More Baseball Fields Needed;
Considering Future Playground Development

Spring tripped across the threshold today, but winter's tardy retirement has left so much snow and ice and frozen ground in his wake that M. Harvey Taylor, the superintendent of parks and city property, can do little more during the next few days than prepare his plans and forces for the actual beginning of outdoor work as soon as the weather will permit.

Mr. Taylor stated today that he had disposed of his private business and was now in position to give his time exclusively to the management of his department of the city government. He also made the important announcement that Warren H. Manning, the famous landscape architect, who has been the genius of the planning and development of the city's splendid park system, had concluded to remain as the expert adviser of the department.

Superintendent Taylor also has some other important matters under consideration which will develop, it is understood, within the next week or ten days. There seems to be no doubt that he is giving careful attention to the selection of those who shall constitute the first city planning commission. He made this statement to a Telegraph reporter.

Taylor's Statement

"The remarks which I made on the floor of Council appear to have created the impression in the minds of the former park commissioners and others that I had made an attack on the commission, which I can assure you is farthest from my thought. In my position as councilman for approximately eight years I had more than ordinary opportunities to observe the administration of the park department, and I want to say that I considered the work of that board most commendable. I am, however, recognizing the fact that all work done by an unpaid commission of this character necessarily involves many personal sacrifices, which will be more fully appreciated in the years to come.

"I have come to no definite decision regarding the new city planning commission other than that I would like to have it composed of men interested in the work and in sympathy with my administration, so that we could all work together in harmony with the same object in view—which is the advancement of our park system.

"I am glad to be able to announce that Mr. Manning has reconsidered his determination to retire and has agreed to serve the city in the same capacity that has existed for eleven years. This will be a great advantage to Harrisburg."

Development Planned

Superintendent Taylor is giving particular attention to the playground development and has at least one or two baseball fields which he has provided for the boys of the city, who are now compelled to resort to vacant lots and the streets unless they go to the public playgrounds at Island Park. He is much gratified over the decision of Mr. Manning to remain as the expert of the park department and as soon as the weather will allow there will be much activity in getting the parks and playgrounds in shape for the summer.

David G. Bowman, a well-known real estate and insurance man, has purchased the cigar store of Superintendent Taylor in the Commonwealth Hotel and it was announced today that Superintendent Taylor will now give his whole attention to the work of his department as he declared he would do during the campaign last year. Negotiations for the sale of his business have been under way for some time.

Nothing Is Known of General
Velasco's Plans to Repel
Assault

By Associated Press
Constitutionalist Headquarters, Yermo, Durango, Mexico, March 21.—General Pancho Villa with his 12,000 rebel soldiers today was prepared to hurl the first shell into the trenches around Torreon of the resisting federal army under General Refugio Velasco in what is considered the most important battle of the constitutionalist revolution.

Pull of confidence, General Villa has transmitted his energy to his subordinates and the camp at Yermo presented a scene which never had marked a revolutionary movement in Mexico. The soldiers hurried here and there, giving final touches to the establishment of the rebels' plans for assault. Refreshed by a night's sleep after their long, hard march through the desert from Mapimi and Barnejo, Villa's khaki-clad soldiers sprang to their work with zest. The beginning of today saw the rebel army stationed on the outskirts of the federal stronghold, a position they had gained without resistance and with scarcely the sound of a shot to check their preparations for an assault. Within Torreon all was comparatively quiet and none in the rebel camp knew what preparations Gen. Velasco was making to repel the attack of the revolutionists.

Murder Cases

Two murder trials were brought to an abrupt close in March term of quarter sessions this morning when Hans Solbrig and John Thomas, the two defendants, pleaded guilty to charges of voluntary manslaughter. Solbrig, the State Insane Hospital attendant, who admitted to so roughly handling Joe Walukis, an inmate, as to cause his death, was sentenced to serve from three to ten years in the Eastern Penitentiary.

Thomas, who pleaded guilty to having stabbed Charles Cook, alias George Strothers, will probably be called for sentence early in the week.

With Solbrig was arraigned Otto Eichelberger, a fellow-attendant, who pleaded guilty to assault and battery. Eichelberger, who has been in jail for five months and eleven days, was sentenced to serve just that length of time, the sentence to date from the date of incarceration.

The Last Fast Ride

Several men and women of the Eighth ward told of a drinking bout in Weaver's Hotel October 4, during which a quarrel developed between Thomas and Strothers and which later led to the fatal stabbing of Strothers.

All Towns in Province Are Occu-

By Associated Press
Belfast, Ireland, March 21.—Ulster this morning presented a very martial aspect. All the towns were occupied by soldiers of the regular army and other detachments were marching along the country roads with long trains of baggage and ammunition cars, on their way to strengthen the various garrisons. In the meanwhile at all the unionist centers there was great animation among the Ulster voters.

Throughout the province a feeling of intense excitement prevailed and everybody seemed waiting in anxious expectation for something to occur—they knew not what.

Belfast displayed considerable activity. Two torpedo boat destroyers, the Pathfinder and the Attentive, arrived there this morning from Kingstown and landed five officers and 150 men of the Yorkshire regiment at Carrickfergus Castle.

Within twenty-four hours over 3,000 regular troops, including four battalions of infantry with machine guns and two batteries of field artillery all equipped for active service, have arrived in the various towns of Ulster.

TO RETAIN 8 MILL RATE FOR SCHOOLS OF CITY DISTRICT

Verbeke School to Be Opened
After Several Weeks' Quarantine on Monday Morning

Harrisburg's school tax rate for 1914-15 will likely be retained at the present figure—eight mills. The rate will be fixed at the meeting of the school board to be held April 3 when it is believed that the expenditures can be kept down to such a figure as to keep within the present millage. The largest item will be the construction of the Allison Hill grade school at Sixteenth and Catharine streets. This will not be more than $90,000.

At the same time, April 3, the board will award contracts for building and furnishing the building. The proposals were considered last evening.

The Emery Company, Philadelphia, offered to do the work for $64,401. M. H. Baker was the lowest bidder for installing heating and ventilating at $14,998; Eugene J. Fogarty was low bidder for the plumbing at $3,848; E. Blumenthal, of this city, offered to do all the necessary electrical work at $1,705 for a modern vacuum cleaner, M. H. Baker bid $1,850.

Following a conference last evening by members of the city board of health and the school board, it was decided by the school authorities to reopen and fumigate the Verbeke street school building Monday morning. The school has been closed down for several weeks because of quarantine.

Application for the supervisors of the schools was made last evening by M. H. Thomas and S. B. Stambaugh, principals of two of the city's grade schools who are among the oldest in point of service. They wish to succeed Dr. L. S. Shimmell, who died a week or so ago.

INCREASE OVER 1912 SHOWN

6,000 More Men Employed in 1913 Than in 1912; Percentage of Production Lower

By Associated Press
Washington, March 21.—The year 1913 was more fatal for coal miners in the United States than the preceding twelve months. A report issued today by the Bureau of Mines showed an increase of fatalities of 425 over 1912 and twelve deaths for every working day in the year. In the army working day in 1912, 2,785 men were killed, a fatality rate of 3.82 in every thousand men employed as compared with 3.27 in 1912.

Six thousand more men were employed in 1913 and the increase in production was between thirty million and forty million tons.

Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, director of the Bureau of Mines, in commenting upon the record for the year, said: "An examination of the statistics develops the disappointing fact that in our coal mining operations during 1913, there were killed 425 more men than during 1912. This is an increase of 18 per cent. in fatal accidents with an increase of only about eight per cent. in coal production."

"We can find little comfort in the suggestion that this increase may in part be accounted for by the occurrence during 1913 of four large mine explosions. The statistics show an increase in fatalities during 1913 from all the underground causes except mine fires and surface accidents."

Progress in Safety

"Some progress has been made, however, in the safety movement as shown by the statistics for the last eight years. In the four years ending December 31, 1909, the average death rate was 3.97 for each 1,000 men employed. In the last four years the rate was 3.61."

"It is unfortunate that the safety inquiries and investigations by the national government upon which so much depends, have lagged so far behind the needs of the industry and public demands. It is hoped that this situation may be remedied at an early date."

The States in which the greatest number of deaths occurred were: Pennsylvania, 227; West Virginia, 237; New Mexico, 272; Ohio, 165; Illinois, 164; Alabama, 124, and Colorado, 108.
