

THE WEEKLY BILLBOARD—BY JAW—

ROSES FOR MISS BOOKWALTER

Waynesboro, Pa., April 18.—The first presentation of the historical pageant, "Men and Males of U. S. A.," under the efficient training of Miss Bookwalter, of Harrisburg, was given Thursday and last evening in the High School auditorium before one of the largest and most appreciative audiences that has gathered there in a long time. The play was given for the benefit of the Young Women's Bible Class of the Lutheran Church. At the conclusion of the performance Thursday evening, members of the cast presented Miss Bookwalter with a bouquet of La France roses.

ONLY One Dickens Set Like This! One Place to Get It!

Dickens is an author you are not content with reading once. You read him again and again. His pages are so crowded with interesting characters of all types that you hate to take leave of them. You want to meet them once more. The truth is you can't "take in" Dickens at one reading. The plot is so exciting that you rush through the story, and then go back and read it all over again, to enjoy its wonderful dialogue and vivid descriptions.

Dean of City Musicians Speaks of Choral Forming Tells of Hard Work That Was Necessary to Organize Singers

Some facts that even members of the Harrisburg Choral Society themselves perhaps didn't know were unfolded in a speech before the society Monday night by J. H. Kurzenknebe, dean of Harrisburg musicians. Members applauded it to the echo. Here it is:

By J. H. Kurzenknebe
Harrisburg is proud of her choral society, and well she may be. To organize a musical society like the one before which I have the pleasure of making this address is more than the work of a few hours. No; it needs time, sacrifice, hard work, financial and influential aid. Indeed it could scarcely be maintained successfully without these prerequisites.

The two best musical organizations of former times in Harrisburg were the Thursday Club, under the direction of Professor Carroll, and the Mozart Society, which started a little later, when Professor Rich came from the South to become its director. I must confess that these two splendid societies of our city begot a little rivalry, which finally came to considerable discord. Now, while we have to treat of discord in music, in order to learn what harmony is, by too much of it we forget harmony. Both these societies soon ceased to exist and Harrisburg for a short time was without any musical organization as far as vocal music is concerned, except that of church choirs, and what delight was furnished music lovers through private gatherings.

I have here a roll and resolution of the Harrisburg Board of Trade in 1893 preceding the yearly meeting of the Pennsylvania State Music Teachers' Association, which was then to be held in Scranton, inviting that body to come here in 1894, and hold their sessions in the Opera House. As this society was endeavoring to induce the legislature to include music in the curriculum required in all State schools, it was set forth as an inducement to the association to come here, that the legislature would at that time be in session. The invitation was accepted, and I was elected to the presidency for that year (1894).

The association had planned a three days' session with a chorus to be formed out of Harrisburg talent to conclude the last evening. Come home from Scranton, the work commenced to gather the chorus. Discard I thought only meant harmony misunderstood. But no Harrisburg man could have united the singers. I knew Dr. W. W. Gilchrist, but how to induce him to take hold was a problem that was solved only after four trips to Philadelphia.

Game Was Won
The game was practically won; for when some Harrisburg friends who had refused to join learned that the notable leader, Dr. Gilchrist, had been engaged, they told me that they could not afford to stay out of the chorus. The Rev. Dr. Chambers I knew as a friend of music, and he was prevailed upon to become the chairman of the chorus and later of the reception committee. Amid the enthusiasm that followed it was practically an easy task to form the choral society. The Harrisburg singers with few exceptions fell in line.

The great leader became so beloved that year after year he was chosen until now health will not permit him to continue and he withdraws. I am so glad that your choice for a successor has fallen upon Dr. Wolfe whom I had the pleasure to learn to know and admire in Philadelphia, in Reading, Bethlehem and Allentown. I perceive that his inspiration has already caught the muse's. I will prophesy that he, together with Professor Decevee at the piano will endear themselves more and more as the years pass. Then your management, from president down to stage hand, deserves the highest praise. I will add that without the splendid encouragement from the singers, the Board of Trade, the city officials and advisors the society could not have been organized.

Church People Working For Evangelistic Campaign

Special to The Telegraph
Mechanicsburg, Pa., April 18.—The Rev. Dr. J. L. Grimm, pastor of the First United Brethren Church in Waynesboro, and the Rev. Dr. O. C. Roth, pastor of the Lutheran Church in Chambersburg, addressed a mass meeting last evening in the Church of God in an effort to interest the people here in an evangelistic campaign. The city officials and advisors of the churches is desired before an active effort is put forth. It was decided by a rising vote of the congregation to go ahead with the plans and arrange with an evangelist.

1,500 Attend Minstrel Show For Hershey Club

Special to The Telegraph
Hershey, Pa., April 18.—Last evening an audience of over 1,500 people crowded the Park Theater to witness the great "Faded Paws and Hired Paws American Minstrel Show." The show was given under the auspices of the Hershey Men's Club, with J. M. Brandau as general manager and E. J. Krause as costume and stage director. The entire program was well rendered and the costumes were novel. One thousand souvenir programs had been printed for the occasion and were sold for five cents each. They were beautifully illustrated with views of the club's doings during the year.

Founder of D. A. R. Is Dead in Wilkes-Barre

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 18.—Mrs. Katharine Searle McCartney, aged 77, died here at midnight of complications. She was the widow of the late General William H. McCartney, prominent attorney and formerly a newspaper man of New York City. Mrs. McCartney was prominent in patriotic organizations and was for 23 years regent of Wyoming Valley Chapter, Daughters of American Revolution, of which she was the national and local leader. She was also one of the most prominent genealogists in the United States.

CLUB OFFICERS CHOSEN

Special to The Telegraph
Mechanicsburg, Pa., April 18.—Last evening the Woman's Club held its annual election of officers at the home of the president, Miss Grace Witmer, with the following result:
President, Mrs. Samuel E. Bashore; first vice-president, Mrs. L. G. Firestone; second vice-president, Miss Katharine Wheeler; secretary, Miss Grace Witmer; treasurer, Mrs. E. A. Burnett; directors, Mrs. John T. Lamb, Miss Ida G. Kasl, Mrs. R. H. Thomas, Mrs. George Fulton.
Miss Ida G. Kasl as delegate and Miss Catherine Keefe as alternate were elected to the Central Pennsylvania conference of Federated Woman's Clubs, to be held in Lock Haven May 29.—Mrs. H. Hall Sharp and Miss Violet Ulrich joined the club as active members.

NEW PLAY DEALS WITH IMPORTANT SUBJECTS

Motherhood the Basis of Story on Which "Blindness of Virtue" Is Formed

"The Blindness of Virtue" is the title of one of the most discussed and at the same time one of the few plays on a new and daring theme to receive the endorsement of the cultured people. It will be at the Majestic theater Monday and Tuesday with a Tuesday matinee.
The play comes at a time when the subject is being discussed, that a girl budding into womanhood should receive proper instruction from her mother in the sacred and beautiful obligation of motherhood, and that girls just out of short dresses should be enlightened upon sex relationship that they may be adequately equipped to fight all the dangers that may beset them. "The Blindness of Virtue" is the first play to deal with this subject in a firm and vigorous way, pointing out to parents by example introduced in characterization, the obligation they owe their children to instruct them in an enlightened manner on this important question. The subject is understood to be dealt with delicately but frankly which it should be if it is dealt with at all.
