Distinguished Examples of the Season's Latest Style Developments in Suits, Coats and Dresses

The most desirable feature in the production of a suit, and the most difficult feature to put into it, is real, distinctive, unmistakable style.

It is not difficult to simply make a suit. That involves merely so many yards of material and trimmings, cut to patterns and put together by sewers.

But style; that indefinable something which gives character and distinction, is much more difficult to accomplish.

Just as Paris has its Pairet, add Cheruit and Bernard, so in New York the real style interpreters may be picked out from among the several thousand makers.

In every section of our outer garment floor you will find examples of the finest tailoring and the latest style developments of the season. In each garment there is style, individuality, character. You have only to see the showing to-morrow to convince you. And our prices are admittedly lower than you'll find in any other Harrisburg store.
