New Germantown, Pa., April 18.—
Charles George, of Newville, a former resident of Toboyne township, was here to see his uncle, George M. Burkett, who is confined to the house with a paralytic stroke.—Mrs. Blanche Stone, of Shermansdale, visited her father, Samuel A. Wilson.—Floyd Morrow, who teaches the Monterey school and who had a Bible stolen out of the schoolhouse a month ago, was again the victim of a thief. One night recently someone pushed in a sash, entered the schoolhouse and stole all the ink and took the pens out of the penholders.—There are plenty of deer in Toboyne township. Ranger H. N. Hart saw a doe on the Westover place, owned by the State, which seemed to be angered at his approach, for she stamped her forefect viciously. On going nearer two last year's fawns jumped up and ran off with their mother.—One day last week Ranger Leroy Koontz saw eight deer feeding in George F. Kesler's wheat field on the Shultz Ridge. White wheat field on the Shultz Ridge. White wheat field on the Shultz Ridge. Thousands More Civil Service Appointments

Post has greatly increased the work at the Postal Department. Thousands of additional Civi! Service appointments will be necessary.

The opportunities for position in the Civil Service were never better.

Civil Service positions are desirable because the hours for work are not too long, salaries are good and certain and promotions are frequent.

The greater number of appointments will be made in the Postoffice Service, paying from $600 to $1.700 and more per year; the R. F. D. Service, paying $1,100 per annum to standard routes; and the Railway Mall Service, paying from $900 to $1,800 per year.

Any American over 18 years of age who passes the U. S. Civil Service amination is eligible to one of these positions. The I. C. S. Civil Service Course instructs you how to meet the requirements of the Civil Service exmination in any branch of the Government work.

Social Features of Unusual Interest Follow After Easter

Dallastown Enjoys Receptions, Entertainments, Musical Recital and Theatricals This Week

By Special Correspondence

Dallastown, Pa., April 18.—Social features of unusual interest have followed Easter. Monday evening the Rev. J. S. Adam, of the Reformed Church, tendered a reception to over a hundred members who united with the church since his pastorate. From appearances the church will have to be enlarged to accommodate the growing congregation.—The same evening a plano recital was given by Professor Carl Anstine, assisted by Miss Florence Spotts, Miss Velma Heindel, Harry Stites and the Raab Music Company. It was the best musical entertainment of the season. Professor Anstine has returned to Syracuse Conservatory of Music. — Mrs. J. C. Henschke at the close of one of the

JULPHUR DRIES UP ECZEMA AND STOPS ITCHING

This old time skin healer is used just like any cold

With the first application of boldsulphur cream the angry itching attending any eczema eruption ceases and its remarkable healing powers begin. Sulphur, says a renowned dermatologist, just common bold-sulphur, made into a thick cream will soothe and heal the skin when irritated and broken out with Eczema or any form of eruption. The moment it is appiled all itching ceases and after two or three applications the Eczema disappears, leaving the skin clear and smooth.

He tells Eczema sufferers to get from any good pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur cream and apply it to the irritated, inflamed skin, the same as you would any cold cream.

For many years this soothing, healing sulphur has occupied a secure position in the treatment of cutaneous affections by reason of its parasitedestroying property. It is not only parasiticidal, but also antipruritic, antiseptic and remarkably healing in all irritable and inflammatory conditions of the skin. While not always establishing a permanent cure, it never fails to instantly subdue the irritation ditions of the skin. While not always establishing a permanent cure, it never fails to instantly subdue the irritation and heal the Eczema right up and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

Aunt Este's Stories For Children

My dear little ones:
Have you ever heard of the cow-bird? Well, it is one of the queerest of all the birds that fly across the blue heavens. I wish you would try to learn all you can of it—but now listen to one little story of

The Foster-child of Mrs. Maryland Yellow Throat Once upon a time there lived in a beautiful little nest home a mother bird—she was only a very young housekeeper, without a single bird-child to her name. She and Mr. Maryland Yellow Throat had just started housekeeping some time past. Day after day Mr. Yellow Throat brought something new to improve the little home. There were hair screens and twig beds and grass mattresses, and all sorts of bird house furniture. Day by day he went to the food shops of the birds and brought to his little when the choicest of bird food—worms and bugs and insects. For, as I suppose you have guessed by this time, Mrs. Maryland Yellow Throat was staying at home sitting on the dearest little esges in the world, trying to hatch out some tiny baby Maryland Yellow Throats.

the choicest of bird food—worms and bugs and insects. For, as I suppose you have guessed by this time, Mrs. Maryland Yellow Throat was staying at home sitting on the dearest little eggs in the world, trying to hatch out some tiny baby Maryland Yellow Throats.

But one day Mr. Yellow Throat took a long, long trip to see the country and visit a few of his friends, and Mrs. Yellow Throat sat at home and waited and waited for something to eat. At last she became quite impatient—so she decided she would leave the nest for a few minutes and go to hunt something herself.

"Those eggs won't get chilled in that short a time, and I can't starve," she said.

So away she flew hurrying with all her little might so that she might soon return to sit on the eggs in the tiny nest.

Sile had no more than cotten of sight, before a bigger before the frightened, dear ones, the big bird was not going to harm the little eggs. Oh! no indeed. She just looked down to see what kind of eggs they were, and when she found they were the eggs of Mrs. Maryland Yellow Throat, she was very well satisfied.

"I'll just sit here awhile and keep Mrs. Maryland Yellow Throat's eggs warm for her," she said.

Well, she did that, but she was not idle, oh, by no means. For when she flew away from the nest, just before Mrs. Yellow Throat returned, there was one more egg in it than there had been before she sat down.

"There, there, Mrs. Yellow Throat," she laughed as she flew away. "That new egg looks so much like your own, you'll never know the difference. And you'll sit at home and hatch it out for me while I can be flying around having a good time. It's too lonesome and tiresome to sit on a nest for so long. And of one thing I'm sure: you will have such a big fine child you'll wonder yourself having as Mrs. Cou-bird, that was the name of this Queer, unabelied to talk to some neighbor birds, and they had been gossiping about some other neighbor birds, and they had been gossiping about some other neighbor birds, so she never got home until quite dark, and crack," a little shell, and then as she drew to the edge of her nest, a little bird came forth from the shell. "Did you ever dream we could have such a splendid big baby bird? Why he is bigger than any baby Yellow Throat I ever saw." "So he is." answered Mr. Yellow Throat. "He is a splendid bird child. I am very proud of him, I hope the rest will be as fine."

dream we could have such a splendid big baby bird? Why he is bigger than any baby Yellow Throat I ever saw.

"So he is. So he is," answered Mr. Yellow Throat. "He is a splendid bird child. I am very proud of him, I hope the rest will be as fine."

But as days passed no more little chips were heard—no more shells cracked, but the one little chips were heard—no more shells cracked, but the one little baby bird grew bigger and more and more handsome. At last mother Yellow Throat became impatient with the slowness of the other eggs and pushed a few out of the nest.

"Eiggey must have room gow," said she.

"One day the two little things for all the other little mother and day Yellow Throat saw them they were quite disappointed.

"Such insignificant little things," they sneered. "They're just ordinary bird bables — no bigger than any other Yellow Throats has," and they only half fed the poor little bables, until at last they died, and there was left only the one big fellow of which they were so proud.

One day a strange bird came close to the nest, just before the big baby bird had learned to fly.

"Twee, twee," sang she, which was in English, "Tm ready for you. You are my child.

"Twee, twee," sang she, which was in English, "Tm ready to come, I'm getting sick of these silly Yellow of the ready to come, I'm getting sick of these silly Yellow of the said his than out of the nest flew little Cow-bird (for of course you have guessed it was not one of their own children, but had been so proud.)
