

MRS. ROBERT GOELET GRANTED A DIVORCE BY NEWPORT JUDGE

"Extreme Cruelty, Gross Misbehavior and Wickedness" Charged by Woman

SPIES WERE ON HER TRAIL

Both Parties to Have Possession of Eldest Son But Youngest Goes to Mrs. Goelet

Special to The Telegraph Newport, R. I., March 18.—A divorce was granted to Mrs. Robert Goelet, formerly Miss Elsie Whelen, of Philadelphia, yesterday by Justice Barrow. Neither Mrs. Goelet nor Mr. Goelet was in court, the case being reviewed entirely on depositions.

In the court's decision it is directed that Mr. and Mrs. Goelet shall have possession of their eldest son, Ogden, and that Mrs. Goelet shall have the custody of her two-year-old son, Peter, until he is six years old, and after that both parents shall share in his custody. The financial arrangement reported by Mr. and Mrs. Goelet was not disclosed.

Mrs. Goelet asked for the divorce on the grounds of "extreme cruelty, gross misbehavior and wickedness." Her depositions stated that she had left her husband on January 21 last because of his conduct towards her.

Valet a Spy "William Drake, valet for Mr. Goelet," Mrs. Goelet continued, "had spied on me constantly, taking the lists of the guests I entertained at Newport last summer and also in New York. Drake, too, got the coachman to tell him whom I had been out driving with and where I had been. This action became so general that every time I went outdoors I would see the face of the valet. It got on my nerves and affected my health. Further, the watchman was spying on me, and I caught him listening to conversations I had over the telephone.

"Mr. Goelet has derided me, quarreled and was always rude to my friends," Mrs. Goelet continued, "and in another room to the one in which I was having my meals, so the guests could see him eating in this manner. He would stand in the door in the faces of my friends and would advise his bachelor friends to remain single. While so speaking he would look directly at me, saying that 'marriage is a failure.'" Mrs. Goelet further deposed she had not been living on a scale in excess of her husband's finances.

"We never went out together," Mrs. Goelet continued, "He would go his way and I would go mine. Mr. Goelet

Bishop Earl Cranston, of Washington, at 9 o'clock this morning opened the forty-sixth session of the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Grace Church, State street.

The conference is composed of three hundred ministers and has a constituency of seventy-five thousand people. The eighth session was held in Grace Church in 1876 soon after its organization.

A great amount of business must be transacted and matters of great import will be adjusted. But the subject of appointments is as usual the most important and it is understood that there will be a goodly number of changes, especially in the larger churches. The morning sessions will be devoted to the regular conference business and the afternoon and evenings to the anniversaries of the various societies of the church.

The conference was called to order, hymn number nine was announced and sung and Dr. E. H. Yocum, of Bellefonte, led in prayer. The bishop read a lesson from the eighteenth chapter of the Gospel of St. John, following the same with a brief and interesting exposition of the spiritual interpretation of the sacrament of the Lord's supper, and the spirit in which it should be observed by the children of God. The invitation was given in ritual form, the preference being given to the retired members of the conference.

TRAINED DOGS STEAL CHICKENS, IS BELIEF OF STEILTON POLICE

Detective Durnbaugh Confident That Animals Have Been Taught Theft Tricks

That members of the gang of chicken thieves which has been preying on residents of Steilton and vicinity are using trained dogs in their raids is now the belief of Steilton detectives.

Strength was lent to the theory last night when the henhouse of Benjamin Otto, 104 North Second street, was visited and ten fine white leghorn fowls killed. Mrs. Otto was awakened about 3 o'clock this morning by a commotion in the henhouse. She aroused her husband who went out to investigate.

When Mr. Otto came out the back door he heard someone whistle and saw a dog scamper down the street. Entering the henhouse he found the ten hens lying in a heap dead. The door of the henhouse was locked, as was the gate to the yard. Examination showed that each hen was bitten in the neck by some animal small enough to crawl through the hole at the bottom of the coop used by the flock.

Detective Irvin Durnbaugh, who was assigned to the case by the authorities, is firm in the opinion that the hens were killed by a trained dog belonging to a member of the gang. He has several good clues and promises some arrests in a few days.

Doubilas said the three men walked into his store and asked him for money. When he refused they attacked him.

BRUMBAUGH SURE OF IMMENSE VOTE IN CENTRAL PENNA.

Has Strength Among Progressives and Democrats as Well as Republicans

Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh's statement accepting the invitation of his friends in his home county of Huntington to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor has won him a host of friends in Dauphin and Cumberland counties. Republicans, without regard to their preferences for other nominations to be made by the party this Spring, are expressing themselves as heartily in favor of Dr. Brumbaugh, and he appears to have considerable strength among Democrats and Washington party men. In fact, no statement issued by a political candidate has evoked such general commendation and Dr. Brumbaugh looms up very strong in the lower Susquehanna Valley to-day.

See Sewer Pipe Moving About Street as if It Were Alive

Thing Had a Curly Head Which of Course Helped Along the Illusion; Its Feet Were Tied in a Knot

Two men at the grocery store of A. W. Koppenhaver, Nineteenth and Park streets, yesterday afternoon heard a child's voice in loud distress. They looked up Nineteenth street and saw one of the terra cotta sewer pipes which are to go into the new Nineteenth street sewer moving about the street as if alive. A curly head stuck out at one end. From this point came the wail.

Mr. Koppenhaver and William Half-penny ran to the rescue of the lad, who proved to be 6-year-old Myron Hockenbury, son of E. J. Hockenbury, 1849 Park street.

Myron's leg from his knee to his foot is slightly more than twelve inches long. The pipe was just twelve inches in diameter. When the lad tried to crawl through his knees caught. The rescuers freed him by taking the pipe over on a grass plot and rolling it around until the lad's leg could be twisted out of its cramped position.

URGING ANNEXATION OF BIG TERRITORY NORTH OF THE CITY

Riverside, Lucknow and Lynchville Would Be Affected by Such Action

Request for annexation of Riverside, Lynchville and Lucknow to the city is being considered among the residents of the district north of the city. At the meeting of the Riverside citizens held last night, Harris P. McCormick presented a blue print showing the district which he suggests proposing to the city for annexation. At a meeting of the Riverside people next month the matter will be thoroughly discussed and representatives of the other sections which it is proposed to include in the territory to be annexed will be at the meeting to declare for or against the proposal.

The territory included in the proposition extends from Division street to the Lingshtown road between the river and Wildwood Park, more than a square mile, occupied by several thousands of people.

Under the Clark act a petition of three-fourths of the residents of the section must be presented to council with a copy of the plot to be annexed and council can annex it by passing an ordinance.

POLICE AND GUARDS ON DUTY IN PARIS FEARING OUTBREAKS

Tense Excitement Aroused Among Various Political Factions by Assassination

WOMAN REMAINS IN PRISON

Mme. Caillaux Is Said to Be Breaking Down Under Torture of Being Watched

Paris, March 18.—The appearance of armed detachments of Republican guards posted at strategic points of Paris to-day added to the tense excitement aroused among the various political factions by the assassination of Gaston Galmette, editor of the Figaro.

At every point where there was likelihood of trouble the police were supported by soldiers. The offices of the Figaro, the Chamber of Deputies, the residence of M. Caillaux, and the Saint Lazare Prison, where Mme. Caillaux has occupied a cell since she killed the editor to clear her husband's name—all were magnets which attracted the populace to-day. At each of these points strong bodies of police and soldiers were on duty prepared to act sharply in quelling disturbances.

Groups Reassemble In the southern part of Paris, in the Latin quarter and in the working class districts, where it is only necessary for a turbulent individual to shriek "Death to Caillaux!" or "Assassinate!" for him to be joined by dozens of others, the police kept zealous watch. Several times they cleared away noisy groups, who, however, reassembled as soon as the police had passed.

Mme. Caillaux seems to-day to have become a popular heroine amid all the turmoil. Among the crowds of excited, gesticulating people, her name is heard constantly. She is talked of as the victim of her love for M. Caillaux, and as his instrument in committing the crime which has robbed the press of a prominent writer and

The Clock Without Hands

The business that attempts to grow without advertising is about as successful as the clock without hands.

All the movements it makes amount to little; for people don't know about them.

Yours may be a splendid business, but people are too busy to find it unless you tell them about it by advertising.

They do know about the business of the fellow who keeps them posted through the columns of this and other newspapers. He invites their trade and tells them why he wants it; or rather why it is to their advantage to give it to him.

Being a live business man he knows how to treat customers after he gets them. He knows he can make his advertising pay only by living up to his promises.

Don't let your business be like a clock without hands. Advertise. Begin now.

Perhaps you would like some suggestions. Write to the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers' Association, World Building, New York. Booklet on request.
