt in walking length will require 4 1/2 yds. of material 27, 36, or 44 in wide. 27, 36, or 44 3/4 yds. 52 in wide.

The pattern of the skirt 8165 is cut in sizes from 22 to 30 inches waist measure. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

Madame Ise'bell Says Women Should Weigh More as They Grow Older

LESSON XIII—PART IV.

There is always a certain difference of opinion as to the constitutes perfect physical proportions. Some artists admire the tall woman and others the short, but in either case the rest of the body should be fashioned in accord. The ideal expressed in early Greek sculpture shows the head but one-seventh the entire height of the body, but modern taste has considerably modified this standard. The following table is regarded as the ideal modern figure.

Perfect Physical Proportions.

Height	5 ft. 8 in.
Weight	140 lbs.
Neck	14 in.
Chest	33 in.
Bust	37 in.
Waist	28 in.
Hip	35 in.
Upper arm	11 in.
Forearm	9 in.
Hand	7 in.

A woman's age makes some difference in the weight of the body, and a woman grows older her bones become heavier, and a slight increase in flesh is not only becoming, but an indication of good physical health. Remember that muscles weigh more than flabby flesh and turning the flesh to muscles will make the measurements smaller, even if the weight is not decreased. An increase in flesh according to age is taken into consideration by some life insurance companies in their policies. For example, a woman 5 ft. 2 in tall at twenty-one years of age should weigh 110 lbs., at thirty-five years of age she should weigh 125 lbs. and ten pounds more at sixty-five years old.

Women with small bones cannot carry to advantage as much flesh as can those with larger frames for the reason that they have less room in which to store up more room than bones. Considerations of this sort must govern the amount one should weigh.

Mme. Ise'bell

Madame Ise'bell's next lesson will take up the subject of the hair, how to keep it healthy and promote its growth.

COLONIAL
Vaudeville and Pictures—Every afternoon and evening.

CARLISLE ELKS MINSTRELS
The elaborate gowns worn by the "girls" in the show to be given at the Majestic Theater, to-day and Wednesday, with Wednesday matinee, will attract hundreds of women to the performances. These gowns were made by Ralph Harris, the costumier of Carlisle, who makes many handsome gowns for Harrisburg society women, and will be found to be the most elaborate things in feminine wearing apparel that the Harrisburg public has had a chance to gaze upon this season. There are forty-two song hits in the show and lots of good comedy. More than 100 Harrisburgers went to Carlisle to see the show last week, and they all came home with the best things to say about it.—Advertisement.

AROUND THE WORLD IN TWO HOURS

The desire to see the world is in-born and universal. If it does not exist in you it has been choked and smothered. Heretofore this pleasure has been limited to the comparatively few who possessed the means at the same time with plenty of money and leisure; and it remained for Elmer Dwight, an artist, twice daily, to see the funny side of life as well as the serious one, and tells the world story in a graceful manner, superbly illustrated with a mile of the most wonderful motion pictures, together with several hundred colored slides to give a complete trip around the world in two hours, at the Majestic Theater, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, twice daily. So if you want to go around the world in this cheap and satisfying way, which means a grand time and a trip with Dwight can be found.—Advertisement.

ORPHEUM'S BILL
If the blizzard that struck Harrisburg can be credited with leaving the fine Keith bill at the Orpheum in its wake, there remains much to be thankful for after all. Not only has the bill, the excellent of "Colonial Days," Ben Solferino musical play, that heads the bill, but the general merit of the offering throughout. However, there is good music or admirers of artistic stagecraft will find much indeed to please in the "Colonial Days." Artistic is the word to describe "Colonial Days." It's all beautiful, pleasing to the eye and ear without any semblance of the crude or comical. The prettily lighted garden setting, together with the group of charming young women in elaborate Colonial day gowns, is a picture that will linger in the memory long after one has left the playhouse. Kenny, Nobody and Platt, two of 'em, with their imaginary partner, "Nobody," are here again after a two weeks absence. They scored the laughing hit of the bill. As comedians these two artists are hard to beat and as dramatists, well they are even better. Imhoff, Corine and Conn, are presenting a comedy sketch that is easily one of the biggest laughing hits of the season. As a private in the army who knows nothing about the globe-trotting endeavor, Imhoff is a scream. The situations, dialogue and clever character acting of the playlet will give the audience a grand time. Throughout the Orpheum's bill is clever and is worthy of capacity audiences all week.—Advertisement.

AT THE COLONIAL
Let the gales blow and the blizzards keep on their merry way who cares so long as we have "The Summer Girls" with us? Not many towns offer such a privilege as this, a show not in summer day garb. And their sudden engagement at the Colonial all came about because the merry little company arrived in town yesterday through an error and then their title sounded so good to Manager Hopking that he hired them on the spot. "The Summer Girls" is a breezy show, with plenty of song and frolic, and ought to please patrons of the Busy Corner immensely. A couple other varied vaudeville features round out the roster.—Advertisement.
